D. C. Chiefs Refer Seal Reform Plan To Public

Hearing Nov. 27 On Proposal for 11 Departments in City Government

Reorganization of the District Government yesterday was placed before the public by the Commissioners, who set November 27 for a public hearing on the Seal plan for streamlining the local set-up.

Meeting with their "kitchen cabinet" for the first time since completion of the revision plans, the Commissioners received the proposed legislation with full explanations.

Although the proposed bill, prepared by Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal, originally had included extension of powers to permit the Commissioners to levy taxes and appropriate funds, this provision had been stricken by other members of the cabinet.

Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen said he would propose a substitute plan calling for the appointment of 6, 9 or 12 representative citizens to sit with the Commissioners to work out future tax plans for the District and also make appropriations for the District departments. He said he would recommend the appointments be made by the President.

Departments Proposed

Opposition to the plan suggested by Seal was based on the theory that these peculiar functions should not be vested in an appointed body of three officials. It was believed much of the opposition to the plan would be dispelled if Hazen's scheme for calling in a "citizen's council" could obtain the approval of citizen's groups.

The importance of citizen participation in the proposed hearings was stressed by the three Commissioners. Possibility of the hearings extending more than a week was expressed by one official.

n many respects the Seal plan for revision of the municipal government parallels the Griffenhagen report. The major difference in the two plans is in the top of the organization proposed. Griffenhagen recommended a city-manager form of government and Seal recommends retention of the commission form of government.

Eleven departments are provided for in the Seal plan. These would be finance, law, public works, personnel, police, fire, health, license, corporations, public welfare and recreation. Of these, five agencies would be brand new.

New Jobs Involved

Eight new positions would be created under the plan, including those of a director of finance, director of personnel, superintendent of licenses, superintendent of corporations, budget officer, administrative assistant to the commissioners, director of public works and a chief medical examiner to replace the office of coroner.

Independence of the board of education and board of library trustees would be preserved under the Seal plan. The Commissioners would be authorized to prepare their annual budgets and send them direct to Congress instead of via the Federal Budget Bureau.

Earthquake Felt In Philadelphia And Maryland

Philadelphia, Nov. 14 (AP).—The Franklin Institute announced its seismograph showed an earthquake of considerable intensity centered "very close to Philadelphia" at 9:54 o'clock tonight and lasted for about 10 seconds.

Tremors were felt in Philadelphia and vicinity, Baltimore, Wilmington, Del., and various communities in Maryland and southern New Jersey.

No serious damage was reported immediately.

Roosevelt Says Modern Art Has Nothing Morbid About It

Edward J. Sawyer's Mural of Passenger Pigeons

President Roosevelt yesterday spoke in defense of modern art. He declared there was nothing morbid about it.

He was commenting on the 450 examples of painting and sculpture designed for Federal buildings on exhibit at the Corcoran Gallery.

Mr. Roosevelt was shown through the exhibit last week by Edward Bruce, chief of the Section of Fine Arts of the Public Buildings Administration.

Asked at his press conference what he thought of the exhibit, he said it was one of the most interesting he had ever seen.

It shows, he said, that the spirit of the average American is refreshingly clean.

The President showed deep interest in a number of designs in the hour or so that he spent at the exhibit. Two sketches submitted in the Postoffice competition in which he was particularly interested, however, were not among the 48 State winners.

"Justice and the Child"

These were an ice-cutting scene in Maine, by Waldo Peirce, and a sketch showing a flock of passenger pigeons, by Edmund J. Sawyer. The bird is now extinct.

The President also was impressed by a full-sized drawing for a mural entitled, "Justice and the Child," selected Department Building in a competition conducted by the Section of Fine Arts.

The painting, on which the artist is now putting the finishing

Chest at 47.5% Of Quota at Halfway Mark

Million a 'Pushover' By Reporting Time Tomorrow Units Told

The Washington Community Chest fell shy of reaching the half-way mark in its $2,000,000 goal yesterday—but workers assured it would be a "pushover" by report time tomorrow.

A grand total of $950,660.03, or 47.5 per cent of the campaign quota, has been raised. Pledges yesterday brought in $115,970.01.

It is just "plain common sense" to support the Chest, the Very Rev. Noble C. Powell, dean of the Washington Cathedral, told workers at yesterday's Willard Hotel meeting.

"We are serving ourselves as well as those who benefit from Community Chest activities," he said. "Everyone who lays claim as a humanitarian can't fail to hear our call."

The present world economic situation, said Dean Powell, has made a "hot bed of hate, grief and despair." The Community Chest, he added, is this country's greatest weapon against those enemies.

He warned against smug self-assurances that "it can't happen to me."

"When you are asked to look at the suffering around you," said Dean Powell, "don't sit back and say it can't happen to you, because it can. Past experiences have taught us it can happen to anyone. See with the eyes of those who are helped by the Chest, and you will know.

For the first time yesterday, workers joined in community singing at

Roosevelt Parries Query On Third Term

Laughs Off Question On Garner Candidacy As Too Subtle

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt yesterday once again declined to disclose 1940 intentions as a reporter posed the fifty-seventh variation of the question: "Will you run?"

The newsman at a press conference noted Vice President Garner's candidacy and asked: "Does that alter your plans in anyway?"

Smilingly, the President admonished his questioner not to be so subtle, then let the subject drop. It was the first time the question had been put in weeks. It failed to receive the familiar rejoinder—put on the dunce cap.

Intense interest in the President's election year intentions followed reports from friends of Postmaster General James A. Farley that the genial chairman of the Democratic National Committee is definitely opposed to a third term, and would leave the Cabinet if the President chose to run.

Both Farley and Vice President Garner, who will seek the Presidency regardless of Roosevelt's decision, were reported firmly of the conviction that the President does not want and will not seek a third term.

Opposition from two such potent Democratic political figures, at least one of them a candidate to "win," spells a certain pitched battle in the next Democratic convention should the President run counter to the

Annenberg Abandons Racing News Service on Trial Eve

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Nov. 14.—M. L. Annenberg's Nation-wide Racing News Service, a continent-spanning wire network linking race tracks to betting rooms, was doomed to dissolution today.

United States District Attorney William J. Campbell announced that Weymouth Kirkland, counsel for Annenberg and the system, had informed him that his clients had decided "immediately to dissolve Nation-wide News Service, Inc., and definitely and forever quit the business of providing race information over wires to gamblers and bookies."

The prosecutor added:

"Dissolution of Nationwide News Service, Inc., will affect not only every State in the Union but the Dominion of Canada and Cuba."

Annenberg's attorneys reported that the facilities used for transmitting race entries, odds, results and pay-off prices from the tracks to horse playing parlors would be cut off tomorrow or "not later than Thursday noon."

"Counsel has stated that his clients will voluntarily cancel contracts with the A. T. & T. Co. and the Western Union Telegraph Co.," Campbell said.

"In addition, he declared his clients have expressed a wish to assist the Government in preventing the dissemination by anyone of race

ADA to Seek $1,485,000 Project Loan

Also Approves Acceptance of $1,500,000 Short Term Financing

By Gerald G. Gross
Post Staff Writer

Fresh impetus was given the Capital's slum clearance and low-rent housing program yesterday when the District Alley Dwelling Authority (1) approved acceptance of a $1,500,000 short-term loan and (2) voted to apply to the United States Housing Authority for a $1,485,000 loan for a new construction project.

The Riggs National Bank of Washington is a member of the banking syndicate which offered to buy $1,500,000 in six-month notes from the ADA at the rate of six-tenths of 1 per cent per annum, the proposition being accepted.

"These short-term notes," explained John Ihlder, executive officer of ADA, "are in the nature of temporary financing and are coordinated with and take the place of the advance loan notes made by the Alley Dwelling Authority to the United States Authority, but at a lower rate of interest than the USHA notes, which bear the rate of 3 per cent per annum.

Semiannual Saving of $18,000

"The rate of interest that these temporary loan notes will carry will mean a semiannual saving to the Authority of $18,000. On the basis of the total earmarking ($15,000,000), the Authority may save up to $360,000 on this type of financing."

The other important item of business transacted at the ADA board meeting was the authorization of Ihlder to apply to USHA for a $1,485,000 loan to finance the erstwhile "demonstration" housing project.

Action on this moot development was in the nature of a reply to a letter by Nathan Straus, U. S. Housing administrator, to Ihlder last week in which the former rejected the ADA's proposal of a dual demonstration housing project which would illustrate construction standards of both the Federal and local agencies.

Since Straus will not grant a loan for such an experimental development, the plan is now to build all 356 dwellings on the 38-acre site according to ADA specifications.

Disagreement Delays Program

The experimental project called for a loan of $2,079,000 and provided for 502 dwellings.

Differences between Straus and Ihlder over such things as room sizes, closet doors, etc., have seriously delayed the Capital's low-rent housing program. Action taken by ADA yesterday puts it up to Straus as to whether he will give in and yield to the local authority's building standards or continue to hold out for the cheaper—though more expensive in the long run, according to Ihlder—USHA system of construction.

Ihlder was gratified at the low interest rate on the private capital short-term loan. Under the law, USHA is required to charge 3 to 3¼ per cent for its loans, compared with the six-tenths of 1 per cent to be charged by the banking syndicate.

Administrator Straus was jubilant at the heartening response by private capital.

Roosevelt Is Critical of Ship Transfer

Hints Opposition, Agrees in Part With Hull Plan Would Violate Spirit of Law

By Edward T. Folliard.
Post Staff Writer

The plan to transfer American ships to Panama registry so that they might sail to Britain and France under the flag of Panama appeared to be dead late yesterday.

President Roosevelt, at his press conference, said no final decision had been reached in the case of an application for transfer of eight ships of the United States Lines, but he intimated broadly that he was now opposed to the plan.

Laughingly he said his questioner ought to be able to see which way the wind was blowing.

The President was asked if he agreed with Secretary Hull, who held that transfer of the ships to the flag of Panama would be a violation of the spirit of America's neutrality law. He said he did agree, in part.

But the important question, the President said, and one that had not been touched on, was whether this country wanted to put a Central American republic in a position different from our own with respect to neutrality.

He said that the more the Administration thought this over, the more it was convinced that this was not the right thing to do.

Water Over the Dam

Five weeks ago, at a meeting in Panama City, delegates from 21 American republics approved a general declaration of neutrality in the European war. The other 20 republics did not go so far as this one did later in proclaiming combat zones through which its ships could not travel, but apparently the President has now taken the view that the United States should not encourage a plan which would send the flag of Panama through danger areas barred to the Stars and Stripes.

As for the 15 tankers of the Standard Oil Co., which already have been transferred to Panama registry, President Roosevelt said the approval of the Maritime Commission in this case would have to be considered water over the dam.

There was every indication the President would instruct the Maritime Commission to reject the application of the United States Lines for transfer of eight of its ships to the Panama flag.

The Maritime Commission yesterday announced it had denied an application filed by Anthony C. Stralla for transfer of four Pacific Coast freighters to Panama registry.

The commission said that to grant the application would be "detrimental" to America's best interests.

Sale of Trawlers Approved

Anthony C. Stralla, the applicant, is well known in California, both in maritime and gambling circles. He was the owner of a fleet of gambling ships which operated off Los Angeles.

Officials of the Maritime Commission admitted that Stralla's criminal record, together with a lack of information about his purpose, had much to do with the decision against allowing him to transfer ships to Panama registry.

Doctor Swears Kuhn Paid Fee for Woman Wed 9 Times

Received $60 on Bill Sent to Bund Headquarters, Says Physician; 'Blonde Young Lady' Mentioned

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 14.—Fritz Kuhn, who has acknowledged paying out of the funds of his German-American bund the transcontinental moving expenses of one woman friend, was declared today to have paid a $60 doctor bill for a second—the nine-times married Mrs. Virginia Cogswell.

Testifying for the State in Kuhn's trial on charges of theft of money from the bund, Dr. Francis La Sorsa described a professional call made upon Mrs. Virginia Overshiner Patterson Stark Von Freiberger Seeger Gilbert Kahn Gould-Porter Kaplan Cogswell at 1 o'clock of the morning of September 2, 1938.

The physician said Kuhn was present in the hotel room of "the Georgia Peach"—so-called because, although she came from Peoria, Ill., she won a beauty contest some years ago down South—and that the stout bundesfuehrer had written his name and the bund's address on a prescription blank and directed that the bill be sent there.

Later, Dr. La Sorsa said, he got a check from Kuhn.

He identified the particular blank and testified too, that while they were in the sickroom Kuhn made a remark about having just returned by plane from California, where he had seen a "blonde young lady."

The matter of this "blonde young lady" was left in the air, however. The physician acknowledged that Kuhn hadn't mentioned her name, and so the California incident was ruled out.

Kuhn's wife has not been present at the trial sessions.

The day's last witness—and, said Assistant District Attorney Herman McCarthy, the last the State plans now to call—gave such a complicated outline of the bund's finances that Judge James Wallace unhesitatingly granted a defense motion for adjournment until Thursday to permit the lawyers time to examine the figures.

Hundreds Killed When Fire Razes Venezuelan Oil Town

Flames Sweep Off Petroleum-Covered Lake and Destroy 2,000 Homes; Rescue Launch Burns in Blazing Waters

By the Associated Press

Caracas, Venezuela, Nov. 14.—The old town of Laguinillas, built on stilts on the edge of Lake Maracaibo and one of the major oil terminals in Venezuela, was destroyed last night by a fire in which more than 500 persons were reported dead or missing. Some estimates of the dead ranged as high as 800.

The flames spread quickly over the oil film on the lake in which hundreds of oil derricks stand, and roared through some 2,000 wooden shacks.

The town of 2,500 believed to be all natives, was virtually wiped out.

The stilt village, through which was shipped much of the oil sent to Great Britain from Venezuela's fields, burned like tinder, and trapped hundreds in the houses. Within four hours nothing was left of the town but floating debris and smouldering piles.

A relief fund totaling 355,000 bolivars $110,050) was quickly raised by President Eleazar Lopez Contreras and the Venezuelan government.

One report said the fire started after a warehouse explosion, but another stated the explosion of a kerosene lamp in a bar had touched off the conflagration.

A rescue launch sank with all aboard, presumably burned by the wave of flames.

Relief work was extremely difficult and tonight but 100 bodies had been recovered. It was believed many hundreds of bodies were yet under the smoldering, floating ruins.

The pile ends, which once supported houses of the town, were smoldering stumps tonight, but the lake itself was not ablaze.

Lagunillas is about 30 miles below the seaport of Maracaibo, on Lake Maracaibo, and is one of the major oil terminals in Venezuela.

Hitler Rejects Peace, Blames War on Britain

Allies Have Sabotaged Low Countries' Plea, Fuehrer Contends

By C. Brooks Peters
Copyright by New York Times

Berlin, Nov. 14.—Germany today rejected the mediation offer of Queen Wilhelmina and King Leopold, on the grounds that it was first rejected by Britain and France.

The reply was not made public in Berlin, but Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop separately received the Belgian ambassador and the Dutch minister and informed them of the contents of the communication.

Both the Belgian and the Dutch envoys are understood to have assured Von Ribbentrop their governments were anxious to continue efforts for peace and to have offered the services of their governments for another attempt which might have a chance of success.

It is assumed here, however, that receipt of the Reich's note will mark the end of the ill-starred Dutch-Belgian offer.

A statement by Fuehrer Hitler with respect to the peace mediation offer was understood to have asserted the Allies had "sabotaged the proposal" and had proclaimed their determination "to destroy Germany."

Authentic quarters said the message embodied the idea put forward by a government spokesman yesterday in the following statement:

"The British and French replies represent a challenge to the German nation . . . They reveal that Britain's war aim is destruction of the Reich. The Allies have deliberately sabotaged the latest peace move while trying to throw a smoke-screen around England's war guilt."

The text of the German reply is en route to Brussels and The Hague through the usual diplomatic channels. It is expected it will be delivered tomorrow, after which it will be released.

Meanwhile, hopes that Russia's resources can nullify the British blockade are being considerably reduced in German military quarters.

Nazis Claim Repulse of French Attack

Strafing Planes Used To Drive Poilus Back In Pirmasens Sector

By International News Service

Berlin, Nov. 14.—A violent French attack in the Pirmasens sector of the Western Front has been repulsed by German infantry and artillery, it was claimed today through official German news sources.

Details of the fighting were not disclosed by the German war office daily bulletins. The German radio and DNB, official German news agency, however, elaborated on military communiques which for the past few days have reported incessant artillery and patrol activity in the Pirmasens region.

The German radio statement said reconnoitering movements reported by the war office "are explained by efforts of the enemy to recapture certain heights lost because of successful counter-attacks by German troops.

"After retreat of French troops to advanced positions in front of the Siegfried Line, German outposts pushed forward in several places to the immediate vicinity of the frontier.

"From the vantage of heights still in French hands southwest of Pirmasens the French tried to drive back the German observation posts and a French battalion succeeded in occupying certain heights providing a useful view of German positions.

"A counterattack by German infantry, supported by artillery fire, compelled the French to evacuate these heights despite obstinate resistance, in the course of which low-flying airplanes were brought into action for the first time."

[The French general staff tonight reported an increase in patrol activity on the Western Front east of the Saar River, near Saarbruecken, which would be in the vicinity of Pirmasens, the Associated Press said.—Editor's note.]

Fifth British Warship Sunk, Tanker, 3 Other Vessels Lost

By the Associated Press

London, Nov. 14.—The loss of a British destroyer after striking a German mine was reported by the admiralty today as sea warfare spurted into intensified action.

In addition to the destroyer, the fifth warship and the first of her category reported lost by the British, officials reported the sinking of three British merchant vessels and a Norwegian tanker.

The day's casualty list totaled 28 dead and missing and 15 injured.

Today's sinkings raised the toll of ships sunk in sea combat to 122 and the total known tonnage destroyed to 489,117.

At least 1,875 persons have been killed or drowned and many others were listed as missing.

Great Britain has lost 66 ships, Germany 14, France 7, the Scandinavian countries 25 and other neutrals 10.

The admiralty neither identified the destroyer nor gave the time or place of her sinking. One crew member was listed as killed, six as missing and 15 as injured.

The craft was believed to have struck the mine Sunday or Monday. More than 70 of her crew were known to have been picked up and landed by tugs and drifters. British destroyer complements range

By the United Press

Helsinki, Nov. 14.—Finnish officials tonight reported a series of land and air incidents along the Russian frontier and it was reported without confirmation that a Soviet warplane had been shot down in the developing "war of nerves" between the two countries.

The incidents were reported only 24 hours after a breakdown in the month-old Moscow negotiations on Russia's military and territorial demands against Finland and abrupt departure of the Finnish negotiators for Helsinki.

The Russian plane was shot down by the Finns, according to unverified reports, in the No-Man's-Land between the Russian and Finnish defense lines along the Eastern border.

Foreign Minister Erkko, explaining that the negotiations will be reopened only if Russia advances more equitable proposals, was asked if any Soviet ultimatum had been served.

"No, not yet," he answered.

Reds Feint Attack

Soviet troops along the frontier, with heavy concentrations of armed forces on both the Russian and Finnish sides were reported to have charged with fixed bayonets toward Finnish barbed wire barricades, shooting in the air.

The "charges," according to reports reaching Helsinki, but unconfirmed, evidently were designed to weaken Finnish morale.

In other intimidation tactics Soviet planes were reported to have made low, "hedge-hopping" flights over the fortified border zone.

The Finnish defense works are some distance back from the barbed-wire barriers toward which Russian infantry units were reported to have "charged."

The reported incidents were said to have developed on the Karelian Isthmus north of Leningrad and farther north above Lake Ladoga.

Although the Soviet press has said Finland is one the "brink of ruin" and is "playing a dangerous game of plotting war against the Soviet Union," it was not believed Russia would undertake an invasion of Finland, at least for the time being.

Moscow Denies Reinforcement

Instead, it was speculated, the Soviet policy is more likely to consist of pressure and intimidation in an effort to wear down Finland's resistance and force capitulation.

This policy of pressure, it was said in Finnish quarters, probably

The Gallup Poll

By Dr. George Gallup
Director American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 14.—Despite the best efforts of the German propaganda machine, a Nation-wide fact-finding survey by the American Institute of Public Oponion indicates the average American remains unconvinced on one of the most elementary issues in the whole German case—namely, that, the people of Germany willingly support Adolf Hitler.

Despite the German propaganda efforts, of which Chancellor Hitler himself has boaster, and regardless of the imposing results of various Nazi plebiscites since 1933, approximately two persons in every three in the institute survey say they believe a majority of Germans are opposed to the Fuehrer.

In Favor of Hitler?

To explore the American attitude on this question, the Institute asked a carefully selected cross-section of men and women in all States and all walks of ife:

"Do you think the people of Germany are in favor of Hitler?"

The replies show that about two-thirds of the voters with opinions consider the bulk of the German people victims rather than collaborators in the Nazi dictatorship.

Believe majority favor Hitler.. 34%
Believe majority oppose Hitler 66%

Approximately 1 person in 6 (17 per cent) said he had on opinion on the question:

Of special interest is the vote of first and second generation German-Americans. Only 36 per cent of those interviewed in the survey said they thought Hitler had majority support in Germany, while 6' per cent though he was holding his present authority against majority wishes.

The significance of the American attitude is clear: Whether these beliefs are correct or incorrect, the German case begins at an original disadvantage. Every German appeal to the sentiments of the United States, it appears from the survey, will be examined by millions of Americans in the light of this fundamental skepticism.

Internal Dissension

The latest German "case" has grown out of the bombing of Munich's Buergerbraeu Hall a few moments after the departure of Chancellor Hitler. German sources have laid the bombing to the British secret service, but from the evidence available in today's survey it seems likely that Americans will be more disposed to credit the action to dissatisfied elements within the German Reich—the theory put forward in Allied circles.

The majority doubt Hitler really represents the German nation, the comments show, because they have mental pictures of an entire regime based on force and suppression. Many say they doubt that the German people approve of the persecution of Jews, Catholics, labor leaders and other dissenters, which have marked the Nazi regime.

"If the people were for him, Hitler wouldn't need to follow strong-arm methods," is the way many a voter expresses his opinion.

The majority comments visualize the German people as oppressed and cowed, silently submitting to the Nazi dictatorship. Obviously, this view may be influenced to some extent by wishful thinking. If not, then this will be a short war, with the silent majority casting off their chains.

It is interesting to note, however, that such a good British student of war propaganda as Capt. Sidney Rogerson, author of the book, "Propaganda in the Next War," emphasizes that the Allies must not take the hositility of the German people toward their leader too much for granted.

The present survey shows the greatest skepticism as to Hitler's support among Southern voters, only 29 per cent of whom say they think the Fuehrer has the people's support.

The most marked difference in opinion occurs among different income groups, where the upper income voters were more willing to concede Hitler popular support than were the middle and lower groups:

| | Believe Hitler Favored | Believe Hitler Opposed |

Doubt Staying Power

From 1914 to 1918 the German people held out with gradually sinking resources in the face of a bitter British blockade. This time, despite Chancellor Hitler's claims that Germany can fight a "ten-year war" if necessary, the majority in the Institute survey feel that Germany will not be able to resisit so long.

In a supplementary question the Institute asked:

"Do you think the German people are prepared to hold out as long as they did in the last war, or not so long?"

|---|---|
| As Long 23% | 42% |
| Longer 19% | |
| Not so Long | 58% |

About 1 person in 5 said he was undecided on the question.

Who Is Interviewed— That's Accuracy Factor

In every American Institute of Public Opinion survey, interviews are conducted among a carefully selected cross-section of the voting population in each State. Depending on statistical requirements, the Institute includes from 3,000 to 60,000 interviews in these surveys. Such samples insure that any error due solely to the number of people interviewed will not under any practical circumstance exceed 4 per cent. According to the laws of probability, the statistical odds actually are 997 in 1,000 that the error will not exceed 2.74 per cent.

Accuracy in public opinion surveys such as this is almost entirely a function of WHO is interviewed. The Institute uses six statistical keys or "controls" to assure that those who are included in any survey compose a true cross-section of the voting population in each State. It one-third of the voters in a State live on farms, one-third of the ballots received from that State must come from farmers. If one-eighth of the voting population is on relief, then one-eighth of the ballots must come from rellefers.

Full details as to the procedure followed by the Institute in making its surveys has been included in a brochure entitled "The New Science of Public Opinion Measurement" which will be sent to anyone addressing the American Institute of Public Opinion, Princeton, N. J.

Woman Sought For Quizzing in O'Hare Death

Prosecutor Presses Probe Into Gang Slaying Angles

By the United Press

Chicago, Nov. 14.—Lieut. Thomas Kelly, of the State's attorney's police, went to a North Side apartment tonight to trail what he said was a "new woman angle" in the assassination of Edward J. O'Hare, millionaire race track magnate.

Since O'Hare was "rubbed out" late last Wednesday in a fashion reminiscent of the Capone era, the pendulum of investigation has swung from an underworld angle to love's revence.

Kelly said he was not dismissing the possibility of a Capone connection with the slaying, "but I have not by a far cry lost sight of the woman angle as a possible motive."

He hurried to the North Side, where O'Hare maintained a luxuriously appointed and barricaded "hideout," on a "tip" that a housewife who lived across the street, frequently had heard quarreling between a man and a woman in O'Hare's basement apartment. The housewife reported that the woman, whom she described as tall, dark and attractive, had complained because the man would not live with her.

Los Angeles police announced late today that a letter found on Russell Stodard, 21, purporting to link him with the slaying, had been written by Stoddard.

The fake letter said that he "did the right thing by leaving" when he did, that he would get a "couple of C's reward" and ended with a warning: "Carry little Oscar with you wherever you go and remember a guy named Eddie."

Los Angeles police said that Stoddard wrote the letter, mailed it to his mother in Little Rock, Ark., and instructed her to send the letter back to him. It was written on stationary of the Paddock Club, a tavern at Cicero, site of Sportsman's Park race track, of which O'Hare was presiednt. Cicero once was headquarters for the Capone vice, gambling and bootleg liquor syndicate.

Another letter, uncovered here last night, among O'Hare's personal effects, said Capone had vowed to kill O'Hare "or see that some of his friends score for Eddie." In underworld parlance, "score for" means kill.

Questioned by the State's attorney's office today were:

Municipal Judge Eugene J. Holland, associated with O'Hare in a real estate firm. Holland last year dismissed 700 gambling cases. Holland said his association with O'Hare was purely of a business nature. He said he never had discussed gambling cases with O'Hare.

John Patton, partner of O'Hare in the Sportsman's Park Track, and one-time Capone associate, said none of the Capones owned stock in Sportsman's Park. He said O'Hare had been acting "mighty funny during the past year or so."

Antoinette (Toni) Caravetta, O'Hare's secretary, said she had visited O'Hare's Glencoe and North Side addresses, "mostly to bring mail," and that she never had seen women there.

Thousands of U. S. Birds Believed Lost at Sea

Thousands of North American birds are lost at sea each year in trying to migrate to South America, Dr. Alexander Wetmore, assistant secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, has found by studies in Venezuela.

From the condition of birds which completed the flight, Dr. Wetmore said he was canvinced many thousands were lost en route.

Byrd Antarctic Expedition Ready to Weigh Anchor

Associated Press WIREPHOTOS

The 27-ton snow cruiser of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition finally was stowed aboard the North Star at Boston yesterday, although it protruded two feet over the ship's rail even after its ten-foot rear end had been removed. Mrs. Carl Eklund, of New York, and Mrs. Glen Dyer, of Georgia, fondle two stout husky puppies to be sent aboard the motorship to the Antarctic. Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd (at right) scrambles down fro ma pile of sled equipment while inspecting the North Star

By the Associated Press

Boston, ov. 14.—Polar pioneers, who may become Uncle Sam's first Antarctic colonists, bunked aboard a modern Mayflower tonight, ready to sail at dawn for the Little America that Admiral Byrd believes might provide a base for a new and "safer" air trail between the United States and Australia.

The sailing of the North Star, lead-off ship in the Government's first Antarctic venture in 100 years, was delayed today by the necessity of lashing a 27-ton snow cruiser on the vessel's fordeck.

The big snowmobile, which encountered a series of mishaps on its jaunt from Chicago to Boston, was eased onto the forward deck of the North Star this morning by Dr. Thomas Poulter, designer of the juggernaut. On the dock, sled dogs barked and yelped.

The giant Penguin I lay crossways on the deck, its ends protruding over port and starboard rails, and seamen made its heavy chain lashings secure.

The farewells of friends, the send-off speeches, the posing for newsreels—all these were finished today, as the great wooden motorship completed the loading of a cargo ranging from army tanks to paper clips, and sled dogs to phonograph records.

Preceding by a week its expedition sister ship, the old Barkentine Bear of Oakland, the North Star will head for the outer harbor to make adjustments to her compass and radio direction finder before moving south on the first leg of a 12,000-mile voyage to the Bay of Whales.

There she will keep a rendezvous with the Bear about January 1, and one base will be established at or near Little America before both backtrack to Valparaiso to refuel before ploughing southward again to attack a 1,000-mile uncharted coast line.

An inland base also is planned. The explorers hope, by living for some 13 months at the respective bases, to strengthen Antarctic territory claims tentatively made by Byrd, Lincoln Ellsworth and other United States explorers.

"It is hoped to make this a semi-permanent thing, depending upon Congress' wishes," declared Byrd, commander of the expedition.

Bartender's Visits Aired in Pantages' Suit

Nurse Tells Court 'He Woke Up There' At House in Morning

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, Nov. 14—The association of Mrs. Beatrice Veryl Pantages and a Palm Springs bartender was dwelt upon in testimony today at trial of a contested divorce suit between her and Rodney Pantages, of the theater family.

Miss Geraldine Graham, nurse for the two Pantages children, testified that Mrs. Pantages and the bartender, Pete Bedwell, were together almost constantly at Palm Springs

"You mean that Mr. Bedwell was at the house every day?" asked Mrs. Pantages' lawyer, Clarence C. Conlin.

"Well, he woke up the morning there," the nurse replied.

The only times Mrs. Pantages did not see Bedwell were two week-ends when her husband visited her, Miss Graham testified.

She identified a letter which she said Mrs. Pantages asked her, after returning to Los Angeles, to mail to Bedwell, but which she turned over to Pantages.

The letter read:

"Hello, my darling. I love you! I love you! I love you! Is there anything more I can say except that if you were here holding me in your arms, all would be perfect. I am so happy with you and so alone when we are apart. You are so sweet, and I am keeping my fingers crossed until Monday, when you can hold me and I really can say, Darling, I love you!"

The case was barely under way yesterday before a courtroom jammed with spectators anticipating spicy developments when Pantages' counsel called George Kliman, a private detective.

Kliman told of breaking into an upstairs room at the Pantages home last May 1, accompanied by Pantages and two other men. What he saw, he said, was an "intimate bedroom scene."

He testified Bedwell was dressing and Mrs. Pantages was in bed. He said he restrained Pantages as he "took a swing" at Bedwell.

Couple Awarded $1 in $3,000 Suit

After four years of dispute, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Mockabee, 517 E street southeast, were awarded $1 in the District Court yesterday for the damage they claimed a neighbor did their toolshed by using one side of it for a vine trellis. They also were awarded costs of their suit.

The Mockabees claimed that Mrs. Margaret M. Prince, of 509 Sixth street southeast, drove nails and hooks into their shed and planted vines and shrubs.

The suit was filed two years ago. The Mockabees asked $3,000.

Chinese View U. S. as Holding Bag in Orient

Removal of British, French Troops Is Held Collapse of Power

By Victor Keen.

Copyright, 1939, by New York Tribune, Inc.

Shanghai, oNv. 15.—The withdrawal of British and French troops garrisoned in north China since 1900, is interpreted here as the final collapse of European power in East Asia, "leaving the United tSates holding the bag."

Extended editorial discussion in the English language China press here, which reflects the views of Chungking officialdom, is strongly critical of the Anglo-French action and redicules the London and aPris statements that the withdrawal is due to military necessity in Europe.

Critics explained the British and French garrisons in ePiping and Tientsin and Shanghai constitute a mere handful of men compared with the vast mobilization now taking place in Europe.

Britain and France are represented as trying to appease the Japanese to prevent them from making a deal with Moscok which might prove disastrous to Anglo-French interests in east Asia and India.

One editorial resented calls by the British and French ambassadors on the Japanese army and naval headquarters here to notify the commanders regarding the withdrawal.

The Chinese government-owned Hankow Herald, published in Chungking, editorially suggested that the British withdrawal indicated the existence of a British-Japanese nderstanding regarding mutual interests in China.

Asserting the withdrawal made effective British gestures recognizing Japanese belligerency in China, the China press declared the United States was likely to be the chief sufferer.

Officials in Chunking said the withdrawal is unjustified and the Japanese restrictions really called for strengthening British garrisons.

British trading and shipping interests are apprehensive.

Employers, Labor Favor 35-Cent Pay In Dress Trade

By the Associated Press.

A public hearing on minimum wages for 650,000 apparel workers was adjourned last night until Thursday after a trial examiner for the wage-hour division heard spokesmen for manufacturers and labor testify in favor of a proposed 35-cent-anhour minimum for the dress manufacturing branch of the industry.

At the hearing's opening, Examiner Thomas Holland dismissed a motion by Southern garment manufacturers to halt the hearing until President Roosevelt appointed a successor to Elmer F. Andrews as administrator of the wage-hour division.

Holland then heard several manufacturers contend that approval of the 35-cent wage order would stabilize their industry.

Lazare Teper, representing the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union, declared it would "halt the movement of industry to low-wage areas and eliminate the tendency of fly-bynight shops to escape paying reasonable wages."

Food Gifts May Be Sent to Reich

New York, Nov. 14 (AP).—Americans of German extraction found a way today to hurdle war-time barriers with Christmas packets of food for their loved ones in the German Reich.

Orders for food packets are cabled by a New York firm to neutral countries bordering ermGany where company agencies fill them and take them into the Reich.

The most popular order was a single $5 or double $10 order, and the usual gift consisted of 1 pound each of coffee, tea or chocolate, butter, fats, cheese, oatmeal and rice, and a half pound of soap, 200 grams of beef, 300 grams of condensed milk and 50 grams each of cinnamon and pepper.

Wallace Assistant May Join TVA

By the Associated Press

Associates predicted yesterday that Harry L. Brown, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, would resign within a few days to accept a position with the TVA.

Brown declined to confirm or deny the report, stating that 'a'ny statement" would have to come from the office of Secretary Wallace. At Wallace's office it was said Brown "has not resigned yet." Aides of Wallace said, however, they had been advised that the Assistant Secretary was considering making a change.

Mrs. Dahl Arrives; Hubby Still Captive

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Mrs. Edith Rogers Dahl, violinist-singer, wife of Aviator Harold Dahl, arrived in Boston yesterday on the liner Exochorda, without her husband, who has been imprisoned for two years five months in Spain. Dahl was shot down in an air battle while fighting for the loyalists and condemned to death before a firing squad, but his pretty wife's personal appeal to Gen. Franco saved his life. Discouraged by his long captivity, she was unable to predict when he would be released from 98 to 200 officers and men.

Tugs attempted to take the destroyer in tow but it sank stern first.

Prior to the admiralty announcement it was learned that more than a score of survivors of a sea disaster were recovering in a marine hospital after being landed at an English port Monday.

(A German high command communique reported Nazi airplanes had scored "a probable hit" on an English cruiser in a raid on the Shetland Islands Monday. The British previously stated the Germans had done no serious damage in the raid.)

Meanwhile antiaircraft fire again drove off German warplanes from the Shetland and Orkney Islands for the second time in two days, the air ministry announced tonight. No bombs were dropped.

Loss of the Norwegian tanker by torpedo was disclosed with the rescue of 23 members of her crew, picked up in an open boat after 20 hours. A second boat with 17 men aboard was missing. The name of the tanker was not given, neither was the place of rescue.

U. S. Oil Cargo Lost

(From Oslo came a report that the 11,000-ton Norwegian tanker Koede was torpedoed Sunday as she neared British waters with American petroleum. Seventeen men, including the captain, were lost. Twenty-three others were rescued after being adrift 40 hours.)

The three British merchant vessels which were lost were the 8,003-ton freighter Matra, the 275-ton trawler Cresswell and an unidentified third craft which sank a mile from where the destroyer went down.

Two men were killed in an explosion which sank the Matra. The ship was believed to have struck a mine. The Creswell's survivors said she was torpedoed by a German submarine and two of her crew were missing.

The commander of the submarine which sank the Cresswell picked up 10 of the 12-man crew from a raft and seven hours later put them aboard another trawler, the Phyllisia. As he did so he instructed them:

"Tell Churchill (Britain's first lord of the admiralty) that German U-boat men are not the heartless murderers you are led to believe."

Liner Baits U-Boats

New York, Nov. 14 (AP).—Wearing a new type of "U-boat bait" camouflage, the British Anchor liner Cameronia, arrived today with 93 passengers, including 34 Americans, after a rough but uneventful transatlantic passage.

Passengers and crew, denying reports that a German submarine had fired on the Cameronia, said the ship was protected by a "pillar to post" convoy of British destroyers.

In contrast to the solid horizon gray of its previous voyage, the liner had a gray superstructure with a liver-colored hull and black prow.

"The camouflage was changed so that the enemy won't know us," a crew member explained. "It draws them to the surface to see if we are neutral or not, and then we can let them have it."

Finns Admit Red Army Frontier Clashes

is responsible for the border incidents.

(Reports circulated in Moscow today—denied by official quarters—that additional Red army forces might be sent to the Finnish border as a result of the breakdown in Finnish-Soviet talks.)

Reports reaching Helsinki said soldiers of both armies cautionsly refrained from approaching the plane wreakage for fear an open clash might occur.

The Finnish border forces, comprising the bulk of 300,000 or more troops put under arms since Russia's demands were first served on Finland, were said to be under strict orders to avoid being drawn into any incidents.

Economic War Feared

Although Finnish officials confirmed that incidents had occurred, both on land and in the air, they withheld any official statements with the explanation that such incidents have been increasing as Russia exerted more and more pressure in an effort to compel the Finns to meet Soviet military and territorial demands.

Although it was admitted the border incidents are dangerous, Finnish quarters said Russia has a stronger weapon within her power—economic warfare gainst Finland.

But even such pressure cannot force Finland to bow to Russia's demands for military bases on the Finnish mainland and the shutting off of Finland's corridor to the Arctic, they added, although Russian trade is highly important to Finnish prosperity.

Request For U. S. Aid Hinted

Earlier in the day, official quarters had said they expected a few Soviet "air and naval demonstrations" but that Finland would remain calm in the face of any such attempts at intimidation.

Belief that Russia would not attempt any military bloc was based to a great extent upon the beginnings of winter rain and snow along the frontier regions, particularly on the Karelian Isthmus.

(The Swedish newspaper Degens-Nyheter in Stockholm, said the United States might be asked to give material and financial aid to the Finns, in pursuance of President Roosevelt's recent message of sympathy.

The President's message, the newspaper said, "ought to imply an obligation to give that material support which Finland is bound to ask for on account of the scarcity of supplies and financial difficulties . . . it is not likely that the United States will miss the opportunity to demonstrate that moral obligations from the American side are not unimportant."

The Soviet radio at Moscow broadcast an allegation that the Finns had withheld vital meteorological information about a cyclone in the Gulf of Finland, causing loss of two Soviet military hydroplanes stationed at one of Russia's newly acquired bases on the Estonian coast.

Distribes of the Russian press and radio were ignored officially in Helsinki because, as Foreign Minister Erkko said, "we are not dealing with the press even if it is official but with responsible government representatives of the Soviet Union."

The recalled Finnish mission will reach Helsinki tomorrow morning.

One of the negotiators, explaining that the talks still might be resumed and lead to a peaceful settlement, said:

"The violence of the Russian press and radio campaign is a direct contrast to the tone of the negotiations themselves which were very polite and normal as was to be expected from two friendly peoples."

$2,000 Bond Forfeited In Manslaughter Case

Rep. Taylor, Of Tennessee, Dies at 59

G. O. P. Committeeman Had Driven From Washington Sunday

By the Associated Press

La Follette, Tenn., Nov. 14.—Representative J. Will Taylor, 59 (Republican), of Tennessee, died of a heart ailment at his home here today.

Dr. R. J. Buckman said Taylor was found dead in bed by his wife, who was attending him. He had suffered a heart attack at 10:30 o'clock last night.

Taylor, Republican national committeeman, had driven to Knoxville from Washington Sunday and then to his home here.

Recognized as the Republican "boss" in Tennessee, he had represented the strongly Republican Second Congressional District since 1919.

Prior to his election to Congress, Taylor served as postmaster and mayor of La Follette, and in 1913 he was appointed State commissioner of insurance. He was chairman of the State Republican committee in 1916.

Familiarly known as "J. Will," the Tennessean was born in a two-room cabin in the mountains of Union County. He was graduated in law from Cumberland University at Lebanon, Tenn., in 1902.

The body will lie in state at the La Follette High School Friday from 10 a. m. to noon. The funeral will be at 1 p. m. at the First Baptist Church.

New Englanders Fear Uprising; Revive Minute Men

Boston, Nov. 14 (U.P.).—The Minute Men of Revolutionary War fame are being brought to life by certain New England police chiefs who fear an uprising of "subversive forces," it was learned yesterday.

Secretly, some 30,000 sharpshooting civilians are being prepared for "trouble" that an official of the New England Police Chiefs Association is said to believe may develop in January.

Arlington, Mass., already has 100 members of a rifle club ready to respond at a minute's notice, and at least a half-dozen other Massachusetts communities already have adopted the plan.

Larger forces of expert riflemen will be held in readiness in the textile areas of Fall River, New Bedford, Lowell and Lawrence.

Roosevelt Asks $274,449,513 For Defenses

Request for Increase Of Funds Is Sent To House Committee

By John G. Norris.
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt placed before the House Appropriations Committee yesterday a request for an additional $274,449,513 for the current year to pay for the expansion of the defense and anti-espionage forces ordered at the outbreak of the European war.

Budget estimates for the extra funds were sent to Committee Chairman Taylor with a request by Mr. Roosevelt for "immediate action." Taylor announced that hearings on the estimates would begin November 27, so that they might be presented to the House when it meets early in January.

The additional funds, the President informed Taylor, are "for the proper observance, safeguarding, and enforcing of the neutrality of the United States and thestrengthening of national defense within the limits of peace-time authorizations."

17,000 New Regulars Sought

Of the total, $119,999,842 will go to the War Department for 17,000 additional men for the Regular Army and 45,000 more in the National Guard, an expanded training program and the motorization of four "streamlined" new Infantry divisions.

Montgomery Lets Public School Construction Work

Public school construction contracts were awarded by the Montgomery County Board of Education at a meeting in Rockville yesterday as follows:

To E. A. Pessagno Co., of Washington, for construction of a new unit at the Parkside School, $37,900; three-room addition to the school at Damascus, $14,982; remodeling work at the Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School, $18,231.

To E. R. P. Smith, of Washington, construction of a disposal field and installation of a septic tank at the Poolesville School, $6,200.

The board authorized J. Upton Leaman, Mrs. Julius Hall and F. K. Metzger, members, to purchase additional land for the Gaithersburg School to provide for the location of a gymnasium-auditorium, and appointed the same members to study and act on bids for construction at the Poolesville School, which will be opened November 24.

Board to License Children's Homes In Montgomery

Responsibility for licensing boarding homes for children in Montgomery County, Md., has been delegated to the county welfare board, the board was advised at its meeting yesterday.

The licenses will be issued in the name of the State department of public welfare, but all investigating and other preparatory work will be done by the local board. The board also is charged with enforcement of the new law which makes it illegal to separate an infant of less than six months from its mother except by court order.

Charles S. Stokes, who has been acting as case supervisor, was appointed to the position on a permanent basis, following his certification as a civil service employe.

all sorts beginning to roll into Germany in the very near future, but military publications and commentators are growing skeptical.

There is no doubt of Russia's natural resources as such, but it is now pointed out that in order to make them available to Germany they will have to be exploited and developed first, because in most cases present Russian production falls short of Russia's own requirements. Only in food, iron, manganese and lumber can Germany count on any increased supplies from Russia.

But in such basic war materials as copper, lead, zinc, nickel and tin, in which Russia has vast but undeveloped resources, she is not only unable to export anything, but must import large quantities for her own use. Even in respect to oil, of which Russia is one of the greatest producers, erman hoGpes are melting.

Reasons for Russia's inability to supply Germany with more were outlined in a survey by Col. Ritter von Niedermayer before the Cologne Geographic Society. These reasons may be summarized as follows:

Russia's industrialization has increased Russian consumption of raw materials faster than production, which leads to quantity production at the expense of quality.

The vast territory through which natural resources are scattered, and the backwardness of the Soviet transportation system.

Lack of foreign experts and technicians, without which, in Col. von Niedermayer's view, Russia will be unable to keep going.

Even in respect to food and feed for livestock, Von Niedermayer's anticipations apparently are not large because he said Russian agriculture is industrialized, but that having been made entirely dependent on tractors, it often lacks the gasoline to operate them.

Walsh Calls Browder Blast Propaganda

Charges Red Leader's Attack on Heirarchy Is Part of Soviet Tactics

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 14.—Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, vice president of Georgetown University, declared tonight that an attack made by Earl Browder, Communist leader, upon the Pope and the Catholic heirarchy in the United States, was "part and parcel of the Saviet government's new tactics."

"Dictatorship, autocratic tyranny, ruthless confiscation, class warfare, obscene atheism and the despiritualization of the human soul are carried on the tip of every Soviet bayonet," Father Walsh said, in an addres in suburban Jackson Heights.

Browder, in a speech at a Communist demonstration last night in Madison Square Garden, asserted that the heirarchy was represented among "powerful forces at work in our country to undermine and destroy the great American traditions. We have no quarrel," he said, "with the great mass of Catholic workers in America; we support their religious liberty unconditionally; we find a growing sympathetic attitude toward socialism among them, which we welcome. . . . All the more necesary is it to point out, however, that the first encyclical of Pope Piu XII contains a direct attack upon a fundamental American principle, the separation of church and state."

Father Walsh's answer in part:

"On November 7, Mr. Molotoff, the premier of the Bolshevik state, publicly gave the word for abandonment of the previous policy called 'the united front' and urged all its agents throughout the world to prepare for a direct offensive against democracy and the principles on which the Government of the United States is based.

"With his usual promptness, Mr. Browder—who was once a revolutionary propagandist for the Soviet government in China—directs a special broadcast against the Catholic Church in which he recognizes a formidable obstacle in the way of Moscow's hopes for the overthrow of Christianity and democracy.

"Antireligious propaganda, with its threat to Christendom, and hatred of democracy constitute a permanent element in Soviet statecraft," he added.

Parliament To Reconvene Soon in Paris

65 Billion Franc Budget to Be Chief Business Before Body

Copyright by New York Times

Paris, oNv. 14.—Parliament will be reconvened shortly and Premier Daladier today discussed details for the session with delegates from the Chamber of Deputies' political groups.

The main business will be the budget which Finance Minister Reynaud promised to submit, fully balanced to the sum of 65,000,000,000 francs, to the finance committees Friday.

This will be a different Parliament from that which disbanded after declaring war. A great number of deputies and even some of the Senators are in military service. Secondly, the Communist Party, with 72 deputies, has been disbanded, and 35 of them are in prison. Only five or six of their number, who have renounced oMscow's policy and their leaders in France, will be permitted to take their seats.

The result of this situation will be that the Parliament which voted the war and which was practically the same elected with the Popular Front victory in 1936, will suddenly have its majority completely shifted.

Radical-Socialists, combined with Leon Bloom's Socialists, and other strictly left parties, will no longer number sufficient seats to swing a majority. Premier Daladier, with the Socialists' support, will hereafter have to seek additional strength in the center, instead of going to the extreme left to the Communists.

The policy in the new Chamber will be found to have changed in many parties, for even Blum's Socialists are giving complete support to the government.

Exile 'Dumping' Unlikely to Bar Dominican Plans for Refugees

Unexpected Landing of Spanish Loyalists Not Believed to Close Doors to Germans; Food, Shelter Given Them, Says Envoy Here

The "dumping" of nearly 3,000 Spanish Loyalist refugees in Santo Domingo is not expected to jeopardize the immigration chances of several hundred Germans seeking a haven in the little island republic, it appeared yesterday.

First making it clear that the United States Government is not directly concerned with the strange situation that has arisen, a State Department official, nevertheless, expressed his conviction that the influx of Spaniards will not interfere with carefully laid and approved plans to settle a group of German exiles in the Dominican Republic.

Meanwhile, Senor Don Andres Pastoriza, Dominican Minister to the United States, told The Post that measures are well under way to feed, clothe and house the 570 Spanish families unloaded at Trujillo City last week.

"Although I have not received an official report from my government," he said, "it is my understanding that all 570 families, comprising about 3,000 persons, have arrived.

"These people are in desperate circumstances and several committees in New York are raising funds for their relief. The Dominican consul in New York informed me that one committee has collected $15,000, which will be sent to the refugees."

The minister could shed no light on the mystery of their embarkation from Santo Domingo apparently without the knowledge of his government. The "dumping" was contrary to policies of the intergovernmental committtee on refugees, as well as of the newly founded corporation which is fostering Dominican immigration.

Chairman Sol Bloom, of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, yesterday voiced full confidence in the aims and methods of the Dominican government and said that "whatever they have promised to do for European refugees will be done."

Reds Will Win War, Browder Believes

New York, Nov. 14 (AP).—Earl Browder, Communist leader last night asserted it was "universally recognized" that the peoples of Europe would "inevitably turn to Communism if this imperialistic war was carried on to its logical conclusion."

At a party demonstration in Madison Square Garden he declared the conflict abroad was "evidently and inescapably a family affair, between capitalist rivals."

56,000 WPA Jobs Created in 11 States

Emphasizing that additional jobs created over the WPA's national quota were only temporary, Works Project Administrator F. C. Harrington yesterday authorized 56,000 "special" relief jobs in 11 States affected by floods and drought.

The additional jobs will be available for two months. States whose relief employment quotas were expanded were Alabama, 3,000; Florida, 4,000; Georgia, 4,000; Mississippi, 6,000; Arkansas, 3,000; Texas, 8,000; Oklahoma, 5,000; Kansas, 5,000; Nebraksa, 5,000; North Dakota, 5,000; South Dakota, 3,000.

Rothermere Says He Tried To Avert War

That Was His Purpose In Hitler Contacts, Publisher Testifies

By the Associated Press

London, Nov. 14.—Lord Rothermere declared today he had merely been "trying to prevent war between two peoples" in European political wire-pulling which involved communications with Adolf Hitler in letters adn through his "ambassadress."

The statement was made in closing evidence in the suit of Princess Stefanie Hohenlohe-Waldenburg against him for breach of contract under which she declares she was to receive about $20,000 a year as his spcial political representative.

Asked whether a letter he wrote Hitler suggested a course which "would have had most violent repercussions," the publisher replied "I don't think so," and said he was engaged then in trying to prevent war.

The letters context was undisclosed.

Hearing of the case, in which the princess described Rothermere as attempting to restore the Hohenzollern and Hapsburg monarchies, was adjourned until tomorrow.

3 Suspects Held In $3,500 Holdup Of Virginia Bank

Staunton, Va., Nov. 14 (AP).—Three young men charged with the holdup of a Stuarts Draft bank were held in the Augusta County Jail here today.

The men, arrested in Baltimore Saturday night, were listed as Charles L. Sloan, 25; Wilson Jacobs, 27, and Raymond Maloney, 26, all of Roanoke. They waived extradition and made the trip here yesterday.

The Peoples' Bank of Stuarts Draft was held up and robbed of approximately $3,500 by two unmasked bandits on October 31. Two employes were locked in the bank vault and the men escaped in a car which officers were told was driven by a third man.

Wheeler, Hayden Hit Tariff Cuts In Trade Program

Two Democratic Senators from the West—Wheeler, of Montana, and Hayden, of Arizona—Monday struck at proposals to lower tariff rates under the reciprocal trade agreements program.

Wheeler, a potential Presidential candidate, said he favored submission of all reciprocal trade pacts to Congress for ratification.

Hayden submitted a brief before the committee for reciprocity information assailing proposals to cut the duty on copper imports from Chile. The committee today will begin hearings on the projected Chilean agreement.

Coal Men Ask Pension Taxes Be Pay-as-You-Go

The National Coal Association proposed Monday that the Federal old-age retirement system be operated on a pay-as-you-go-basis and that States be allowed to reduce unemployment compensation payroll taxes.

The recommendations were forwarded by John D. Battle, executive secretary of the association, to John W. Hanes, Undersecretary of the Treasury.

The association said that the prospective increase in pay-roll taxes was a "deterrent to business expansion."

Society to Honor Ark. Educator

A reception and dance in honor of James W. Fullbright, new president of the University of Arkansas, will be held at 9:30 p. m. today at Wardman Park Hotel by the Arkansas State Society.

Other guests will include members of the university faculty. Arkansas Representatives in Congress also are expected to attend. Invitations have been extended to Dick Powell and Bob Burns, movie actors. Dr. Ervin H. Shinn is president of the society.

Duff Cooper Calls League's Failure A Great Tragedy

Special Dispatch to The Post

Staunton, Va., Nov. 14.—Alfred Duff Cooper, prominent British statesman and former first lord of the admiralty, speaking on "The Survival of Liberty" here last night under the auspices of Mary Baldwin College, expressed the opinion that the only hope for a future after the war in Europe is some form of European federation.

"The failure of the League of Nations is the great tragedy of modern times," the speaker commented. "But perhaps some good may come of it if people will learn the lessons that it teaches. . . .

"The only hope for a future after the conclusion of the war is some form of European federation. In order to make it work, the nations must be willing to give up some portion of their own sovereignty—just as an individual gives up some of his own independence by submitting himself to the laws of his own country."

Mr. Cooper was accompanied to Mary Baldwin by his wife, the former Lady Diana Manners. While in Staunton they were guests at Rose Terrace, the Jarman home.

After the lecture Dr. and Mrs. Jarman gave a reception honoring the Coopers. Their guests included the faculty, history majors and senior class of Mary Baldwin, and officials from nearby colleges and universities.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 14 (AP).—Reciprocal trade agreements among States for the regulation of motor vehicles was recommended by Representative Patrick H. Drewry, of Petersburg, in an address to 500 members of the Virginia Highway Users Association, Inc., here last night.

The Representative said that quarantine measures of some States had hampered free trade.

House Unit to See Defenses on Gulf

A special House naval subcommittee will leave here this morning on an aerial inspection trip of naval defenses on the Gulf of Mexico.

Headed by a World War naval flier who now represents the second Virginia District in Congress, Colgate W. Darden, jr., the seven-man group will visit the Naval Air Station, Pensacola, Fla., the closed navy yard at New Orleans, and a proposed site for a new naval air training center at Corpus Christi, Tex.

Those to make the trip include Rear Admiral John H. Towers, chief of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics, and Representatives Jacobsen, of Iowa; Bradley, of Pennsylvania; Griffith, of Louisiana; Fay, of New York; Cole, of New York; Bates of Massachusetts, and Hess, of Ohio, and Robert H. Harper, clerk of the House Naval Committee.

Ships Reshuffling Ahead, Says U. S. Aide

Old Point Comfort, Va., Nov. 14 (AP).—G. H. Helmbold, director of operations and traffic for the United States Maritime Commission, expressed hope last night that American ships might replace foreign vessels in trade lanes outside the prescribed war zones.

Addressing the Peninsula Chamber of Commerce, Helmbold said the enforcement of the neutrality act means a re-shuffling of the world merchant marine.

Virginian, 94, Dies In Farm Home Fire

Roanoke, Va., Nov. 14 (AP).—J. L. Jones, 94, was burned to death early this morning in a fire that destroyed his residence, south of Thaxton.

Jones was living with his daughter, Mrs. Ewell T. Ayers, who told Commonwealth's Attorney W. R. Saunders, of Bedford County, that she believed the fire caught from a stvoe in her father's bedroom.

Educator Scents Russ Plot in Athenia Sinking

Boston, Nov. 14 (AP).—The Rev. Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., vice president of Georgetown University, suggested last night that Russia might have been responsible for the sinking of the Athenia and the recent attempt on Hitler's life.

Asserting that "Soviet Russia never has abandoned her grandiose dreams of world revolution," the educator, addressing the Foreign Commerce Club of Boston, said Russia alone could have profited if the Athenia's loss had brought the United States into conflict with other nations.

The attempt on Hitler's life at Munich, Dr. Walsh declared, "argues that the presence of some secret organization intent upon removing the German Chancellor and thus paving the way for schism and confusion best adapted to Moscow's program."

Dr. Walsh, also regent of Georgetown's Foreign Service School, called Earl Browder, general secretary of the Communist Party in the United States, "Stalin's agent in the United States."

U. S. Indicts 40 Oil Firms In Price Fixing

Major Companies, 33 Independents Accused on Coast

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, Nov. 14.—A special Federal grand jury today indicted more than 40 oil companies on charges of consipiring to control the price of retail gasoline in violation of the Sherman antitrust act.

The indictments were returned after several months' investigation in which Federal prosecutors sought to determine the reason for the "remarkable stability" shown in gasoline prices for the past several years.

Joe Brill, Attorney General's assistant in charge of the inquiry, said the defendant companies controlled approximately 95 per cent of the gasoline sold along the Pacific slope.

Named as defendants are the Standard Oil Co. of California, the Texas Co., the General Petroleum Corporation of California, Richfield Oil Corporation, Shell Oil Co. of California, Tide Water-Associated Oil Co., Union Oil Co. of California, which comprise the so-called "major" concerns operating in this area, and 33 independent concerns.

The Government charged that as part of the conspiracy the defendants brought about the organization of two associations, one the Fair Practices Association, composed of the major and all but one of the secondary concerns, and the ndependent Refiners Association of California, nc., which consisted of one secondary company and a group of so-called independents.

The indictment set forth that in furtherance of the conspiracy, through a program of purchases by the major concerns of gasoline produced to eliminate competition. The Government contended that with the major companies making such purchases the independents agrood to maintain prices for the rest of their gasoline at or about the same level.

The indictment further charges that independent refiners were allotted fixed quotas which had the effect of limiting the amount of gasoline which each could produce.

Foreign Policy Organ Censored

Copyright by New York Times

Moscow, Nov. 14.—In the issue of Foreign Policy Reports, published by the Foreign Policy Association, Inc., dated New York, October 15, 1939, just received here, on page 191 almost the entire last column dealing with production in the Soviet Union in relation to its ability to supply Germany, has been completely blacked out.

It is always insisted that there is no censorship within the Soviet Union.

It would appear, therefore, that one of the belligerents is censoring printed matter sent from one neutral country to another, or that there is a secret and unacknowledged censorship here.

No indication appears on the envelope whether the censored issue came via Britain or Germany.

Retired Md. Pastor Fatally Stricken

Special Dispatch to The Post

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 14.—Dr. Roy Bird Cook, of Charleston, historian and president of the Weston Independent, was elected president of the West Virginia Newspaper Council at the closing business session of its annual meeting in Morgantown Saturday.

He succeeds Calvin Price, of Marlinton.

Mrs. Katherine McCoy Fisher, of Moorefield, was named vice president, and C. T. McHenry, Morgantown, business manager of the West Virginia Newspaper Publishing Co., was renamed secretary-treasurer.

400 Marines to Vie In Field Meet Today

Special Dispatch to The Post

Quantico, Va., Nov. 14.—Some 400 Marines today wound up practice, said their prayers and got set for tomorrow's military field meet on the post parade ground here.

There are 16 events on the day-lnog program. Most of them are of a military nature, such as a howitzer race and tank competition, but a few of the closing contests will be "pure" athletics, including a 100-yard dash and a 440 relay.

probably will be stricken from the measure before it comes up for hearing. They now receive $9,000.

Return of control of the municipal hospitals to the board of public welfare, as recommended by Seal, but disapproved by the other members of the Cabinet, does not have the full support of the Commissioners. Members of the Cabinet voting against this proposal were District Auditor Daniel J. Donovan, who would become director of finance under the new plan; Richmond B. Keech, vice chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, and Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways.

Promotion for Donovan

Proposal to abolish the Board of Tax Appeals, which was disapproved by Sefton Darr, president of the District Bar Association, also will prove a point of controversy among the Commissioners. When this same feature was recommended in the Griffenhagen report, both Commissioners Hazen and David McCoach, r., opposed it.

Transfer of the Department of Vehicles and Traffic to the Police Department was opposed by Capt. Whitehurst, Ma. Donovan and Keech voted to place the engineering functions of the traffic department under the proposed Department of Public Works; the licensing functions under the license department and the enforcing functions, as present, under the Police Department.

The new department of finance would include the present functions of the assessor, collector of taxes, budget officer, disbursing, purchasing and auditing departments. Maj. Donovan would receive this post and the Commissioners would appoint a new auditor.

Civil Service Included

The corporation counsel's office would be renamed department of law and the engineering department called the department of public works. The new director of public works would be directly under the Engineer Commissioner.

Creation of a District civil service commission, under a director of personnel, suggested in previous plans for revamping the District government, is included in the Seal plan.

Merger of the present Municipal and Police Courts, with one presiding judge, into a new City Court of the District of Columbia is another feature of the plan.

Citizens planning to present their views on reorganization were requested by the Commissioners to contact G. M. Thornett, secretary to the board, and state the time desired.

Roosevelt Laughs Off 1940 Query

expectations of either and run.

Those observers who believe he will not, attached no significance to his persistent evasion of the third term query. A declaration in the negative would weaken his influence in the convention and hinder any effort at least to name a successor. An affirmative announcement, on the other hand, would give Republicans the political ammunition they are looking for and split the briefly harmonious Democratic front beyond hope of preconvention repair.

Borah Won't Be Bound

The political tempest loosed by Garner's Armistice Day ending of the political armistice, continued to seethe yesterday with the following developments:

Senator Borah (Republican), of Idaho, served notice in effect of his right to vote Republican or Democratic, depending on the candidate, and took sharp exception to party loyalty views of Chairman John Hamilton of the Republican National Committee.

Republican National Committee headquarters denied that Chairman Hamilton in a speech here last week had attacked "independent voting" or viewed it as a threat to democracy. A spokesman said the stenographic record of the speech showed Hamilton said "it is a great thing that we should have a large independent vote in this country."

Gov. Lloyd C. Stark of Missouri, at Jefferson City, avoided any direct third term commitment but said he believed Missouri should send a delegation to the next Democratic national convention favorable "to President Roosevelt and his policies." Stark has announced as a candidate for the Senate against Senator Clark (Democrat), of Missouri, who has been mentioned as a possible Missouri "favorite son" nominee for President.

Merwin Browne Puts Query

Yesterday's indirect third-term query was put to the President by Merwin H. Browne, Washington correspondent for the Buffalo Evening News, after Garner managers had disclosed the Vice President's opposition and former Senator McAdoo of California had broadcast his support of another Roosevelt term.

The question has been asked by the President by various newsmen for more than two years, without any direct answer. When first posed in 1937, Mr. Roosevelt told his questioner to go off in the corner and put on the dunce cap. Similar answers were given for more than a year, but more recently the President either has not answered at all, or has smilingly changed the subject.

Yesterday's Republican National headquarters denial that Chairman Hamilton attacked independent voting or urged all Republicans to "vote the straight ticket" followed Borah's statement defending independent voting.

"I recognize," said Borah, "that Mr. Hamilton's view is the orthodox view, politically speaking, but I regard the independent voter as the real salvation of decent politics in this country.

"Under our system, it seems to me that we must have political parties, and parties inevitably trend toward centralization of political power and toward corruption. The only remedy there really is for the evils of the party system is the independent voter.

"In other words, it is the independent voter who tends to keep politics clean. It is the business of every political party to make such a record and to keep such a record as will win the independent vote."

Spokesmen at Republican national headquarters said Hamilton's views were misinterpreted in reports of his speech—that while he stressed that partisanship, party loyalty and party organizations were healthy and necessary, he was not questioning the individual voter's independence of choice. They said Hamilton emphasized that he had "no complaint" against independent voting.

As individual Republicans continued to express a strong preference for delaying the Republican national convention until after Democrats have made their 1940 choice, committee officials said no convention dates or cities would be discussed at the December meeting here of the Republican executive committee.

That decision will be left to the next meeting of the full Republican national committee early next year. Leading Republicans were reported particularly anxious that the G. O. P. convention follow the Democratic meeting if President Roosevelt fails to disavow third term intentions.

British to Let Nazi Cargoes Pass to U. S.

State Department Seeks Release of 11 Finnish Vessels

By Walter Fitzmaurice.

The British government has assured the United States that its warships for the presen will not molest German goods shipped in neutral vessels to American ports, it was learned last night.

Official sources, meanwhile, disclosed the State Department was pressing Germany to release 11 Finnish ships held in German Baltic ports with thousands of tons of Finnish wood pulp consigned to paper mills in the Middle West.

Germany, officials said, is seeking guarantees that the pulpwood will actually go to the paper mills and not to the British, Canadian or American munitions makers manufacturing explosives for the Allies.

Halifax Gives Promise

Officials disclosed the department requested the British assurances after American importers expressed anxiety lest goods they ordered in Germany might fall afoul of the British blockade.

In response to inquiries at the British foreign office by the American embassy, officials said, Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax gave the requested promise in substantially the following terms:

"His Majesty's government at the present time is interposing no interference with shipments from Germany to neutral ports in neutral vessels, except where such shipments include arms and munitions which might be transferred to German commerce raiders at sea."

The British declaration, officials asserted, in effect grants a lease on life to the export trade which provides Germany with foreign exchange.

Harm to Reich Seen

Administration quarters understand, however, that the British calculate the concession, while earning Britain the friendship of neutrals, will work to Germany's economic detriment.

Foreign exchange, an official pointed out, is of no use to a nation unless it gets delivery on the goods purchased therewith. The British blockade permits only a thin trickle of goods into Germany.

The official said the British, accordingly, reason that the more Germany exports without compensatory imports, the sooner the Reich will reach exhaustion.

This government, he indicated, would have preferred a British pledge covering future as well as present policy. He said the department realized that war exigencies made future commitments difficult for belligerents.

Germany, no less than the United States, desires a continuance of its exports to this country, officials said. They professed to have no knowledge of the reasons underlying the German position, but semiofficial German quarters said "you may be sure we are not being hoodwinked by the British."

Dollar exchange, a German source pointed out, will procure Germany supplies from Russia, Italy, Scandinavia and the Balkans.

Confirming the controversy over the Finnish ships, a German spokesman disclosed that the Reich, within the past week, upon United States representations, released one Estonian and two Finnish freighters.

The others, he said, will be freed "immediately upon receipt of assurances the cargoes will be used as represented."

Second Nazi Propaganda Letters Hit D. C.

Indications that German propagandists are cooperating with a Washington agent in distributing literature accusing Britain of war "atrocities" were strengthened yesterday with a second flood of propaganda letters into the District.

The letters, postmarked Berlin and Darmstadt, charged the Athenia was sunk by three British destroyers on orders of "the criminally minded Mr. Churchill."

Among Washington recipients were several members of the American Legion, who expressed indignation at being selected as marks for the propaganda.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation reported several telephone complaints from Washington recipients of the literature. However, an investigation has not been started.

Last week, residents of Washington, New York, Philadelphia and townships in New Jersey received letters from Berlin alleging poison gas had been supplied Polish troops by the British and used against German forces.

At the time, District recipients were puzzled as to how their names and addresses had been obtained. Several letters went to addresses not now listed in the city directory or telephone book.

Literature arriving yesterday quoted a story in a Washington newspaper relating declarations by Gustav Anderson, Athenia passenger, that the liner was armed.

Guedalla Believes Nazis Will Meet A Swift Defeat

Copyright by New York Times

New York, Nov. 14.—Philip Guedalla, British historian, said on his arrival on the Grace liner Santa Lucia today that the struggle in Europe was nothing more than the last hundred days of the World War and that the aggressor today is "the same Germany in fancy dress, with a mustache that turns down this time instead of up."

"This is the return of the Imperial Germany from Alba," he declared, "and it is going to have a quick exit to St. Helena, or perhaps just the first syllable of it. There is no doubt that we will win. The Allied backdoor opens to the food supplies of the world and the German backdoor opens on the Communists. You get a better breakfast with food in the kitchen than you do with Communists."

Steel Prices On West Coast Called Unfair

Consumer Expresses Grievances Before Monopoly Inquiry

By John B. Oakes

A complaint that the Nation's two largest steel manufacturers practice price discrimination against the West Coast was voiced before the Monopoly Committee yesterday by a representative of steel consumers in the Pacific States.

The witness, T. A. L. Loretz, general manager of the Pacific Coast Steel Fabricators Association, asserted that steel prices in California, Oregon and Washington are based not on cost of production in the West but on the Eastern price of steel, plus transportation charges.

Naming the United States Steel Corporation and the Bethlehem Steel Corporation as the offenders, Loretz said that Eastern prices, plus transportation, are charged on the Pacific even though some of the steel is actually manufactured at West Coast plants.

Prices Only Quarrel

However, in answer to a question of Isador Lubin, Commissioner of Labor Statitics, Loretz said "I would'nt say I'd like to see additional capital employed on the Pacific to set up new plants that would relate their prices to actual West Coast manufacturing costs.

"Our relations with Bethlehem and United States Steel have generally been very pleasant," he said. "Our only quarrel is that prices are not based on cost."

The witness, who said his association consisted of about 25 independent steel fabricators, admitted he had "no suggestion as to how the steel companies could be prevailed upon" to make a more satisfactory price.

Complains of Rail Rates

He said Pacific Coast fabricators, handicapped by the disproprotionate steel price, were able to obtain only 27 per cent of Pacific Coast business in the 18 months ended June 30, while fabricating subsidiaries of United States Steel and Bethlehem cornered more than 65 per cent.

Besides the steel corporations' failure to take into account the allegedly lower costs of their Pacific Coast mills, Loretz complained of a system of railroda rates referred to as "F. I. T." (fabrication in transit).

The F. I. T. system, he said, permits steel that is manufactured in Chicago, for example, and shipped to Birmingham for fabrication, to be sold for less in Phoenix, Ariz., than steel manufactured and fabricated in Los Angeles, which is about 1,800 miles neraer Phoenix than Birmingham.

Henderson Makes Dig

Still another grievance voiced by Loretz is the "land grant" rate system, whereby "land grant" railroads charge Government shipments a rate much lower than normal. The transportation bill pending in Congress would abolish "land grant" rates, he said. The bill also deals with F. I. T., he said.

Earlier in the day, Securities and Exchange Commissioner Leon Henderson suggested that one witness who was unable to recall certain matters might be suffering from "fallen arches in the medulla oblongata."

Henderson's dig followed vain efforts to obtain from Francis H. Gibson, South Chester Tube Co. district sales manager, the source of some information in a memorandum he sent to his home office.

Attorney Protests

"I object very strongly to this use" of the memorandum and other confidential letters taken from the company's files, George W. Whitney, company attorney, protested.

Gibson's memorandum implied that other tube manufacturers were attempting to induce the National Tube Co., United States Steel subsidiary, not to quote tubing prices that threatened to put the others at least partially out of business.

Gibson said the information he transmitted to his home office from Pittsburgh contained "gossip and rumors among the trade." But John E. Goble, vice president of National Tube, asserted that his company had "not found it necessary to confer with its competitors in conducting its business."

information for illegal purposes."

The district attorney termed the development "a clear-cut victory for the Department of Justice in its effort to rid the Nation of a vast illegal combine to violate Federal and State laws."

State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney commented:

"This marks the end of the biggest racket in the country."

Annenberg's counsel issued a statement saying the action was "not to be taken as any indication that the business is considered by Mr. Annenberg or his counsel to be in any way illegal."

One attorney figured "hundreds" of employes would lose their jobs. He declined to estimate how much revenue would be lost. An affidavit filed by the district attorney recently averred the Annenberg interests had collected $7,724,531 from "bookies and gamblers" in the Chicago area alone in the 1933-36 period.

The voluntary decision came in the midst of a joint move by Campbell and Courtney to deprive the network of wires. They recently demanded that the A. T. & T. Western Union and the Illinois Bell Telephone Co. break contracts with the Annenberg agencies.

Illinois Bell withdrew leased wires from the State unit of the company last Thursday. The other communications companies agreed to take similar action but compliance was delayed pending a Federal court ruling on a petition filed by Annenberg's attorneys for an injunction to compel them to continue service. Campbell said Kirkland told them he would ask for dismissal of the suits tomorrow.

Bookies Get Returns Late

Suspension of Nation-wide service would impose upon the bookies the problem of finding new means of obtaining information vital to their business—or closing their doors.

Illinois bookmakers have continued to operate with sketchy and tardy returns from the tracks.

The announcement of Nationwide News' suspension was made on the eve of scheduled arraignment in Federal Court tomorrow of Annenberg and 19 associates and others named in a series of 10 indictments last August.

The charges included income tax evasion and conspiracy to violate the lottery law.

The lottery case formed the legal basis of prosecutors' demands that the wire companies cease serving the Annenberg network. They contended the bookies conducted de facto lottery schemes and that Nation-wide News and the communications firms were accessories perforce.

D. C. Bookies Not to Suffer

Washington5s racetrack bookies will be only slightly inconvenienced by dissolution of the Nation-wide News Service Co., largest racing information system in the country, it was learned last night.

The bookies were quick to point out that they've been doing well enough without Annenberg's service since early in 1937 when the telephone company ordered a ban on leasing of wires for betting brokers here. Washington's bookies, mostly of the curbstone variety, will still be able to get race results from the flashes broadcast daily by Station WOL just as any horse fan or better can, and without cost.

President William Dolph, of WOL, said last night the station was getting its racing results from a daily scratch sheet which publishes information for the individual bettor.

Follow D. C. Method

At the district attorney's office an official indicated that the Federal authorities in Chicago had taken action similar to that used in the District two years ago in breaking up the dissemination of betting information to regular brokers and gambling houses.

United States prosecutors stepped into the District horse race gambling picture during a struggle for domination between an Annenberg subsidiary and a direct service operated by local gamblers. The services were warned by the district attorney's office that they were aiding and abetting gambling and would be prosecuted if their activities were not halted. The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. also was warned against leasing of its wires to the services. The telephone company compiled, automatically breaking up the network system of distributing race results to tuned-in subscribers.

Inter-American Neutrality Unit To Meet Today

Only First Session of Economic Advisory Group to Be Public

Government officials and members of the Diplomatic Corps will attend the opening session today of the Inter-American Financial and Economic Advisory Committee, created at the Panama neutrality conference to work out measures for cushioning the economy of American republics against war.

The committee, which will meet in the Hall of Americas of the Pan-American Union, will function for duration of the war.

At a preliminary meeting yesterday, Undersecretary of State Welles tentatively was chosen permanent chairman, and Dr. Don Esteban Jaramillo, former Colombian minister of finance, permanent vice chairman. Guillermo A. Suro, of the staff of the Pan-American Union, was named secretary general.

The session today will be the only public meeting. The committee will transact its business privately, beginning tomorrow morning.

Guatemalan Urges Action

Guatemala City, Nov. 14 (AP).—Guatemala's finance minister, Jose Gonzales Camp, today urged action to defend the economy of the Western Hemisphere against the shock of European war, in welcoming delegates to the first Pan-American conference of Treasury Department representatives.

Gonzalez Campo, nominated by the United States, was elected permanent president of the conference at which 18 nations are represented.

He outlined objectives of the conference asserting that as a result of the European war, the following were needed as "immediate general defense measures":

"New and easier means of communication, that we may know each other more intimately and overcome the great distances that separate but do not divide us."

"A flexible, united banking organization for the intensification of credit."

"Gradual disappearance of barriers to the exchange of our products, which has become indispensible."

"Creation of a continental spirit taat today, more than ever, is needed because of the conflict in the Old World, which is disorganizing a part of our economy and which is closing some of our markets."

Bristol, Va., Nov. 14 (AP).—The pilot of an American Airlines passenger plane was credited today with saving the lives of four persons by flying low over a farmhouse threatened by fire as the occupants slept.

Henry Seneker, elderly farmer of Reedy Creek road, 8 miles from Bristol, was awakened at 2:30 a. m. by the roar of the plane's engines, and looking from his bedroom window, saw his barn enveloped in flames and the fire spreading through grass to the house.

Seneker awakened his three daughters and with their help was able to save the house. The barn, with ten cows and a horse, was destroyed.

War Sidetracks Train Brought to U. S. for Exhibit

Baltimore, Nov. 14 (AP).—The European war appears to have sidetracked Britain's crack train, the "Coronation Scot," 3,000 miles from home.

The luxurious train, which began a 3,100-mile tour here before going to the New York World's Fair, has returned to its starting point and may remain in Baltimore indefinitely.

Shipping circles said the steamer Belpamela, which brought the "Scot" across the Atlantic, was busy elsewhere and expressed belief other locomotive-carrying vessels were too occupied with war duties for Great Britain to take the train home.

The "Scot" is being dismantled and stored at the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad's Mount Clare shops.

The caption above the picture is part of the club song, "Carry On," which continues . . . "Ah, that's the club's deep mystery!"

One hundred Washington men who escaped German bullets in the World War are waiting for each other to die, and enjoying the delay.

They are members of the Last Man Club of Washington, Inc., who number in their midst a Senator, four Representatives and many prominent Government officials.

Last night they met at the Fairfax Hotel, closed their membership list and settled down for the long wait that will last as long as the last man lives.

At a banquet every February 15, the outgoing president of the club will pass on to the new chief a "long-necked oval bottle" of Italian chianti wine with the admonition: "Whatever you do, return it one year hence, intact and unopened, lest the wrath of your comrades fall upon your head and a curse be placed on you forever."

According to the constitution of the club, the ceremony is to continue each year until but one man is left. He is to drink the wine in a toast to his departed comrades.

The organization, modeled on the Last Man Club of Civil War Veterans, numbers in its midst Senator Gillette, of Iowa, and Representatives Tenerowicz, of Michigan; Youngdahl, of Minnesota, and Bolles, of Wisconsin.

President of the club this year is Maj. Gen. Ames A. Fries, U. S. A., retired, former chief of the Army Chemical Warfare Service. Ages of members range from 38 to 66 years. So far there hasn't been a casualty.

At the meeting yesterday plans were considered for leaving something more substantial than the bottle of wine for the last man. If present ideas are carired out he will have several thousand dollars in insurance to make his last days comfortable as he ponders the whereabounts of the other 99.

Trade Boom Is Forecast For Christmas

Long Shopping Period, Employment Increase Among Factors

By Cecil B. Dickson

Improved economic conditions throughout the country yesterday prompted Government business forecasters to predict a Christmas trade boom that will rival predepression years.

Indications of the trend already are apparent to the experts. In addition, they cited that both shoppers and merchants will have a four-week pre-Christmas shopping period, instead of the usual three weeks.

The longer shopping period was brought about by President Roosevelts' advancement of Thanksgiving Day.

Government economists said this would start the Christmas buying in a big way on November 25 ,and would increase the volume of trade by millions.

Employment Is Up

Factors that prompted the prediction were cited as follows:

Employment in industry and commerce has increased by 1,250,000 over the corresponding period of last year.

Pay rolls are fatter than they have been in many years.

Corporations are splitting more melons than in years, in the form of dividends.

Federal receipts from excise levies are far ahead of last year, indicating liberal buying of luxuries and nonessentials.

Steel plants are operating near capacity.

Railroads are enjoying the biggest traffic since the depression, except for short periods.

Department store sales throughout the country are running from 10 to 20 per cent above the volume a year ago. Buying in wholesale markets for the Christmas trade is reported heavy.

Rural Purchases to Lag

While the Government experts admitted there will be little buying of Christmas yachts, there will be plenty of purchases of automobiiles, furs, radios, furniture and similar goods, they said.

Most of the Christmas business is expected this year in the industrial centers. In the last few years, farm sections, which received huge direct benefits from the Government, contributed heavily to Christmas buying. While rural purchases are expected to be good, they are due to fall far below those in manufacturing areas.

Coal mining regions also are expected to contribute heavily to holiday trade. Most of the mines are operating with full forces, some paying the miners overtime.

Lumber producing sections, which have experienced heavy buying throughout the fall months, are reported ready to spend freely.

While the experts said it was "still a little early" to forecast the total volume of Christmas trade, they said all indications pointed to "boom-time proportions."

Peirce's work is distinguished by its exuberance and playfulness. He was born in Bangor, Me., in 1884. Sawyer, who resides in Billings, Mont., executed a plate of the passenger pigeon for the Audubon Society, and was subsequently employed by Cornell University to do a series of bird prints.

In the postoffice competition, one postoffice was selected in each State for a mural averaging 4 by 12 feet. The sketches on exhibit at the Corcoran are drawings which give an idea in miniature of what the murals would be like.

Ex-Policeman Faces Long Term

Clarence D. Cunningham, former policeman, last night faced 5 to 25 years in prison and a $25,000 fine for sending obscene letters to a former girl friend and to her husband.

Cunningham was dismissed from the Metropolitan Police five years ago, after ten years service. After he and the girl were estranged, she married another man.

The former policeman took the stand in his own defense, before Justice Gordon in the District Court, and denied that he knew he was violating the law. Assistant District Attorney Heflin prosecuted Cunningham.

Wagner Plan to Sell Federal Annuities to Anyone Reported

Program Understood to Have Been Given To Roosevelt; Monthly Payments to Recipients Would Run Up to $100

By the Associated Press

A proposed expansion of the Social Security program so that individuals could buy annuities from the Government paying up to $100 a month at maturity has been submitted to President Roosevelt.

Senator Wagner (Democrat), of New York, sponsor of social security legislation, was said reliably yesterday to have discussed the annuity proposal with Mr. Roosevelt at a White House conference.

How the Plan Works

Details of the Wagner plan remain to be worked out, but well-informed sources said it would provide:

1. That any citizen could buy an anuity "in surance policy" providing up to $100 a month from the Government at a cost 30 per cent less that he would have to pay a private insurance company.

2. That annuities be sold through postoffices in the same manner that postal savings and baby bonds are handled.

Wagner told reporters he had been advised by one insurance official that such an annuity program would do little harm to the private insurance business. Insurance companies, the Senator added, are interested primarily in annuities paying more than $100 a month.

Recommendation Possible

Wagner is expected to propose the new plan shortly after Congress convenes in January. It was considered possible in some quarters that Mr. Roosevelt might recommend it in his annual message on the state of the Nation.

I addition to the annuity plan, the Administration also may seek a general expansion of the social security program to bring in selfemployed workers, domestic help and agricultural employes.

Such workers are not covered now by the old-age insurance provisions of the law, under which employers and employes are each taxed 1 per cent on salaries and wages. Starting next year, annuities will be paid from this fund to those who retire at 65.

10 Million Eligibles

Wagner estimated that expansion of the existing program to the three additional classes of workers would affect about 10,000,000 persons. He said that many persons now exempt are demanding that they be permitted to participate.

Wagner also will work at the next session for enactment of his Federal health program, under which the Government would help States build hospitals and operate public health services. The program woul dstart with a $90,000,000 Feneral appropriation.

FCC Group Suggests Ads By Television

Limited Sponsorship To Pay for Experiment; Exploitation Feared

By James D. Secrest

A limited form of program sponsorship and a general liberalization of rules governing television operations was recommended yesterday by a special committee of the Federal Communications Commission in its second report this year.

Proposing two classes of visual broadcasting stations, the committee submitted a tentative allocation plan under which Washington would be entitled to two television outlets.

Craven Disappointed'

The committee, of which Commander T. A. M. Craven is chairman, warned against exploitation of the new industry, expressed disappointment over the slow public response but at the same time pointed out that because of the "blackout" of television abroad, the United States has an opportunity to get a foothold on potential world trade.

FCC officials described the committee's recommendations as giving the "amber light" rather than the "green light" to television. Fewer than 1,000 sets have been sold in New York, largely because of their cost.

Radio manufacturers who have entered the field have found that television programs are far more expensive than those for radio, running as high as $15,000 for a 12-hour week service. They consequently have informed the FCC that unless they obtained some relief they could no longer continue the experimentation.

The committee viewed as dangerous to the public complete commercialization of television, as some of the manufacturers wished, but proposed revised rules which would permit advertisers to sponsor visual broadcasts by bearing the expense. Television station owners would continue to pay for the operation without direct recompense.

Exploitation Feared

Besides fearing exploitation once the experimental cloak is removed, the FCC committee said the public must be protected against too rapid obsolescense of receivers.

It declared that a wholesale distribution of receivers at this time might retard rther than accelerate the development.

Pointing out that only three stations are now carrying regular scheduled visual programs, the committee's report, if approved by the full commission, would pave the way for widespread construction of additional stations. Sixteen applications are now awaiting action, and others are anticipated.

The committee proposed that the seven lower frequency channels be distributed among cities in proportion to population. Cities of 1,000,000 or more inhabitants would be entitled to three channels, those of between 500,000 and 1,000,000 two channels, and those of fewer than 500,000 one channel.

While television transmissions occupy 600 times the ether space of broadcasting stations, they could be used by numerous communities providing they are properly spaced and restricted in power and antenna height.

The FCC report, while giving a boost to the infant television industry, warns against excessive optimism either among manufacturers or the public."

Burditt W. Ashton, 2, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Ashton, 1101 East Capitol street, won the baby show held yesterday at the Food Show. He was a hero to Ora Mae Carver, runner-up, just his age. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Carver, 1728 Minnesota avenue southeast

Women learned how to fix quicker foods and men learned how to trim women's hats in the mixture of information and comedy at the food show at 1242 Twenty-fourth street northwest last night.

A crowd, estimated at more than 2,000 thronged the 50 booths in the exhibition under the auspices of District Grocery Stores. Foods that made it easy to visualize a gala Thanksgiving dinner and more festive everyday fare were arrayed for the crowd's tour.

The surprise stunt on the evening program was a hat-trimming contest among a group of men. Each masculine contestant was given a plain hat, which was deposited on a slightly skeptical feminine head. Then he had to anchor a bagful of trimmings in the most artistic manner on the hat, while the face underneath grew even more skeptical.

Each afternoon and evening of the show, which continues through Saturday, prizes for the home are being awarded, along with surprise stunts on the stage.

One of the major awards yesterday was the Mixmaster, which was won by Mrs. Eleanor Jenkins, 2132 H street northwest.

The popularity contest in the baby parade held at 4 p. m. daily was captured by 2-year-old Burditt Ashton, of 1101 East Capitol street yesterday. The audience's applause determines the winner of the $3 in this event.

Among the new food products on display was a quick "cake mix" with all the ingredients in one package—and with only water to be added. To top it off, there's a new frosting "mix" which requires only three minutes' cooking.

The show is open each day through Saturday from 2 to 5 p. m. and from 7:30 to 10 p. m.

Annapolis School Declared Unsafe By Fire Marshal

Annapolis, Nov. 14 (AP).—Jesse Fisher, fire marshal, told the city council he would seek to have the State insurance department institute legal action to prevent use of the third floor of the colored grammar school unless safety devices are installed.

The school is now under construction after a fire which destroyed the upper section October 3. Classes were not in session when that fire occurred.

Fisher's blast at safety conditions in the grammar school was included in his annual report on inspection of public buildings. He also found fault with unmarked exits in the white grammar school, and held there were some minor safety improvements yet to be made there.

The city council voted to defer action on the colored grammar school until the city engineer obtains plans from the supervising architect for study by the council.

D. A. R. Chapter Unveils Marker For John Carr

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 14.—A marker to John Carr, commemorating his Revolutionary service, was dedicated yesterday at the November meeting of the Jack Jouett Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. The dedication took place on the lawn of his old home, The Riggory, on the Stony Point road, now the property of Peter Minor.

Mrs. Arthur Pegau, regent of the chapter, presided at the exercises, and Mrs. Robert Wallace Parker, of Washington, great-great-great-grand-daughter of the Revolutionary patriot, unveiled the marker.

Mrs. Bruce Reynolds, of the University of Virginia, introduced the speaker, Dr. Francis Lee Thurman, of Buena Vista, Va., who gave a sketch of the Carr family. Sir Thomas Carr, with his wife, Mary Garland, came to Virginia from Scotland in 1680 and lived at Topping Castle, Caroline County. He had four sons, Maj. Thomas, William, Robert and John.

State Acts Asked To Complement U. S. Wage Law

Conference, Represents 39 Governors, Would Offset 'Evading Devices'

By the United Press

State laws are urgently needed to supplement the Federal wage-hour statute, the sixth National Conference on Labor Legislation reported yesterday.

The conference, representing Governors of 39 States, unanimously recommended supplemental legislation by States to offset "corporate devices" used to "evade" the Federal law. It urged drafters of laws to consider the plight of professional workers and State, county and municipal employes not now included.

The report of the conference's wage-hour committee, headed by Illinois State Labor Director Martin P. Durkin, was adopted with little discussion.

Renewed efforts to obtain ratification of the child labor amendment to the Federal Constitution were recommended in another report adopted without dissent.

Other conference recommendations:

Establishment of a 16-year age minimum for child labor; double workmen's compensation for minors injured when working under the age minimum; establishment of a joint congressional and Federal administrative committee to conduct a "searching study" of migratory farm labor conditions and child labor in agriculture and industry; enactment of State and Federal legislation to hasten abolition of industrial work in homes.

Moncure Indicted For Belated Filing Of County Books

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 14 (AP). R. C. L. Moncure, Stafford County commissioner of revenue for 12 years, was under indictment today for failure to file the county assessment books by September 1 as required by law.

Moncure, a Democrat, was re-elected for a new term last Tuesday by a majority of 80 votes over Ryland Meflin, his Republican opponent.

The indictment returned in Stafford Circuit Court yesterday charges Moncure with "unlawfully failing" to deliver the property assessment books and "inconveniencing the public."

Judge Frederick W. Coleman ordered Moncure to appear for trial January 8.

After the deadline for filing the assessment books the board of supervisors cited Moncure giving him a few days additional time for delivery without penalty which the board could order. The books were handed in by Moncure shortly thereafter.

Positive Neutrality

It was not mere coincidence that the most important war news yesterday came from none of the belligerent countries but, in each of three separate cases, from neutral nations whose rights and interests are deeply affected by the struggle.

There was, in the first place, the protest to the Department of State by the Minister of Ireland, Mr. Brennan, against the inclusion of his neutral nation in the combat area which is now banned by our own self-denying ordinance to the shipping of the United States—another neutral nation.

There was also the breaking off of the Russo-Finnish negotiations in Moscow, whereby the Soviet, at least ostensibly a neutral, has sought to bring pressure on the neutral Finns to surrender strategic territory. In these negotiations three other neutrals, Sweden, Norway and Denmark, have been vitally interested to the extent of tacitly backing Finland's stand. There was, in addition, the broadcast by Premier de Geer of the Netherlands, saying that while rumors of an impending attack on that neutral country are exaggerated, the Dutch mobilization must nevertheless "adjust itself to the intensity of pressure which occurs near our frontiers." And "if there is to be a dawn for Europe," he added, "it must come from the neutral countries."

In these instances, as in many others that could be cited, there is evidence of the way the strains of this war are bearing down on nations which have no responsibility for its origin, and which have nothing but anxiety to expect from its operations. Such strains are in many cases close to intolerable. They emphasize the contention that, in large-scale modern warfare, neutrality, as a doctrine of indifference, has become impossible.

As this realization spreads, a sense of the community of interest between the neutral nations is bound to grow. It already is apparent in the tendency of the Scandinavian states to construct a joint foreign policy. It is apparent in the growth of cooperative action among the Balkan countries. It is apparent in the active leadership the United States is giving to the cause of Pan-American unity.

These groupings of neutrals, in defense of their own interests, are at present only regional in scope. But concerted action to limit and restrict belligerency will be increasingly advocated as it becomes clear that all countries which are at peace have a common interest in maintaining peace.

Taken together, the many nations eager to avoid hostilities are always more powerful than the few which are willing to stake everything on the dice of war. The problem of world order is largely a problem of securing that form of organization in which the will of the majority, in this fundamental respect, can prevail.

Peace, as Premier Briand of France said years ago, is indivisible. Recognition of this among the neutral nations is growing, and as it grows may well make further wars less likely.

Organized Consultation

The meeting here today of the Inter-American Financial and Economic Advisory Committee has a potential significance far beyond the specific problems which this body of experts from the 21 American republics is called upon to consider.

The war in Europe has raised many difficult questions for the nations of this hemisphere. There is, as Undersecretary of State Welles pointed out the other night, the problem of how these nations "could best, through common endeavor, and through practical forms of cooperation, maintain unimpaired their normal inter-American economic and commercial life during the continuation of the war."

It will be the task of the advisory committee, under mandate of the recent Panama conference, to consider this problem and, so far as possible, to act upon it. But more is involved in their deliberations than ways and means of cushioning the impact on the Americas of the evil effects of an overseas conflict.

Success in this endeavor would be of real benefit to the nations of the New World. But it will prove of even greater importance, from the long-range point of view, if the labors of this advisory committee constitute a new and important milestone on the road to thoroughgoing inter-American cooperation.

There is as yet no formally organized American League of Nations. But the readiness of the 21 New World republics to undertake continuous consultation, a readiness demonstrated by the creation of the financial and economic advisory committee, which is to continue in existence for the duration of the war, indicates that the basis of such a cooperative system has already been laid.

The Reorganization Bill

The District reorganization bill prepared for the Board of Commissioners will be a disappointment to many who had hoped for a more sweeping overhauling of the local government. Nevertheless, it contains many of the specific reforms repeatedly advocated by Washington's civic groups.

In examining the details of the measure drafted by Corporation Counsel Seal citizens will be struck by its similarity in many respects to the Kennedy bill, based on the recommendations of Griffenhagen and associates. Both provide for departmentalization of the local government; both would create a civil service system for Washington; both would enlarge the powers of the local governing body, and both would give the District a new budgetary system. But these similarities do not minimize the sharp differences between the two plans in certain vital particulars.

Representative Kennedy, chairman of the House Committee on District Reorganization, complains that the local authorities have failed to comply with instructions in developing an entirely new plan. The committee had asked for a critique of the Griffenhagen proposals. A set of amendments to the Kennedy bill would probably have facilitated the work of the committee. But the proposed new bill serves the purpose of unifying the views of local officials, and that appears to have been the basic purpose of asking them to study the matter.

Adoption of the Seal bill would certainly give Washington a better government than it has now. Consequently, it ought to be supported if more far-reaching changes appear unattainable. In taking that position, however, it is also necessary to recognize the obvious weaknesses of the measure.

The committee headed by Mr. Seal believes that the Commissioners should have power "to enact reasonable regulations to secure and promote the general welfare of the inhabitants of the District"—regulations deemed essential to "the safety, health, peace, good order, comfort, convenience and morals of the District." Apparently this provision is an attempt to confer upon the local governing body general municipal authority. But that purpose is defeated by the failure to include control of Washington's purse strings in the more specific grants of power.

No genuine local government can be set up so long as Congress retains the spending and taxing powers. Here is the fatal defect of the bill. It would correct numerous weak points in the present hodgepodge structure of local government. Yet it falls short of creating municipal machinery that can act in the interests of the community without waiting for the ponderous wheels of the National Legislature to turn.

One other weakness is the effort to devise a substitute for the city manager proposed by the Griffenhagen report. The new plan calls for an administrative assistant to the Commissioners. It is difficult to see where that official would fit into a departmentalized commission system. No doubt the Commissioners would continue to divide the responsibility of supervising the various departments. If so, that would seem to leave the proposed administrative assistant in the position of a dignified office boy.

The public should have ample opportunity to study this bill, whether the hearings are held by the Commissioners or the Kennedy committee. Most of the proposals can be heartily approved. It is nevertheless obvious that in some vital particulars they can also be greatly improved.

Our Own Trade Barriers

The decision of the Supreme Court in the Ziffrin case emphasizes once more the difficulties in wiping out trade barriers between the States. It can no longer be accurately said that the Constitution forbids the States to levy import duties on every product shipped across their borders. In the language of the court, "the twenty-first amendment sanctions the right of a State to legislate concerning intoxicating liquors brought from without, unfettered by the commerce clause."

Under this amendment the States may erect impassable barriers against all intoxicants, not only to prevent the consumption of liquor but also to protect their home distilling and brewing industries. Only their sense of self-restraint, or their fear of reprisals on the part of other States, is likely to dissuade State legislatures from building "spite fences" against liquor industries outside their own borders.

Of course, this particular loophole in the interstate commerce clause permits interference with free trade among the States only so far as intoxicants are concerned. But the States have found numerous other ways by which products from other parts of the country can be barred. Some use their taxing powers for this purpose. Others pass drastic inspection laws that serve to minimize competition as well as to prevent the spread of plant diseases. Control over traffic may also be an effective obstacle to the free flow of interstate commerce.

The only encouraging note in this trend is the growing awareness of its dangers. Numerous articles on the subject have been written in recent months. Deserving mention is a pamphlet entitled "State Trade Walls," by F. Eugene Melder, recently published by the Public Affairs Committee. Mr. Melder notes a definite tendency on the part of State legislatures to "put on the brakes" against legislation blocking trade across State boundaries. Determined efforts are also being made to modify restrictive laws already on the books.

Mr. Melder puts the problem of removing local trade barriers squarely up to the States. He mentions the practice of adopting uniform laws, and interstate compacts, as useful means of settling differences between State governments. "If the States muff their chance by refusing to act, ultimately the Federal Government," he reasonably predicts, "will be forced to act in the interest of national welfare and at the cost of States' 'rights.'"

Apostle Of Democracy

In laying the cornerstone of the Thomas Jefferson Memorial this afternoon, President Roosevelt will be paying tribute to a great predecessor in that office and to one of America's greatest political philosophers. But he will also be participating in an act of rededication and consecration of profound significance to our troubled times.

Democracy was a frail and feeble plant when Jefferson was alive. Even among the fathers of the Republic there was no unanimity regarding the capacity of the people to rule themselves. And outside the United States, governments almost everywhere were in the hands of despots.

Over a large part of the world that is now, unhappily, true again. Even in countries which over a long period have clung tenaciously to the gospel of freedom, the continued existence of democratic institutions is by no means certain. To preserve their national independence many of the remaining democracies have found it necessary in greater or lesser measure to suspend individual rights. There is no certainty when, or whether, the liberties thus curtailed will be restored.

The outlook for democracy was just as gloomy in Jefferson's day. But that never caused him to falter in his belief in the supreme capacity of men to govern themselves. "We both consider the people as our children," he wrote to Dupont de Nemours, "But you love them as infants whom you are afraid to trust without nurses, and I as adults whom I freely leave to self-government."

Democracy, as Jefferson saw it, was not merely a body of principles arising out of what he deemed the inalienable rights of man. It was also a doctrine firmly founded in reason. That is why many of his arguments have so great a contemporary appeal. Long before Hitler was born he saw the tragic fallacy of the Fuehrer principle. Long before the rise of the Fascists, Nazis and Communists he exposed the tragic consequences of dictatorship. "The sheep," he said, "are happier of themselves than under the care of wolves."

Once again the world is passing through times which try men's souls. Recent years have seen a weakening in the belief in democracy. Many have declared that its day is done. To these skeptics and scoffers, to such timid or deluded souls, Jefferson provides many effective answers. As he wrote to De Meunier 153 years ago:

"Sometimes it is said that man cannot be trusted with the government of himself. Can he, then, be trusted with the government of others? Or have we found angels in the form of kings to govern him? Let his history answer this question."

The memorial which is being erected in Washington in honor of Thomas Jefferson is a worthy recognition of the tremendous stature of a man who, more clearly and cogently than any of his contemporaries, expressed the democratic ideal. In honoring him the American people are paying more than a formal obeisance to a great national figure. They are also giving notice that the lamps of liberty which Jefferson helped to kindle are still burning brightly here.

"Something About A Soldier"

Philip Schrankel in "Our Army"

It has been said that a soldier's life in time of peace is similar to the life of a monk sans the religious trimmings. This is only true insofar as both live without the company of women, which may or may not constitute the detriment it is generally assumed to be—neither can point with alarm to records of casualties attributable to this cause.

It has also been asserted that a tremendous amount of subversive political propaganda, communistic, fascistic, etc., is being disseminated by subtle methods among the rank and file; beauteous damsels slipping "Das Kapital" and "Mein Kampf" into soldiers' unsuspecting pockets, and like far-fetched peccadillos.

The most inflammatory piece of political literature I have ever encountered during my service in Hawaii, Panama, Washington, D. C., Fort Sheridan, Ill., and Madison Barracks, N. Y., on four different Army transport ships and in the Overseas Discharge and Replacement Depots at Brooklyn, N. Y., and Fort McDowell, Calif., was a badly soiled front page of the Saturday Evening Post in the grimy hand of a Japanese fisherman using it to wrap up fish.

'That Old Rug'

When, under the tutelage of Sidi Taib, I had advanced sufficiently in the knowledge of Arabic and in the technique of bargaining, I decided to strike out on my own, test my newly acquired wisdom, and buy a rug, all without any assistance from my mentor. Sidi Taib, although the kindest soul in Fez, was a bit high-handed on our shopping expeditions, tending to disregard my preferences and commit me to the purchase of things which pleased his eye rather than mine.

I laid the groundwork for my campaign by walking through the Rug-Sellers' Market every day and exchanging salutations with the merchants there, all the while keeping my eyes open for the rug I wanted. At the end of a week I found it.

It was a beautiful rug, woven in the hills by the Berber women. The background was the soft, undyed wool, and at random were bands of color of varying widths, in black, a soft, faded orange, and a lovely mulberry, all faded to a gentle beauty. I had watched the women in the hills at their looms, and I knew that such a rug meant at least a year's labor. This, above all the rugs in Fez, was the one I wanted.

The next step was to become friends with the owner of the rug. He was an old man who wore his silham with infinite grace, with the white, gauze-like outer garment like a mist about it. He sat cross-legged among his rugs, and returned my "La bas, Sidi?" with a resonant and pious "La bas, el hamdu lillah." He knew of course who I was, for the foreign residents of Fez were then few and well known to all the Fissi.

I spent a week in daily chats with Sidi Abd-el-Azeez, as the rug-merchant was named. We discussed the chilliness of the night, the beauty of the hills about Fez, the composition and behavior of the moon, the distance of America from Fez (two weeks' journey, I informed Sidi Abd-el-Azeez, who immediately concluded that it was just a bit this side of Cairo), and the regulations governing the observance of Ramadan.

By the beginning of the third week, I decided that I might proceed to more direct operations. In the course of a discussion of the unpleasantness of cold, rainy days, I let fall the casual remark that one of these days I really should buy a rug to put on my bare marble floor—just a very cheap rug, any sort of an old rug to keep my feet warm.

SidiAbd-el-Azeez refilled our tea glasses and remarked, "You know, of course, that I have the cheapest, the best, and the most beautiful rugs in Fez."

I replied that I had observed that they were indeed beautiful, but that I was uncertain that they were all beyond my limited means.

"Oh, no," protested Sidi Abd-el-Azeez, "they are very cheap."

"This one, for instance," I said, indicating a rug at random; "how much would it be?"

After a eulogy of the rug and an enumeration of all its points of beauty, Sidi Abd-el-Azeez told me that he would let me have it, out of his friendship for me and out of his love for all the Inglees, for only a thousand francs.

"There you are," I said. "The rug is very beautiful and no doubt worth that much and more, but I could not even dream of spending so much on a rug."

After much discussion, Sidi-Abd-el-Azeez lowered his price by 50 francs, but I was elaborately indifferent.

Then I avoided the Rug-Sellers' Market for three or four days, to give Sidi-Abd-el-Azeez time to repent his cupidity. On my next appearance in the market I passed by his shop and priced rugs in a number of others. On the following day, Sidi Abd-el-Azeez called out to me as I walked through the market.

"You haven't been to see me for several days," he reproached me. "Drink some tea with me, and let us talk."

I professed to have lost all interest in rugs, since I had learned how dear they were. "I would rather be cold occasionally and have plenty to eat, than to have a rug and live on bread and tea, as I should have to do if I paid such a price for a rug," I declared.

Sidi Abd-el-Azez scoffed at the idea—are not all Inglees rich?—and came down to 750 francs. I was not interested, and we let the matter drop.

Another day of absence, and then I returned to the market. Sidi Abd-el-Azer promptly renewed the attack and offered the rug at 700 francs.

"But that is far beyond what I can pay. All I want is just an old rug, anything to cover the floor—something like that old rug over in the corner," I said, pointing to the apple of my eye as though I had just seen it. "How much would that old rug be, or do you even care to sell such worthless old things?"

"That old rug," Sidi Abd-el-Azez informed me, was rare and beautiful, even a priceless thing, but I might have it for 500 francs.

"That old rug," I declared, "is just a Berber rug, old and dirty, and with a big hole in the corner, but it would at least keep my feet warm. I will give you 50 francs for it."

Sidi Abd-el-Azez was outraged by such a proposal, and we broke off negotiations.

Then the really arduous task of bargaining was begun. Each day Sidi Abd-el-Azez lowered his price, and occasionally I would raise my offer. Everyone in the market became interested, and our daily bargainings were the delight of all the fraternity, who gathered about to applaud our thrusts. Sidi Abd-el-Azeez sought in vain to seize my hand, which would have made the contract binding. But when at last he came down to 160 francs and I raised my offer to 140, everyone knew that the end was in sight.

Exactly six weeks after I began my search for a rug, Sidi Abd-el-Azeez met my offer of 150 francs, we shook hands, and all the market was called to witness the sale.

But they were witnesses to more than a sale. Sidi Abd-el-Azeez put his arms about me, kissed me on both cheeks, and declared, "Allah and you my neighbors are my witnesses: Sidi Yahia (for by now he had translated my name into Arabic) I adopt as my son."

Sidi Taib, of course, scorned my rug. "Do you mean to say that you paid 150 francs for that old rug, all faded and dirty? But why didn't you buy a new one, with bright, pretty colors? You have been robbed!" JOHN T. APPLEBY.

Canadian View of War

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The declaration of war met with unanimity throughout the British Empire, which feared another Munich more than another war.

To say that the Allies are at war with Hitler and not the German people is all bunkum. The German people bombed open towns and cities, killing thousands of innocent people, and it is the German people who will do all the shooting. They have made their choice and must suffer the consequences.

Conditions in Europe indicate what comes of appeasing criminals. One after another, the small nations, which were a bulwark for peace, are wiped off the map. And, soon, all to remain will be the big vultures, which will devour each other like monsters of the deep. The Nazis and Bolsheviks are on the march to terrorize and massacre all in their path. Their crimes disclose their mentality, and how much reliance can be placed in their covenants and promises.

The mistakes of the Great War were many and terrible. How many of the mistakes of the past will be avoided in the present conflict? In the preparation for the greatest struggle since the dawn of time, we should not lose sight of the lessons of the past. One grave mistake was the cigarette and rum ration. Tobacco reduces man's efficiency by 25 per cent. Bad for man, it is infinitely worse for women. At no time does man require to be in full possession of his faculties more than in mortal combat. Life in war depends on swift decision and quick action. When the faculties are dulled by nicotine or alcohol, the result may be disastrous. Seasoned guerrilla warriors shun them as they would a pestilence.

Caribbean Danger

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your issue of November 10, Mr. Charles Borneman attacks my recent article, "Caribbean Danger," which dealt with the problem the United States will face in relation to islands near our shores now belonging to Britain and France in the event that these powers should be defeated by Germany.

Since Mr. Borneman's letter appears to consist of generalities having no specific relation to the subject matter of my article, I should like to ask him a specific question. What course other than the two outlined in my article could the United States take if the outcome of the European war should either transfer the legal title to these islands to Germany, or leave them legally British and French when both Britain and France had been rendered by defeat subservient to Germany?

If he can demonstrate conclusively that neither of these eventualities would necessitate forceful action by the United States, his demonstration will be exceedingly welcome.

On The War Referendum

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Twenty-one years ago an armistice put an end to one of the bloodiest and most useless slaughters in the memory of man. Today, with exactly the same European nations embroiled once more in a struggle to the death and with the American people suffering from one of the worst cases of nerves they've ever known, The Post belatedly prepares to debate the war referendum. Apropos of this proposed and defeated legislation I should like a little space in your columns.

The war referendum was sponsored by a few sincere "I-hate-war" Senators and Congressmen who considered it the right of American citizens to express an opinion on fighting and dying on foreign battlefields. Bit by bit the bill was divested of its objectionable and controversial points, nothing remaining finally except the voting privilege. Because of pressure even this was defeated.

Upon occasion the Administration had termed the Constitution a "horse and buggy" document which has outlived its usefulness; yet in order to defeat the referendum the Administration sought refuge in the Constitution, declaring the proposed bill unconstitutional and undemocratic.

If the war referendum was unconstitutional and undemocratic, what about the plan for conscripting manpower (M-Day to the War Department), and the industrial mobilization plans exposed in Leo M. Cherne's "Adjusting Your Business to War," which contains the much-discussed and Administration-disapproved preamble by the Assistant Secretary of War, Louis Johnson? No more arbitrary and undemocratic schemes were ever conceived, not even in totalitarian countries.

It was said that the referendum bill should be defeated because opinion would be influenced by propaganda. A new bureau, the Public Relations Administration, will have the job of molding opinion. The inference seems to me to be that Government-inspired propaganda could be depended upon to swing public opinion in the direction desired, but if we had a referendum the vote might have to be taken before the Government propagandizing was completed, so it was safer to have no referendum.

If we were attacked or if a bona fide reason for our entering a conflict arose, then all of these arbitrary measures, conscription and regimentation, would be unnecessary. The referendum bill very definitely stipulated foreign wars only and it was a privilege we were entitled to. We will do and give our all for America, but we will do and give nothing for Europe, and Europe includes England and France.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: On the suggestion of Senator Arthur Capper, I inform you that in my opinion "Congress should decide whether we send our boys abroad to take part in foreign wars."

E. V. BOOKMILLEN.
Washington, Nov. 13.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "Shall the people or Congress decide whether we send our boys abroad to take part in foreign wars?" It is my opinion that Congress should decide this issue, my reason being that the mechanics of a popular vote are such in this country without any influence involved that it would take too long a time and might not after all express intelligently what should be done for the best interest of our Government.

The burden should be originally placed upon the voting public to elect the proper representatives to Congress, who conscientiously has the interest of our country at heart and if such is the case then the public should have sufficient confidence in the members so elected to trust to them this decision. More care and a greater interest in determining the qualifications and the type of people elected is unquestionably needed on the part of the voting public.

Cultural Exchanges

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The publicity that you accorded to the recent awarding of the first Maria Moors Cabot prizes to Jose Santos Gallon, editor of La Prensa, Buenos Aires, and to Dr. Louis Miro Quesada for outstanding contributions in Pan-American journalism is deserving of wholehearted public approval.

Thanks are in order to Dr. Godfrey Lowell Cabot, donor of the awards, and to the two prize winners for the high purpose and achievement which mark their contributions, particularly at this present time when the growth of sympathetic understanding among the nations of this hemisphere is so necessary as a counteracting influence to the devastating conditions which mark the European scene.

By a happy destiny and fortuitous course or history, the American nations, by their unique record of accord and international harmony, have already set an example of friendly relations between governments. Now it is necessary that they crystallize the constructive forces which have aided their destiny, and begin with conscious foresight and high example to lead the nations of the world into a new era of political comity and mutual recognition of moral responsibility.

Praise is also due to Dr. Frederick Kettner, whose labors in this same direction have recently been brought to public attention at the Conference of International Relations in the field of Education, sponsored by the United States Department of State, which was held in Washington, November 9 and 10. Dr. Kettner is founder of the Inter-American Friendship Center, which is endeavoring by means of education, cultural interchanges and direct contact to achieve the same goal.

Branches of this center already exist in Buenos Aires, Trinidad, Chicago and New York, at which a constant activity is maintained to stimulate and enhance a knowledge and appreciation of the cultures of the other American nations.

I am certain that a policy of recognition by the American press of such progressive movements as those just described will serve to develop a more widespread appreciation and pursuit of the goal of better Inter-American relations.

Fight For Power

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There is always a tendency of those in power to think that they and they alone are the only ones capable of carrying on. But there are always unsung men of ability. Nothing increases a man's prestige like a little favorable publicity. The only thing that these unsung heroes lack is good publicity. I myself am acquainted with a person whom I sometime expect to be President of the United States. He is now a mere unsung graduate student at Columbia University in public law. He will become though, in time, a household word in America just as the name Roosevelt is now a household word.

This tendency even causes men to call for third terms. They look over the contemporary political scene. They think they know all the men in that scene. But do they? I do not think so. Nothing is more self righteous and nothing is more a law until iself than power. The fight for power is the most interesting and the most brutal fight known to man.

Psychiana Pays

THERE APPEARED in Los Angeles on election day, when the queeries of the town were in their most susceptible mood, a page advertisement of 1,200 words by Dr. Frank B. Robinson, of Moscow, Idaho, who claimed that h. has talked with God and, for a price, is willing to reveal the secret of a new religion which he calls Psychiana. Some papers in some cities might reject such copy, but in Los Angeles the notice of a new revelation is no less ethical than a routine bargain in Boss-Fix powders, Angel Down or Yogi's bath water. The faithful hunger and clamor for ham and eggs but never stint their holy men.

In Cleveland, where I saw him lately, the Great I Am, also of Los Angeles, had four new, expensive cars for himself and staff, time on the air and an archepiscopal suite at the best hotel in town. The Great I Am was just out calling on the trade, for Los Angeles is his seat and the California mountains are the scene of his occasional conferences with the sacred three times three, the great ascended spirits and a militant, gaseous god-faced identified as K-17.

District Attorney Doesn't Know Him

AS I RECALL his route, the Great I Am, known in private life as G. W. Ballard, would still be on the road so I didn't bother to call but did mention him to Mr. Burton Fitts, the District Attorney, and was surprised to learn that this well-informed local official, whose detective bureau combines the best elements of the Gestapo and the FBI, never had heard of his eminent fellow-citizen.

"The Great I Am?" Mr. Fitts said. "Is he new in the racket? Make a note of him, Klein. He may be someone we would like to know."

"But surely you know the Great I Am!" I wheedled. He has access to a lake of gold on Mount Shasta, and this friend of his, the sacred three times three, recently destroyed a number of hostile submarines, hither bound, with a sword of purple flame."

"I never heard of the guy," Mr. Fitts said. "He is not a big shot."

"He can't be a big shot," Mr. Klein nodded.

MR. FITTS and Mr. Klein are blase about god men. Occasionally they have to bust up a flock for the sake of the lambs, which is a fine commentary on religious freedom, but that's the way it goes, nevertheless. I attempted no comparison between the Great I Am and psychiana beyond an observation that the Prophet Ballard never prays to his gods, but orders them about like flunkeys, whereas Dr. Robinson, of Moscow, Idaho, follows convention and gets excellent results, too.

Masters of the I Am religion can make themselves invisible a knack to tempt burglars and 'varsity backs, and there is said to be no limit to the material gifts which they command, including money. However, Mr. Ballard was not invisible in Cleveland, unless it be that I have second sight, for I vow I saw the prophet plainly. Dr. Robinson gets his without recourse to sorcery and is proud, not to say a shade vulgar, on the subject of his cash receipts.

A box car stray his writing says he was, a beggar, and, if I may suggest a word, a bum, who worked only when forced to and that seldom, until one day he struck up a conversation with God. Today he owns the largest office building in Moscow, Idaho, has a beautiful home with a magnificent pipe organ and drives a Cadillac limousine, while his wife drives a new Buick and his son a Ford V-8. His little girl isn't old enough to drive her own, but just you wait.

Prophet Ballard Given a Warning

DR. ROBINSON doesn't mention his degree, but speaks of a little drug store which he had to abandon owing to the press of religious business, and country druggists commonly are called "Doc." For all his wealth he doesn't want money from his converts beyond enough to pay expenses—and grow. For growth he requires an unspecified proportion of the grow, but he extends a money-back offer to those who try psychiana and don't get rich like him, with cars for all hands 'round, a pipe organ and all like that.

This seems a very attractive offer, and here he is working the Prophet Ballard's beat by mail while the Great I Am drags around the East where the skeptics roost high.

The prophet better git for home. Somebody is messin' around his chicken coop.

The War At Sea

By Barnet Nover

The Allied Blockade Holds

HITLER'S threatened offensive against the Allies has not yet taken place. The Dutch and Belgians are being permitted to enjoy their precarious neutrality for a while longer, at least. Both sides continue to refrain from bombarding each other's cities. On the military side, therefore, the European war remains a stalemate.

The real war, so far, has been the war at sea. And regardless of what may happen on the Western Front, the outcome of the naval struggle will have a considerable bearing on the ultimate outcome.

IT IS IMPORTANT, therefore, not to lose sight of the Allied blockade, on the one hand, nor, on the other, of the German efforts to smash that blockade.

If the blockade proves effective, there is a strong likelihood that, sooner or later, Germany will be starved out. Few believe that the supplies which Germany can get from Russia can compensate her for the loss of overseas sources of essential raw materials. But should Germany smash the blockade she could turn this powerful weapon against her enemy. It would then be Britain's turn to face economic strangulation. Even less than Germany can Great Britain live on the resources to be found within her borders.

ON THE BASIS of what has happened during these past ten weeks it would be rash to predict what may happen during the next months or the next year. Yet the data that is already available regarding the effectiveness of the Allied blockade operations and the relative ineffectiveness of the German counterblockade efforts do give Great Britain and France some cause for rejoicing.

The submarine menace has certainly not been overcome, so far as the Allies are concerned. Yesterday, on the seventy-fifth day of the war, two British merchant vessels and a Norwegian tanker were destroyed by torpedoes from German U-boats. In addition, a British destroyer and a British freighter were sunk by German mines.

It is obvious, therefore, that a good deal remains for the Allies to do before they can really feel that they have full mastery of the seas.

WHAT IS SIGNIFICANT is that there has been during recent weeks a relative decline in Allied tonnage destroyed by the U-boats and that the average losses of merchant shipping so far in the war has been well below that at the height of the submarine campaign 22 years ago.

In February, 1917, German U-boats destroyed 532,000 tons of British, Allied and neutral shipping, the British share of this loss being 310,868 tons. The losses rose to 399,000 in March and 869,000 in April. The latter figure included 526,000 tons of British shipping.

Had the U-boats been able to continue on this scale Great Britain would have been starved out. As it was, there was a point in 1917 when the British were very close to the starvation point, both from the viewpoint of food and of raw materials.

UP TO MONDAY of this week, on the other hand, the total British, French and neutral shipping sunk by torpedoes or mines amounted to slightly under 400,000 tons. This is well under half of the losses during April, 1917, alone.

If the German anti-blockade activities are to be successful, therefore, they must be intensified. Yet the figures indicate that the Allied losses in merchant shipping were greatest during the first three weeks of the war and have steadily declined since then. On the other hand the lost Allied tonnage has in large measure been made good by the seizure of German vessels plus new construction.

WINSTON CHURCHILL, the first lord of the admiralty, admitted in a recent speech that the Germans are probably building submarines at the rate of two a week. By the beginning of next year, therefore, Germany may have a U-boat fleet in excess of the total with which she began the war.

This does not mean that German U-boat effectiveness will necessarily increase with time. That is a possibility with which the Allies must certainly reckon. They must also reckon with the possibility that Germany will employ airplanes as well as submarines and raiders to destroy Allied merchant vessels and battleships. But taking all factors into account, the indications would appear to be that the Allied blockade will increase rather than diminish in effectiveness.

If Germany is building more and more submarines, the Allies are building destroyers, perfecting the convoy system and learning to fight the U-boats more efficiently. In this aspect of warfare, as in others, time fights on their side.

The blockade weapon is undoubtedly slow in its operation. But it is also cumulative in its effectiveness. And nothing better proves how effective this blockade has already been than the announcement from Berlin that henceforth Germany will torpedo ships without warning if those ships happen to be armed. That announcement has the accent of desperation.

Democracies Need Education To Meet Needs, Says Lothian

Special Dispatch to The Post

New York, Nov. 14.—War between nations will end only "when we are able to establish the principle of the State in some new and wider form than has ever yet been attempted," the Marquess of Lothian, British Ambassador to the United States, declared tonight.

Speaking at a golden jubilee dinner of Barnard College, Lord Lothian asserted "the ending of war is a constitutional problem—a problem in government."

With the admission that the British empire has "made many mistakes" and sometimes "abused" its power "by giving too little and taking too much, the Ambassador said:

Contribution to Peace Cited

"But we are still unrepentant in our belief that the British Empire, now developed into the British Commonwealth of Nations, has contributed much to the peace, individual liberty and prosperity of its inhabitants; that for the last 50 years it has been a successful school of self-government; and that for a century it has been the main preventive of world war.

"The alternative to it would have been a far more ruthless empire created by some other nation, or the anarchy and the constant wars which inevitably spring from a world without any form of government at all.

"We ourselves are quite unable, by ourelves, to maintain the system which gave such remarkable peace and prosperity and freedom to the nineteenth century. The international problem of peace and prosperity is now one which concerns all democracies, though in differing degrees. And if they are to succeed in solving it, their educational systems must equip them to do so."

Asserting that "education is essential to the proper working of democracy," Lord Lothian told his audience that "the kind of education we need for democracy is rapidly changing, for the task which lies before the democracies is vastly greater than we used to think."

Necessities of Education

Education, he said, "has to equip the individual so that he can understand and enjoy life and make his or her own way successfully in life." And, he added, "it has to educate those who can discharge the ever-onerous duty of giving that leadership to democracy without which it cannot survive."

The wider the area covered by the democratic State, the more diverse its inhabitants, the more complicated its economic and cultural and political order, the more complex the role of education," he said. "And now that the democracies have to face the international problem, and especially the problems of unemployment and war which spring from it, the task before educators becomes more difficult still.

"The real menace to democracy today is totalitarianism, the conviction that if man is to getp eace and order and prosperity, salvation in a material sense, he must surrender his right of judgment to the state, or rather to the party which has captured the state . . . There is no doubt totalitarianism has its appeal, especially to youth.

"Do not let us underrate its power; on the one hand of its insistent demand that the individual should discipline and sacrifice himself or herself for something greater and nobler than himself; on the other hand of the subtle lure of its suggestion that the citizen had better leave the difficult task of thinking and the painful duty of decision to those at the top who claim to know and to understand what to do. That is one side of the totalitarian menace.

Three Problems Unsolved

"The other is the relative failure of democracy to solve three vital problems for themselves; unemployment and the economic disorder that causes unemployment; the maldistribution of wealth, and war. If the democracies could solve these problems within their own world we would no longer have to fight totalitarian imperialism by violence. We would undermine its authority and overcome it by the power of our example.

"Education, therefore, has taken on a new task—that of preparing the people so that they can reconstruct wisely both the national and international society in which the democracies live; so that the new world order which is in course of being born shall give its citizens a better and ampler life than its totalitarian rivals, and will do so on the fuondation of individual freedom and individual responsibility."

Lord Lothian said that in Britain "education has been immensely decocratized since the war," adding, "Our chief task today is the reform and extension of our secondary or high schools."

Turning to the problem of "education for leadership," he pointed out that differences between American and British points of view on the question "arose from the differences in the functions which your country and mine have had to assume in the past."

"For a century, you had practically no external problems at all," he said. "The Monroe Doctrine and our naval policy kept Europe and Asia away. Your need of leadership, therefore, was mainly in relation to your own internal affairs.

Women's Place Commended

"Our problem was quite different. Our main task has been international—the building up of overseas trade, necessary to a small industrialist island, the development of what is now known as the British Commonwealth of Nations, a world-wide organism, and the prevention of a world war."

The Ambassador said he did not see "how a modern democracy . . . can be successful unless it has developed and can maintain a well-educated, well-informed, public-spirited and strong party system."

Describing the "immense change" in the position of women in England in the last 20 years, Lord Lothian said "80 per cent of all girls of from 18 to 20 are earning their own living and one-third of all the women in the country are self-supporting."

He paid tribute to women's war work in England, and quoted Lloyd George as saying that the only people who won anything in the last war were women, "who won their full rights as citizens."

Goodwill Planes May Miss Fete

America's delegation to Brazil's fiftieth birthday celebration today may miss the ceremonies, officials here feared last night.

Seven bombers on the goodwill flight reported yesterday they were grounded at Asuncion, Paraguay, by "dangerous weather conditions" at Rio de Janeiro, their destination. The commander of the flight, Maj. Gen. Delos C. Emmons, radioed the War Department that the planes would remain there overnight.

Hunting Job For Roosevelt

By Ernest K. Lindley

Post Hinted In Successor's Cabinet

AN INGENIOUS PLAN for keeping Franklin D. Roosevelt on active duty in Washington after January, 1941, while escaping the third-term controversy, is being bruited in Washington.

It is simply this: Mr. Roosevelt will serve in the Cabinet of his successor (assuming that his successor is a Democrat) as either Secretary of State or Secretary of the Navy. At the appropriate hour within the next few months he will open the way for this arrangement by removing himself irrevocably from consideration for a third term. At the same time he will reaffirm his profound interest in seeing that his policies are carried forward and declare his readiness to remain actively in the public service, at least during this period of international crisis.

The plain inference would then be sketched by others: If the Democratic Presidential nominee and the national platform are satisfactory to Mr. Roosevelt, he will not only support them during the campaign but, if invited, will give them active aid as a member of the Cabinet. The State and Navy portfolios are mentioned for rather obvious reasons. Both imply that Mr. Roosevelt's participation in his successor's Cabinet would be primarily as an adviser on the vital question of our relations to an extremely troubled world.

The parentage of the scheme is dubious. In well-informed circles close to the President, the whole idea is received with skepticism. Many of the New Dealers are still hopeful that Mr. Roosevelt can be "drafted" for a third term in the White House and are not disposed to consider any alternatives, especially one which seems to offer as many obstacles as this one. The practical politicians and administrators in the Roosevelt group, on whom the idea has been tried, point at once to the difficulties.

New Man Would Find Hands Tied

WITH THE BEST will and severest restraint on both sides, it is argued, such close association, day by day, would hardly be tolerable for either the former President or the new President. The former President would almost certainly be called upon, by those who had access to him, to exert his influence not only on major policy but on hundreds of small matters on which he made decisions while in the White House. The new President would almost certainly find his hands tied. Unquestionably, the former President's views would outweigh those of all other members of the Cabinet—and perhaps those of the new President, who would be advertised to the country as just a Charlie McCarthy.

As a former President sitting in Hyde Park, Mr. Roosevelt undoubtedly would be called upon for advice by a Democratic successor, especially if the successor should be a man of his own selection. But presumably the advice sought from him would be that which is expected from an elder statesman. It would be limited, in general, to matters of major policy.

The whole idea that Mr. Roosevelt might serve in the Cabinet of a successor might be written off as a phantasy if it did not harmonize with a few salient facts. The first is that Mr. Roosevelt is too alert, too vigorous, too keenly interested in details of certain parts of his program to be satisfied with a passive role in American public affairs. The strain of the day-to-day work in the White House is terrific beyond anybody's capacity to describe it. Undoubtedly, as he has often said, Franklin D. Roosevelt longs—at times—for the moment when he can escape this strain. But, he is still in his prime, and, after a brief vacation, he seems physically as well equipped to carry the burden of the Presidency as he was in March, 1933. Persons who have been close to him for years assert frankly that in their opinion he would not enjoy more than a few months of respite from active participation in public life.

Roosevelt Too Young To Be Relegated

THAT BEING SO, it is argued, Mr. Roosevelt's successor, if a Democrat, might as well invite Mr. Roosevelt to remain on the ground in Washington.

There are two precedents for a former President accepting a humbler public post. John Quincy Adams ran for, and was elected to the House of Representatives. Perhaps half jestingly Mr. Roosevelt once intimated that after leaving the White House he would like to be elected to the House (the Representative of his district is Hamilton Fish). Adrew Johnson was elected to the Senate from Tennessee after his stormy part term as President.

For the acceptance of a Cabinet post by a former President there is no precedent. That is one more reason why a number of political observers in Washington (including some of the younger men in his Administration, think that Mr. Roosevelt might respond to the idea of becoming his successor's Secretary of State or Secretary of the Navy. The Navy is his old stamping ground. The details of administration are handled by the high command, so that Mr. Roosevelt would be free of exasperating routine. The State Department would entail graver responsibilities, but would be easy after eight years in the Presidency—during which Mr. Roosevelt has been, on major affairs, his own Secretary of State.

Far-fetched and impracticable as it may seem, the notion that Mr. Roosevelt should serve in the Cabinet of his successor is an effort to reconcile the opposition to a third term, sincerely held by many who approve generally of his policies as well as by those who do not, with the inescapable fact that he is too young, too energetic, too vividly interested in public affairs, to be relegated in 1941 to the quiet role of an elder statesman.

On The Record

By Dorothy Thompson

A Bad Chess Player

HITLER IS LIKE a bad chess player, who in the first bold moves takes his opponent's queen and castles. The opponent lets him do so, and a complacent smirk wreathes his face. But the opponent, playing cautiously and encouraging his greed for immediate success, is actually tempting him to his reckless moves. And suddenly he finds himself checkmated—although all the first moves had seemed to be victorious.

In the great game of politics Hitler is an amateur. He had found a formula, and that formula worked as long as he was playing with very weak opponents. Essentially it was nothing in the world except the use of terror, both brutal and refined.

He mobilized an overwhelming force against a weak and isolated opponent, gave his opponent plenty of time to consider what would happen if he used the force, reminded his opponent that he was isolated, flattered his opponent that if he gave in gracefully he would be spared the worst and thus, by breaking his victim's nerves, won the fight "without spilling a drop of blood."

This was his technique with Austria and Dr. Schuschnigg. It was the technique he used against Czecho-Slovakia, for once assisted by Lord Runciman and Mr. Chamberlain, and it was the technique he used against Poland. In Poland the bluff was called, and he was strong enough—and everybody knew he was strong enough, including the Poles—to carry out his threat.

Abandoned Threats In Poland's Case

BUT ACTUALLY Poland was important as the test case, and the moment he abandoned threat and blackmail—the successful formula—for actual war and invasion, that moment he was checkmated. For at that moment he called into being a genuine collective security which the League of Nations had been unable to create—a collective security which extends to the neutrals as well as to the belligerents.

The meeting between Queen Wilhelmina and King Leopold was, ostensibly, to discuss a joint mediation move on behalf of European peace. That move has been made.

But there was, apparently, another reason for the meeting, and that was to make an agreement for joint protection against German invasion. Every indication is that Hitler had hoped to isolate Holland and bring pressure against her, counting that her neutral position would make it possible for him to deal with her alone.

But now if he attacks Holland he has got to deal with Belgium, and if Belgium asks French protection he has got to deal with France—with that enormous French army—on a battlefield advantageous to the French.

Furthermore, he has got to attack two nations who have just joined together in a great plea for a European peace.

One of his tactics, also, has been to keep as many nations neutral as possible. But if it is as expensive and as dangerous to be neutral as it is to be belligerent, neutrality will rapidly disappear in Europe.

He Gave Britain Chance To Mobilize

AS ONE REVIEWS the history of the war so far, it can be seen that every move of Hitler's has been stupid and without any concept of a total strategy. He has Poland. That great victory put Russia on his frontier in the east and gave the western powers time to mobilize. If he were going to attack Holland, the intelligent thing to have done would have been to let Poland ride—occupy Danzig, make a quick peace with the Polish government and strike with lightning rapidity through Holland and Belgium before the British had a chance to get troops to the continent and to evacuate their cities and before the French had time to pull themselves together.

If you are going to be a bold bad man, it's better to be one in the right place, at the right moment. If Hitler attacks Holland and Belgium now, he does it just too late.

Meanwhile, the East European and Balkan states have decided to postpone their quarrels over frontiers, in the face of a danger confronting all of them, and they are protected by Turkey and by Italy.

But most important, Hitler has taught his technique to others. Hitler now has to fight, but meanwhile Stalin is demonstrating that the pre-Poland Hitler tactic can still work—under the same conditions in which Hitler himself successfully used it.

Stalin Has Copied Nazi Blueprint

STALIN IS treating the Baltic states exactly as Hitler treated Austria and Czecho-Slovakia. Stalin has not thought of a single new thing—he has just taken the Nazi blueprint. The Kremlin has become yesterdays' Berchtesgaden. Estonia, Latvia, Lithania have behaved like so many little Austrias, and all has gone merrily—accompanied by the international Communist claque about Stalin's great contribution to peace—until Finland. If Stalin attacks Findland, he will have made precisely the same mistake that Hitler made when he attacked Poland. He will be preparing Russia for the next great movement for collective security, against himself, when Hitler is out of the way.

So there is some reason for Mr. Churchill's puckish spirit. Hitler has completed his own encirclement. He has done what neither the League nor Great Britain, neither Frane nor Russia, were able to do. He has hemmed in Germany on all sides. If, like Samson, he wants to pull down the whole structure of Europe in a horrible slaughter, he may still be able to do this. If he does, he may destroy Europe, but he will certainly destroy Germany.

There are patriots in Germany. They must know this.

Why is it that by a few temporary and sensational successes a man can impress a whole world, for a few minutes, with the idea that he is a genius?

Consider what that man has done to his country? He has spent six years, the entire wealth of the nation, mobilizing for a war that he could not possibly win. He has horrified the world by his attempt to rid Germany of Jews by the most brutal means and with a total lack of consideration of the problems of other nations. And what is the result of it? He started out with a minority of 600,000 Jews, most of them families who had lived in Germany for generations and were completely Germanized. Now, by conquests which have involved him in a European war, he has managed to acquire a population of some 4,000,000 Jews.

Treason Seen In His Midst

HE HAS therefore succeeded in creating for himself a Jewish problem — where none existed when he started. He could deal with 600,000 relatively well-to-do Jews by his methods. He cannot deal with 4,000,000 very poor Jews with his methods. He thinks to solve this problem by moving the Jews from Austria, Germany and Czecho-Slovakia into Poland, and quartering them among the already desperate Poles. He can, thereby, create starvation and chaos—but the starvation and chaos are not on British, French, or even Polish territory but on his own territory. It is no longer a Polish problem, it is a German problem. And meanwhile he has made a buddy of the Communists, the while he creates the most favorable possible grounds for Communist agitation. It does not seem quite right!

Hitler has treason in his midst. Not to believe it, means to believe that there are no honest Germans left in Germany; that Germany is a country without patriots and without brains. This is not true!

World's Fair Has Record of Only One Felony

New York, Nov. 14.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Final word from our hiberating World's Fair is that everybody from the mayor down to me is proud that on the huge grounds, with over 25,000,000 paying guests, only one felony was committed there during the long season. And that was not a crime of violence, but merely one guy trying to sell rights to a non-existent parking space. And some misguided wights, I name no names, think we run an evil city! Pooh, and again pooh, to them! . . .

Len Hall and thousands of other New Yorkers are crying their poor little eyes out, now that the beautiful dancing Zorina has been called back to Hollywood, and can't appear on Broadway this autumn in a new musical comedy. Oh wurra, wurra! keen the lads. The show will be done, maybe with Audrey Christie in the lead. She too is a darling, and worked in "I Married an Angel" with Zorina . . .

Theda Bara, the screen vampire of 25 years ago, has just worked on the radio here. Theda, when she appears in public, these days, is not often recognized by the folks. After all, a quarter-century is a right long time, and Theodosia Goodman, of Cincy, has been out of the picture a long time . . .

CAROL GIMBEL LASKER wears two charms when riding winners at the Horse Show—a small gold rabbit in a lapel, and in the pocket of her coat a good old rabbit's foot. They sure worked, for she rode a blue ribbon on the very first night . . . Mary Jane Walsh, the great song-socker-over, who is now a hit in "Too Many Girls," has been having a nice time recently. The other day she gave a nice party at the Hotel Pierre for her mamma, in from Davenport, Iowa. Then, of course, it's swell being a leading figure in a real hit show . . .

Arline Judge, the pretty former movie babe, is feuding badly with her husband, the rich Dan Topping. She charges things, and now he has been presented with a big bill for fancy clothes, like red scarf, $25. The total reaching $1,920.37 at the one shop. But the other day, when waiting for Dan at a restaurant, Arline asked, "Has anybody seen my beautiful husband yet?" Oh, these marriage squabbles!

NOW A BRACELET is out which contains a small but practical beauty kit. Dry rouge, powder, lip grease, pad to wipe on. The handiest gadget yet, I vow.

The padded scroll effect of this "hat" resembles somewhat the breakfast croissants beloved of the French epicures

Mood of Room Reflects Owner

The most important point in deciding on the mood of a room is that is be becoming. Not only in color but in spirit. That involves the choice between modern or Georgian furniture, or whether to add some mad Victorian fantasy or to accent with French provincial pieces of cultovated mien.

Accessories, too, will interpret a woman's personality more truly often than she realizes. Exquisite small treasures or austere classic sculpture . . . scintillating modern extravangazas in glass or brass or amusing ceramic grostesques . . . each speaks eloquently for the person who selects them. That's all the more reason for not allowing her place to be cluttered up with random ornaments.

"Say, doesn't that building remind you a little—from this angle—of the Taj Mahal?"

"We-ll, I suppose so—from the pictures I've seen——"

"Oh, you've never seen the Taj Mahal?"

"No."

"You've never been in India!"

"No."

"Oh-h! Well, you must go right away! You know there's something about Asia that's so—so—wel, $ suppose you'd call it Oriental. I expect you've noticed it—especially in Shanghai——"

"I've never been in Shanghai."

"Oh-h! You don't mean to tell me you've never been in Shanghai!"

"No. I've never been in China."

"Well, you simply must go. Of course it's not what it used to be before the Japs messed everything up. You know there was a little curio shop in Shanghai that I used to almost live in—I tell you where it was—now you know where the foreign quarter begins——"

"No, I've never been in Shanghai."

"Oh, that's right. Well, I simply adore Shanghai—in fact, all of China. It's so—so—well, Oriental. Of course, though, for atmosphere, I don't think there's ever been a city like Vienna, do you?"

"I don't know. I've never been there."

"Well, you simply must go. Say, you remember that big cafe there—now what was its name—you know, with the mirrored ceilings?"

"I've never been in any Vienna cafes."

"Oh, that's right. Well, you certainly missed something. Those European people are all so picturesque, don't you think?"

"I suppose so."

"Especially the Swiss peasants. Don't you adore their costumes?"

"I've never seen a Swiss peasant."

"You don't mean you've never been in Switzerland!"

"No."

"And you've never seen the Alps?"

"Well, you simply must go. I don't think anybody's education is complete without seeing a Swiss yodeler. And don't you love the Alps?"

"Well, you see, I——"

"Of course, though, I enjoy the London cockney type, too. There was one old woman I remember especially. She had a little tea shop called the Cricket. I'll tell you where it was. Now you know where St. John's Wood begins?"

"No, I don't."

"Well, you know where Mayfair is?"

"No—you see, I've never been in London."

"Oh—h! You've never been to London!"

"No."

"Well, you must go right away—before the Germans drop a bomb or anything. Well, anyway, this old woman was quite a character. You really do see a lot more interesting types abroad than you do here, don't you think?"

"I—I suppose so."

"Of course, though, for interesting people there's no place to my mind like the Montmarte. Don't you love it?"

"Well, I've never——"

"They say, though, nothing's the same in Paris anymore? Did you know Madame Deshabille's had closed?"

"No."

"Yes, and Embonpoint's. Can you imagine Paris without Embonpoint's?"

"Well, I suppose——"

"And they say there's nobody anymore at La Liaison. Don't you think that's the most fascinating place in Paris?"

"Well, I've never been there. You see——"

"You've never been to La Liaison! Well, now the very next time you go to Paris that's the first place you want to see. Now of course you know where the Cafe de la Paix is——"

"Wait a minute. You see—well, I've never been to Paris."

"You—you—what——"

"Oh, say, you aren't ill, are you!" Is there anything I can do?"

"No—no. I'll be all right. I guess . . . in a minute. I—I just felt a little faint. You've . . . never . . . been to Paris!"

Home Study Of Shorthand

IF TRUDGING from place to place would get a job, the girl in our picture would have had one long ago. But without skill to offer employers, how can she succeed?

How much better fi she spent part of this time learning shorthand at home. Then instead of trudging endlessly and aimlessly, she could concentrate on organizations likely to use her new skill—eventually, win!

But isn't shorthand dreadfully hard? No, it's really simple. In Pitman shorthand you write words as they sound, not as they are spelled. For every sound you have a symbol—and there aren't many to learn.

By studying only an hour or two a day you soon write many simple words. And if you say each word aloud as you practice, you train ear and pencil to work together. Then no hesitations on the job! As your employer dictates "pay," for instance, automatically you make a dash and a dot.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, Pitman Shorthand Self-Taugh, to The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Deeply Fond of Girl He Courted on 'Rebound' After Heartbreak, Man Asks Whether to Marry Her

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Mine is a long story and in order to make this letter concise I will outline my problem as follows: Boy meets girl friend of fellow employe. Falls in love. Result—boy loses friendship of fellow employe, girl takes boy for "royal ride" and later betrays him completely. Boy is broken-hearted and thoroughly disgusted. Death would be welcome and murder a pleasure. Tries to explain to former associate. Broken physically and mentally, he goes on merely to see what happens next.

On rebound, meets another girl at dance. Not very pretty, rather short, 2 years old than boy. Very sensible and sweet. What started out as just another date turns into quite a friendship. Girl's consolation and encouragement helps boy back to former self and wins his undying gratitude. After seeing each other frequently for nearly a year, they reach mutual decision to stay apart for at least a month.

Girl was then apparently much in love; was more so at end of month. During six months since, the two have seen each other occasionally. Girl says they "must" see each other occasionally, else she could not go on; cries, etc. Boy does not feel ardent love he knew in past. Tries desperate to love the girl, but feels he may never love again as at first.

Boy does not belong to any afith, but his family is strictly religious. Has relatives in religious orders. Friends and fellow workers like girl very much. Have even suggested marriage in a nice way. His uncle, who is very critical, likes girl greatly. Boy's family also like her. However, girl's mother doesn't like boy, apparently because of his family's religion. Boy likes girl particularly because she is "down to earth" type rarely found. From all indications, girl believes she could be very happy married to boy. Boy very anxious to see girl happy. She has had quite a struggle, father having died when she was young, leaving her to be bread winner.

Boy believes two could be happy together if aforementioned ardent love (for someone else) did not come later to "wreck marriage. Girl is 27. Boy is 25. He admires "beauty is only skin deep." Should "beuaty is only skin deep." Should he marry the girl in view of above conditions? Your answer will be sincerely appreciated. Very truly, yours, G. A. L.

Hard to Evaluate Easily Won Love

DEAR G. A. L.: You will love again, of course, and just as intensely as you did the first time. Furthermore, there is considerable likelihood that you would find yourself just as "desperately" in love with the second girl as you were with the first, if suddenly she should see fit, for one reason or another, to put you firmly out of her life and close the door of her heart against you.

The major reason why you don't love her with wild and frantic ardor—as you did the first girl—is because this relationship was not conceived and nurtured in an emotional atmosphere of tension and uncertainty, such as characterized your earlier ill-starred romance. On the contrary, it has developed quietly, gradually, sturdily; with the girl's generous devotion so richly overflowing your need of, and capacity to receive, sympathy, understanding, encouragement, appreciation, etc., that you have never felt that nagging undertow of unappeased hunger for love which the parasitical coquette so cruelly and adroitly provokes.

Because this romance has been colored more by friendship than by passion, you are as casually acclimated to the girl's devotion as you are to the very air you breathe; and as dependent upon her as you are upon your richt arm. Were this devotion to be completely withdrawn for no longer thant a month, during which time you lived with the positive conviction that she was permanently lost to you, I imagine that you would experience a suffocating, an anguished, need of her, beside which your shallow-rooted attachment to the first girl would seem trivial and tinsel indeed.

Considering the fact that this girl was able to pick up the pieces of your broken heart and spirit and put them together again, it seems to me that she was providentially designed to be your mate. Thus, it would be my guess that if you fail to marry her, you will be passing up one of the biggest chances at happiness that life will ever offer you.

However, it is not for any other to say the word which would prompt you to "walk the plank" into the sea of matrimony with her. If you cannot assume full responsibility for that move, you would very likely welsh on the contract, at least in spirit, later on. If you should marry her on the assumption that you were doing her a great favor, you would actually be doing her a grievous and lasting injury. For you would always be looking over her shoulder in search of that supposedly better bet which you had thereby forfeited. M. H.

Oil Silks Pretty And Stand Rough Bathroom Wear

Fabrics intended for use in bathrooms have to stand a lot of gaff—so far there's nothing that has seemed to fit the picture any better if as well as oil silk, which is available in many new and interesting patterns including one sweetly sentimental heart design with a Victorian flavor. Then there is a zebra pattern that has a sophisticated look. Some of the waterproofed silks are now being called "illusion fabric" which has a more romantic sound than oil silk. But all practical bath curtains and shower curtains needn't be of this fabric—there is a new suede-like material that is equally waterproof and has more weight so it doesn't wrap around your body.

Among the designs available in this new suede-type waterproof material are Victorian bouquets with lace edges, a milky way design showing stars and the constellations, and several nautical and tropical designs. Quilted rubber bath mats and seat covers are interesting, new and practical.

Minerals Are Just as Important Factors As Vitamins; Aid Pep, Color, Nerves

"TELL ME WHAT you eat and I'll tell you what you are" is a saying that applies directly to the minerals. If you get your daily share of calcium, phosphorus and iron, you are quite likely to have more pep, a better color and a sweeter disposition than the next fellow.

The minerals are as essential to good nutrition as the vitamins—but they are not as much in the limelight and the average person does not appreciate their need. There is a long list of these minerals—17 or more—but you don't have to get acquainted with them all. Calcium, phosphorus and iron are the most important trio. A liberal supply of these three, together with smaller amounts of iodine, copper and manganese, fills our requirement.

Calcium Soothes Nerves

You know, of course, that calcium (lime) and phosphorus are essential in building the bony framework of the body and are necessary to strong straight bones and good teeth. But what you may have overlooked is their regulatory role. Calcium is a factor in controlling the irritability of the nervous system. A deficiency may cause "nerves" and the addition of milk, cheese and green vegetables to the diet can actually improve one's disposition.

Calcium controls the contractibility of muscles, regulates the heart beat, is necessary to the clotting power of the blood, and helps us to make better use of the iron in the diet. This mineral is highly important to healthy functioning of the body. Yet the diet of the average adult is lower in calcium than in any other chemical element.

Phosphorus also functions in a variety of ways, but its buffer action in helping to maintain the neutrality of the blood is of special interest. This action is very important to the reducer, for when fat is broken down poisons result. These must be neutralized by the minerals and carried off by the various organs of elimination. With a liberal mineral intake, the body's stores of protective elements are not depleted and there is no danger of acidosis.

Its Best Sources

Richest sources of calcium and phosphorus are milk and cheese, eggs and green vegetables. Vegetable calcium is well utilized by adults, whereas, the calcium from milk is more readily utilized by growing children. Each child should have one quart of milk a day. Since so many of our common foods are poor in calcium, some of the calcium-rich foods should be included in our daily fare. If the diet contains sufficient protein and calcium, it also furnishes enough phosphorus.

Calcium and phosphorus are not diminished in the skim milk and buttermilk specified for the reducer, but vitamin A is lacking and it must be supplied from greens, cheese and butter. Vitamins A, C and D must be furnished in the diet if the minerals are to be efficiently utilized. If you cannot get enough of the green and yellow vegetables and cheese to supply the requisite vitamin A, you must take codliver oil or haliver oil concentrate. And if, for some reason, you cannot take enough calcium and phosphorus rich foods, ask your doctor to prescribe one of the mineral concentrates.

Iron is another extremely important mineral. Food sources are eggs, meat, greens and whole grains—all of which should be included every day in the menus. It is best to obtain all the protective elements in food, and that goes for iron.

Woman Dragged From Auto, Beaten; Md. Youth Jailed

Annapolis, Md., Nav. 14 (AP).—A 16-year-old colored youth was held without bail today after an Anne Arundel County woman sent police on an eraly-morning search with a story of being stopped on a lonely road and forced into a field where she fought off an assailant and escaped.

The colored youth was arrested at his home near the scene of the attack, and County Police Chief John Souers said he confessed. He was charged with an attempt to commit criminal assault.

Mrs. Guy Pumphrey, 37, night telephone operator at Glen Burnie, said the attack occurred shortly after she left a lunch stand at the intersection of the Dorsey and Camp Meade roads while on her way to work. The assailant appeared at the car door suddenly, she told police, forced her to halt and demanded money. She had only some change, she said, and enraged, he dragged her into a sweet potato field.

There she struggled with him for nearly 15 minutes, Mrs. Pumphrey said, before he became frightened and ran.

Abdell Given New Reprieve Until Jan. 5

Execution Delayed As Gov. Price Studies Wife Slayer's Case

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., Nov. 14.—Raymond L. Jackson, secretary of the Commonwealth, announced today Gov. Price had granted a new reprieve to J. C. Abdell, of Norfolk, who is under death sentence for the slaying of his wife, until Friday, January 5.

Jackson said the extension was ordered to permit the Governor additional time in which to complete his study of the case.

Abdell was convicted in the Norfolk Corporation Court of killing his wife, whose body was found in the gas-filled kitchen of their home. The case was carried to the Supreme Court, which upheld the Norfolk court jury's verdict carrying a death sentence.

The Governor conducted a hearing last summer on a plea for commutation of the death sentence. At that time Gov. Price expressed a desire to talk with some of the witnesses in the case, but the press of other duties prevented him.

The first date for execution was set for August 25, and the first reprieve advanced the date to November 17.

Mrs. Abdell was found dead on the afternoon of May 11, 1938. The Commonwealth contended during the trial that Abdell knocked his wife unconscious and turned on the gas jets before leaving in his car for Washington.

W. Va. Doctor, Stricken in Court, Dies

Heart Attack During Testimony Fatal to Dr. Sponseller

Special Dispatch to The Post

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 14.—Dr. G. J. E. Sponseller, 68, practicing physician in this city and county for 46 years, died in the chambers of Circuit Judge D. H. Rodgers here this afternoon a few minutes after he had been excused following testimony for the defense in a trial.

Death was laid to a heart attack. His time on the stand had been shortened by agreement because he said he was not feeling well. He barely reached the anteroom before expiring.

He was a native of Middletown, Frederick County, Md., but had spent most of his life here. He was a Mason, a charter member and past president of the Martinsburg Rotary Club, and long active in professional affairs in this city and county. He had restricted his practice in recent years because of poor health.

Surviving are the widow, formerly Miss Nellie Reddig, of Shippensburg, Pa., at the home here, and a brother in Middletown, Md. Funeral arrangements had not been made this evening.

Mrs. Stoddard To Visit Boks

Mrs. Lothrop Stoddard will go to Philadelphia this week for a brief visit with Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Bok. She will be honor gust at a dinner Saturday night by Mrs. Mary Bok, widow of Edward Bok. Mrs. Stoddard also plans to attend the Philadelphia Symphony concert Saturday night.

Business will also take up some of Mrs. Stoddard's time while in Philadelphia. Several years ago she thought of teaching piano by phonograph records and had a master recording made of her first lesson. She has simplified her system and expects to have the records on the market soon.

Mrs. J. A. Mullen, Miss Stapleton's Guest, Goes Home

Brazilian Embassy To Mark Revolution

Ambassador and Senhora De Martins To Commemorate Gentle Upheaval That Deposed Dom Pedro 50 Years Ago

By Hope Ridings Miller.

WHEN THE BRAZILIAN EMBASSY unrolls its red velvet carpet of welcome this afternoon to several hundred members of top drawer society, it will be celebrating one of the most peaceful revolutions ever to turn a country inside out.

In contrast to bloody conflicts that have marked many drastic changes in government, the old order of Brazil gave place to new exactly 50 years ago without the firing of a single gun. The upheaval that came to be known as the White Revolution firmly, but quietly, wrested power from Don Pedro II, Brazilian emperor, and turned over the affairs of state to a democratic set-up.

Today's golden jubilee event is sure to be a highlight of the season. With diplomatic anniversary events being marked more and more infrequently by big receptions, chances are upper crust Washington society will turn out in droves for the party at which the Brazilian Ambassador and Senhora de Martins will be hosts.

MISSING IN THE THRONG of prominent guests, however, will be Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the Secretary of State, who rarely misses such functions and who usually calls early to pay respects both for herself and her distinguished husband. Now esconced at the Forest Hills Hotel in Augusta, Ga., Secretary and Mrs. Hull have settled down for a two weeks vacation.

Shortly before she left Washington, Mrs. Hull told friends she and the Secretary had "no definite plans for the next ten days." Now, word comes from Augusta that they are charting some short motor trips to points of historic interest in George and South Carolina. Doubtless, the croquet grounds and the pitch and putt course on the Forest Hills grounds will provide further entertainment for Secretary and Mrs. Hull.

CAPITAL SKETCHBOOK: In the whirl of small parties on yesterday's calendar was the one with a distinct Cuban accent given by the Minister Counselor of the Cuban Embassy and Senora de Baron. Cocktail time found a flock of Cubans assembled in the Baron apartment at 1629 Columbia road, where several of their countrymen were being informally feted.

The event was arranged in honor of the new Commercial Attache of the Cuban Embassy, Senora Esperanza Solis de Aguiar; the new Naval Attache, Lieut. Rolando Pelaez and Senora de Pelaez; a bride and bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Ruth, jr., the latter of whom was formerly Senorita Graciela Campa, niece of the Cuban Secretary of State.

Among the guests was still another unusually attractive Cuban, Senorita Mercedes Madrazo, who has been dividing her time between Washington, where she has been visiting Mrs. Grant Mason, and the Virginia hunt country. Senorita Madrazo expects to be off to New York soon for several days, but she will be back in Washington on November 27 for a round of parties.

ON THE CALENDAR: The British Ambassador, Lord Lothian, who has been entertaining at a series of dinners this season, has invitations out for another on Friday, November 24 . . . The Federal Security Administrator and Mrs. Paul V. McNutt will be feted Friday night at a dinner for ten to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Blair in their Alexandria home . . . Mrs. Blair entertained yesterday at a small luncheon at which Mme. Ertegun, wife of the Turkish Ambassador, was the ranking guest . . . Others in the company were Mrs. Blair's daughter, Mrs. Melville Forsythe, of Kenilworth, Ill.; Mrs. Pete Sampson, of Chicago; Mrs. Huston Thompson, Mrs. Bulkley Griffin, Mrs. Phillip Brown and Mrs. Bruce Kremer . . . The Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Henry F. Grady will leave Saturday for New York, where they will spend several days at the Ambassador Hotel . . . They will return to Washington next Wednesday.

U. S. May Try To Take Profit Of Cafeterias

GAO Lawyers Believed Planing to Lay Claim To Welfare Money

By Alfred Friendly.

Government legalists are about to throw a monkey wrench into the profitable machinery of the Welfare and Recreation Association, operators of cafeterias, lunch counters, newsstands and other concessions in Government buildings and parks.

The question about to be raised is believed to be the fruit of some high-powered cogitation by General Accounting Office lawyers. It is, in brief, to whom do the association's profits belong?

For 13 years, since its incorporation, the association has gone on the assumption that its profits were its own, to disburse as it would, except that no individual should gain personally from them.

The G. A. O., however, believes that the profits probably belong to the Government.

The implications are:

That some several hundred thousands of dollars, paid out of profits by the association to welfare organizations in various Government agencies, may have been disbursed extra-legally, or at least without Congressional authorization.

That the association's reserves are actually Government monies, to be used according to the determination, not of a private corporation, but of Uncle Sam.

That, in event the association shall be disbanded, its assets, running into seven figures, would go to the Government; not to the trustees of the association. The association's present charter, in the absence of any provisions to the contrary, would indicate that there is no prohibition against the trustees sharing the assets.

No determination of the legal problem has been made yet. As soon as the association's current labor dispute is settled, however, the matter will be taken up with the public buildings branch in the Federal Works Agency, which lets the contracts for the concessions. The probabilities are that the association's legal status will undergo a drastic revision.

It is highly improbable, however, that any effort will be made to seek restitution of funds from the welfare organizations. The money long since has been spent and almost all for charitable purposes. The recipients have been needy Federal employes.

In the last three years, the association has given more than $90,000 to individual welfare groups throughout the Government. Its unobligated reserves at the moment are $32,500, on deposit at the Treasury.

Oh, not to be a Government employe in England, now that war is there.

According to reports from London, the British civil servant has no easy row to hoe. He is faced with problems that make his colleague's lot on these peaceful shores seem simple indeed.

In the first place, many hundreds of British government employes have been uprooted from London and sent to the country Other hundreds have been required to "sleep in" at their places of duty.

Next, women civil servants have been required to resign from their jobs if they marry, but may be rehired "for the duration."

Recruitment by civil service examinations has been suspended. All promotions during the war will be on an "acting" basis only. Sunday duty is being required in many cases. Employes on holiday were recalled at outbreak of hostilities.

According to the British embassy here, plans are under way for almost complete evacuation of government departments in the event of a heavy bombing of London. Employes will be sent to the country where offices will be established and the work of the government carried on as best it may be.

While in the country employes will be "billeted" with local householders, who will be paid by the government or by employes directly. In the latter case, employes will receive allowances. An arrangement is being worked out with banks whereby employes can draw their salaries no matter in which part of the British Isles they may find themselves.

Civil Service exams: Orthopedic mechanic, $2,000, Veterans Administration; junior engineer, all branches, $2,000; associate and assistant textile engineer, $3,200 and $2,600, Agriculture Marketing Service.

U. S. Becoming Last Market For Music, Spalding Observes

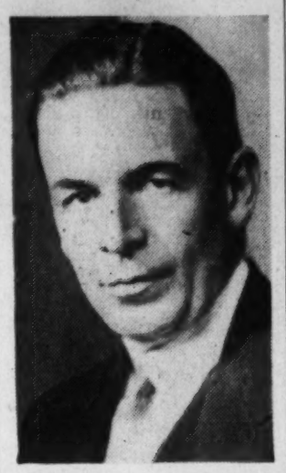
Blames Totalitarianism For Blocking Off Free Exchange in Art



ALBERT SPALDING

Albert Spalding, American violinist-composer-athlete, is finding that his native country is rapidly becoming the world's only remaining musical market.

The celebrated artist left the stage of Constitution Hall yesterday after rehearsing the Brahms D major concerto he will play with the National Symphony tonight, and stepped deftly into a new role, that of commentator on international affairs.

Bronzed and youthful despite his 51 years and the gray streaks in his dark hair, Spalding sat down backstage with a cigarette and let his comments run along such themes as the tie-up between armaments and music, the arts of printing and the radio, and his love for the concerto he will play tonight.

America, he said, is becoming the only musical market simply because the warring nations are spending their cash for munitions. "It's a very simple calculation to make."

He blamed totalitarianism first for blocking off the free exchange of music and musicians, and pointed out that the effect extends to those nations which arm in defense against threats of force. While music goes on in each country, the "mental ventilation" needed to keep it fresh is being closed off, he said.

Music, he added, must be an international affair.

Spalding, whose ways of speech are as American as his reputation is international, ridiculed the theory that the radio is undermining music. He said the radio is increasing music appreciation, just as the printing press brought about the democratization of literature.

"I have no doubt, that when the first printing press wes set us there was a great outcry from the long-hairs about the vulgarizations of the arts," he said.

A moment later he went out on the stage, and there with Hans Kindler, both coatless, posed for photographers and for them improvised brief passages on the violin that was made by Biuseppe Guarnerius 201 years ago, and now insured for $28,000.

WASHINGTON: WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1939

Valuation Nears End in Montgomery

Richards Reports To Commissioners; Reassessment Cost Placed at $55,000

Reassessment field work in Montgomery County will be completed this month, William P. Richards, special assessor, reported to Montgomery County commissioners yesterday as he presented his resignation. Richards said the need for his services will end November 30 and asked that he be relieved by that date.

Cost of the work to November 10 has been $47,874.30, the commissioners announced. Their clerk, Richard H. Lansdale, was directed to negotiate with county banks for the sale of $55,000 in certificates of nidebtedness to meet it.

Hearing Dates Fixed

The commissioners announced dates for hearings on new assessments in a number of places. Those who are satisfied with their valuations need not appear. Hearings will be held at the courthouse in Rockville as follows:

November 30, Olney District, from 9:30 a. m. to noon; Garrett Park and Kensington, from 1:30 to 4 p. m.

December 4.—Gaithersburg district, outside Gaithersburg, 9:30 to noon; Town of Rockville, 1:30 to 4 p. m.

December 7.—Colesville district and subdivisions.

December 11.—Rockville district, outside Rockville, 9:30 to noon; Chevy Chase, sections 1 and 2, 1:30 to 4 p. m.

December 14.—Wheaton district, outside the metropolitan area, 9:30 to noon; Woodside, Wodside Park and South Woodside Park, 1:30 to 4 p. m.

December 18.—Bethesda district, outside the metropolitan area, 9:30 to noon; Brookmont, Drummond and University Park, 1:30 to 4 p. m.

December 21.—Flower Avenue Park, Indian Spring Terrace, Blair and Branwill Park, 9:30 to noon; Chevy Chase sections 4A and 4B and Edgemoor, 1:30 to 4 p. m.

Audit Is Ordered

Audit of the county finances for the year ended June 30, 1939, was ordered. The firm of F. W. LeFrentz & Co., of Baltimore, is to make the audit, receiving $3,000 for the audit of county funds and $1,000 for liquor control board accounts.

The commissioners authorized the clerk to negotiate for sale of $30,000 in certificates of indebtedness to county banks to finance purchase of road equipment.

Clerk Lansdale also was authorized to advertise for bids on a five-year rental basis for traffic lights on Wisconsin avenue in Bethesda at Dorset avenue, Wise avenue, Bradley lane, Leland street, Watkins avenue and Highland street and the intersection of old Georgetown road and Wilson lane.

Housing Project Outlined to Group

Montgomery County's proposed $2,500,000 rural housing project was outlined to the directors of the Montgomery County Farm Bureau yesterday at Rockville.

Maj. E. Brooke Lee, chairman of the Montgomery County Housing Authority, described plans, which he said have not been completed, adding the authority was open to suggestions from farmers.

The directors, formerly hostile to the project, said they would take the matter under advisement. A special committee will be appointed to report within a week.

State Aid Asked For New Armory At Winchester

Richmond, Va., Nov. 14 (AP).—A delegation from Winchester, headed by Mayor C. R. Anderson, appeared before the State military board today to request $17,000 in State aid for a new armory.

Mayor Anderson said $33,000 was available from a bond issue, and that funds requested from the State would provide the minimum required for the armory.

Other delegates were on hand from Clifton Forge, Covington and Lynchburg. Adj. Gen. S. Gardner Waller reported that only $80,000 was available during the current fiscal year for improvements at the State Rifle Range and aid to communities in armory projects.

Mink Farm Started By D. C. Attorney

Special Dispatch to The Post

Frederick, Md., Nov. 14.—Up on Catoctin Mountain, about 15 miles northwest of here, there are 1,500 mink who never set foot on the ground and are hailed as Frederick County's newest industry.

It's a result of the belief of Kingman Brewster, Washington attorney, that Maryland can produce as fine furs as southeastern Alaska, where Brewster saw them raised. He imported a few from Alaska, a few from Wisconsin, bred them, and the first pelts will be available this fall.

It's easy to be an average mink, attendants at the farm pointed out. But to be a good mink and attain to the Valhalla of all minks—gracing a beautiful woman's neck—takes a serious life-time of training.

A mink leads a lonely, and therefore a healthy life. He lives in a shelter elevated from the ground that's a cross between a birdhouse, a doghouse and upright drinking fountain, Brewster points out.

Beltsville's School Site to Be Reviewed

Civic Delegation Opposes 145-Foot Strip on Boulevard

The Prince Georges County Board of Education yesterday agreed to consider relocation of a new elementary school at Beltsville, Md., after a civic delegation had opposed the site on a 145-foot strip adjacent to the Washington-Baltimore boulevard.

The civic group's proposal for purchase of a tract several blocks to the north was taken under consideration. Boykin Watson, board chairman, instructed members of the delegation to investigate the possibility of options on the latter site.

Spokesmen for the citizens, representing the building committee of the Beltsville P.-T. A. and the school trustees, contended the site selected by the board was too close to the boulevard and was not in the center of the community's development. They also charged that the size of the tract would necessitate alteration of plans for the building.

Site Already Bought

Supt. Nicholas Orem revealed that the school board's site already had been purchased and pointed out the doubt as to whether the State Board of Education would approve the civic group's proposed site.

The delegation protested against failure of the board to notify them of the proposal to purchase additional land for the new school. Spokesmen pointed out that the P.-T. A. had been instrumental in securing passage of an act last spring permitting the sale of $60,000 in bonds for construction of the building.

Ralph Powers, member of the Prince Georges County delegation in the State Legislature, supported the civic group's petition for relocation of the school. The delegation included Dr. P. C. Underwood, president of the P.-T. A.; J. W. M. Byrd, Walker Black, Clifford Boteler and Wade Robey.

Clubwomen Urge Room

A group of 75 clubwomen appeared before the county commissioners in the police courtroom to ask for a larger room in the new county service building at Hyattsville for Miss Ethel Regan, county home demonstration agent.

The delegation, representing the county federation of women's clubs, homemakers' clubs and 4-H groups, was headed by Mrs. Joseph H. Blandford, of Clinton, Md. The commissioners deferred action of the petition.

A resolution opposing "spot" zoning was presented to the commissioners by representatives of the Berwyn District Civic Association.

Oyster Shuckers Firm; Plants May Shut for Season

Prince Frederick, Md., Nov. 14 (AP).—Striking Calvert County oyster shuckers remained firm in their demand for a wage increase today in the face of packers' declarations they could not pay more because of poor market prices.

The deadlock brought indications from the packers that they would keep their plants shut down for the season if shuckers refused to return at the former wage of 5 cents a bushel.

The shuckers, 252 strong, walked out yesterday after asking a 5-cent a bushel wage increase.

Plants closed by the strike included the Daniel Barrett plant at Coster; Edward Sollers plant at Sollers; the H. M. Woodburn & Sons plant at Solomons, and the J. C. Lore & Sons plant on the island.

Revenue Aide Quits

An Internal Revenue Bureau official said yesterday Albert Fletcher, deputy collector at Richmond, Va., voluntarily submitted his resignation about ten days ago and that it had been accepted.

Md. Woman, 99, Dies

Fairfax Chest Drive Goes Over Quota Top

Pledges and Collections $14,478, Meting Told; Goal Totaled $13,650

Fairfax County's Community Chest campaign, the first to be conducted independently of the Washington Community Chest, went over the top at the final dinner meeting last night in Madison School. With a goal of $13,650, workers reported cash collections and pledges to date amounting to $14,478.27, with additional funds anticipated before the books are closed.

All save three sections of the county exceeded their quota and it is expected these would bring up their percentage in the next few days.

The meeting, in charge of Lawrence Proctor, of Falls Church, general chairman, was attended by 75 workers. Dinner was served by the Falls Church Parent-Teachers Association.

John W. Brookfield, of Springfield, vice president of the Fairfax County Community Chest Association, spoke on its development of the movement in the county. Lawrence M. Proctor, of Falls Church; Dr. Lenning Sweet, of Fairfax, and Mrs. Florence Jodzies were commended for the efforts in putting the drive across.

Collections by district were: Dranesville, $1,848; McLean, $3,825; Vienna, $656; Falls Church, $2,592.75; Fairfax, $1,407; Seminary, $1,026.25; Centerville, $538; Lee, $641.50; Mount Vernon, $1,264; Franconia, $67.50; special business, $260, and county schools, $363.30.

Mrs. Ruyon Elected

Mrs. J. C. Ruyon was elected president of the Dunn Loring-Idylwood Home Demonstration Club at its annual meeting held yesterday at the home of Mrs. Edgar Shreve.

Other officers are Mrs. Valentine Taggert, vice president; Mrs. Elizabeth Black, secretary; Mrs. Gladys King, treasurer; Mrs. E. E. Salisbury and Mrs. L. M. Senseney, project leaders and Mrs. F. W. Rubright, reporter.

Falls Church Expands

Falls Church.—The Falls Church Town Council last night accepted Greenway boulevard and George Mason road into the town street system. A petition to widen Cherry street from Broad street to Hillwood avenue to 30 feet was rejected due to lack of funds at this time to purchase necessary dights of way and pay construction costs.

Oakton.—Mrs. F. C. Teichman has been reelected master of the Providence Grange. Other officers are J. A. Dyer, overseer; W. Alford Sherman, lecturer; George Speer, steward; F. C. Teichman, chaplain; Mrs. Stella Moser, treasurer; Mrs. Verlin S. Miles, secretary; C. C. Carr, gatekeeper; Mrs. Minnie B. Dyer, Ceres; Mrs. Nellie Sherman, Pomona; Mrs. Gertrude Fox, Flora; Mrs. Wilma Fox, lady assistant steward, and George F. Miles, member of executive committee.

Two Bond Issues Sold By Allegany County

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 14 (AP).—Two bond issues, totaling $145,000, were sold today by the Allegany County commissioners, both of them to Baltimore firms.

The money will assure continuance of roads projects this winter, and will provide jobs for a group which otherwise would face unemployment.

New Sanitarian Named

Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 14.—C. S. Brinsfield, for ten years manager of a local dairy, has been named Washington County sanitarian, succeeding H. C. Zepp, who has accepted a position with the United States Department of War. Miss Catherine Cunningham, graduate of American University, Washington, has been named bacteriologist at the Washington County Board of Health.

Holt's Condition Better

Richmond, Va., Nov. 14 (AP).—Attendants at St. Elizabeth's Hospital described as "very satisfactory" today the condition of Lieut. Gov. Saxon W. Holt, who was admitted to the hospital Saturday for treatment of a foot infection.

Arlington Road Plans Are Completed

Hanrahan Expects To Report to Board At End of Month

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Clarendon, Va. Tel. OXford 0509.

While all details in connection with the completion of Unit 2 of the George Washington Memorial Parkway have been completed, Arlington County Manager Frank C. Hanrahan yesterday announced the agreement between the Federal and State agencies will not be presented to the county board until the end of the month.

The plans provide for a temporary connection with the plaza at Rossyln. It is understood that the first contract will call for continuing the parkway to just west of Key Bridge and later carry it to the Lee highway at Spout Run.

The report of County Fire Chief A. C. Scheffel, released yesterday by Hanrahan, show 36 fires in October, with a loss of $1,875. Of these, 11 were house fires; 6 business property, 3 sheds, 6 automobiles, and 10 grass blazes. There were 35 calls for the county ambulance and 166 inspections by Chief Scheffel.

Col. C. B. Garnett Speaks About Chest

Speaking at meeting of the board of directors of the Arlington Chamber of Commerce last night, Col. Christopher B. Garnett, chairman of Arlington County Community Chest, outlined the program, functions and necessity for the drive.

Carol F. Winchester reported eight new members, bringing membership to 266. He announced the goal for January 1 is 300 members.

The budget and finance committee, of which B. J. Dorsey is chairman, will meet within a few days to prepare a budget for 1940.

The Arlington County Young Democratic Club meeting at Lee Tavern last night nominated the following officers:

Elwood Clements and A. M. Rucker, president; Glenn Hall, Nixon Brewer and Charles Brawner, first vice president; Carl Taylor, second vice president; Helen Bragg, recording secretary; Elisabeth Tallmen, corresponding secretary; James Gorman and Henry Clay, jr., treasurer; Boardman Munson, parliamentarian, and Fritz Frederick and Allan Adams, sergeant at arms. The election will be in December.

A resolution offered by Frank L. Ball, jr., favoring abolition of the poll tax was voted down.

Another resolution, offered by John Paul Jones, calling upon county officials to provide voting machines, was referred to the legislative committee.

The club will hold a wiener roast at the new county park located on Lee boulevard near Glencarlyn Saturday night.

State P.-T. A. Head Lashes Out At Internal Attacks on U. S.

Mrs. Clements Hits Domestic Attacks On Democracy

By the Associated Press

Chestertown, Md., Nov. 14.—Mrs. G. R. Clements, president of the Maryland Congress of Parents and Teachers, struck out at "onslaughts on the American form of government" at the opening session of the group's twenty-fourth annual convention today.

"The democratic form of government is being attacked not only by foreign countries who are attempting to crush it out in their own countries, but by those among us who are determined that some other form of government shall take its place—communism, fascism, socialism—authoritarian government of some sort which shall give to one or a small group of men, absolute power over us," she asserted.

Keynoting the theme of the convention, which is to continue through Thursday noon, Mrs. Clements said "we have come here in this convention for three purposes. Behind the theme 'Maryland education for living' is the thought of living in a democracy."

"We are to ask here, is democracy worth what it costs and is it worth maintaining?' We are asking, most emphatically, what our schools are doing to teach an appreciation of democracy among those who are soon to take our places and to promote its practice among them.

"And we will ask ourselves what we, as a group of parent-teacher people, can do to make democracy really live in our society, in Maryland as a State, in our countries and in the small or large communities in which we live."

Thomas W. Pyle, principal of the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Senior High School, earlier told the several hundred delegates from throughout the State, that the democratic way of living "expresses a profound respect for the individual, every individual."

"Democracy believes that the individual, and so the group, may grow through the application of thinking and planning," he said. "Democracy accepts the contribution of the individual as a vital part of group purposes and movements and recognizes further that purposes may not in any real sense be imposed."

The Rock Hall High School Glee Club and Orchestra presented a musical program this afternoon, after which delegates attended a panel discussion of the school's connection with the democratic way of living.

Leaders of the panel were Dr. Fred G. Livingood, head of the department of education at Washington College, Dr. E. Clarke Fontaine, Eastern Shore supervisor of high schools, Dr. Earle T. Hawkins, western shore supervisor of high schools, and Miss Adelene Pratt, librarian.

The sessions are being held at Washington College.

"Democracy accepts the contribution of the individual as a vital part of group purposes and movements and recognizes further that purposes may not in any real sense be imposed."

The Rock Hall High School Glee Club and Orchestra presented a musical program this afternoon, after which delegates attended a panel discussion of the school's connection with the democratic way of living.

Leaders of the panel were Dr. Fred G. Livingood, head of the department of education at Washington College, Dr. E. Clarke Fontaine, Eastern Shore supervisor of high schools, Dr. Earle T. Hawkins, western shore supervisor of high schools, and Miss Adelene Pratt, librarian.

The sessions are being held at Washington College.

6 Men Trying to Pawn Auto With D. C. Tags Held in Holdup

By the Associated Press

Bluefield, W. Va., Nov. 14.—State Trooper G. T. Davis, jr., said today six men had been detained for questioning about the $18,783 robbery of the First National Bank of South Charleston yesterday.

Davis, who did not identify those in custody, said they were driving a 1936 model car with District of Columbia license plates and were picked up on a "tip." They tried to "hock" their District of Columbia-licensed car with a pawnbroker, police said.

Police believed that only three men participated in the quickly executed hold-up, but emphasized there could have been confederates outside the bank.

Although the robbery was less than 36 hours old, it still was the only unsolved bank hold-up on the State ploice records.

Two State institutions have been visited four times since January, 1938, by bandits, three men made off with $39,000 in January, 1938, fro mthe South Charleston Bank. All later were apprehended, part fo the loot recovered, and are now serving long jail sentences.

The bank of Quinwood, Greenbrier County, was the scene of the other two robberies. A lone bandit got about $2,000 in cash in 1938. Recaptured a few hours later, the loot was found almost intact.

In the last attempt at Quinwood, the cashier answered the bandits with bullets, routing them. They later were arrested and sentenced.

DitchCave-In Fatal To Leesburg Youth

Special Dispatch to The Post

Leesburg, Va., Nov. 14.—Leslie O. Harding, 18-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Harding, of Leesburg, was crushed to death this afternoon by a cave-in in a ditch at the postoffice here.

Workers sought frantically to extricate him and the Leesburg Fire Co. used an inhalator for an hour, but was pronounced dead by Dr. John A. Gibson, county coroner. The youth is survived by his father and mother, six brothers and two sisters.

Trolley Loop Is Urged for Takoma Park

Utilities Commission Completes Hearing On Abandonment of Butternut Service

Extension of service for patrons of the Butternut streetcar line was proposed yesterday as the Public Utilities Commission concluded hearings on abandonment of the service, requested by the Capital Transit Co.

Fred A. Sager, chief engineer of the commission, the only witness to testify yesterday, proposed a loop to cost $55,000 and skirt the Maryland boundary to serve patrons better.

The plan would extend the present line north on Fourth street to Cedar street, east on Cedar street to Carroll avenue and thence to Eastern avenue. The line would proceed along Eastern avenue to Laurel avenue, across the Maryland line, where it would intersect with Carroll avenue, and complete the loop to Fourth street.

Bruce E. Anderson, chairman of the utilities committee of the Citizens Association of Takoma Park, D. C., said he wolud favor any plan recommended by the commission.

The transit company had proposed to augment bus service to the Takoma Park area as a substitute for the present Butternut street car line. The street car runs north on Georgia avenue and east on Butternut street, serving patrons along this street for about six blocks.

Several other plans for revision of car service in the area were proposed by Sager. The commission probably will hand down a decision in about two weeks.

League to Hear Walter Johnson

County Commissioner Walter P. Johnson, the Big Train of baseball fame, will speak before the Kensington (Md.) and Vicinity Civic League tonight at 8 o'clock at the Kensington Junior High School.

The league will have before it resolutions thanking the commissioners for ending spot oning; calling upon the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission for a report on naming and numbering streets and houses in the suburban area, and changing the meeting night to the second Wednesday.

World Premieres Bloom Throughout the Land

Gala Winter Events Booked All Over the Place; Variety Club Plans Record-Breaking Soiree; This, That and the Other About the Theater

EVEN WITH THE WORLD PREMIERE of the film version of Robert E. Sherwood's Pulitzer Prize play, "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," scheduled for RKO-Keith's Theater on or about January 18—With Raymond Massey in his original role—Washington should not feel too puffed up. Some of the other cities in the country are down on the books for "first times on any screen" a little earlier than that.

BELL

Enthused by the "smash" response of "sneak preview" audiences, Paramount executives have approved plans for a star-spangled world premier of "Geronimo" in Phoenix, Ariz., the last week in November, which is by way of being the current month. Convinced that they have a major hit in the spectacular screen chronicle of the Apache reign of terror in the Great Southwest during the 1870's, company heads have given the "Go" sign to an elaborate plan of prerelease showings in key cities, "circus" advertising and exploitation and all the other trimmings of glorified ballyhoo and hullabaloo.

"Geronimo" has Chief Thunder Cloud in the title role. Chief Thunder Cloud, incidentally, is a college bred Redman who is transformed into a startling resemblance of the Apache scourge, if "still" photographs of him in character tell the truth. The supporting cast is led by Preston Foster, Ellen Drew, Andy Devine, Gene Lockhart, William Henry, Ralph Morgan and Marjorie Gateson. The entire Eighth U. S. Cavalry, from Fort Bliss, Tex., and practically all of the Indians there are left in America also take part in the action.

But the big one will be a month from today in Atlanta, Ga. That is the date finally hit upon by David O. Selznick for the unveiling of his picturization of Margaret Mitchell's "Gone With the Wind," which has been in the making for so long that it seems more a legend than a celluloid actuality.

"Gone With the Wind" will do with a lot of looking by the Georgians—and all others who sit in front of its silver sheet, for the matter of that. The present running time of the film is 3 hours and 40 minutes, not counting the 10-minute intermission afforded the customers for the customary seventh-inning stretch. That makes it the comparative counterpart of the stage's "Strange Interlude" and "Mourning Becomes Electra," Eugene O'Neill's two marathon dramas that were thought to be too long, but weren't.

Everybody ought to know by now that the roles of Rhett Butler and Scarlett O'Hara in "GWTW" are in the capable hands of Clark Gable and Vivien Leigh, the English actress whose assignment to the role created such a furore at the time of its announcement. Olivia de Havilland and Ann Rutherford also are prominently cast, along with an unusually large number of others.

There was once talk of transporting all of the Eastern critics to these remote and gala events, but to date the mails have been peculiarly naked of railroad tickets!

There is a youthful actor in Washington who is reputed to show more promise of future greatness than any amateur Thespian of high school age seen by local audiences in recent years. His name is William Appleby. On last Monday night he appeared in the role of Mark Antony in the Woodrow Wilson High School's production of Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar," presented before the Shakespeare Society of Washington and staged largely under its auspices. The roles of Caesar and Brutus were played by Clyde Wendelkin and Bernard German, respectively, but it was Appleby who ran away with the honors. He already has had extensive "group theater" experience and is soon to enroll at the Pasadena Playhouse, where it seems reasonably certain that he will be "discovered" by the Hollywood talent scouts.

Falling just a shade behind her previous records, Deanna Durbin will vacate the screen at RKO-Keith's Theater after tonight's last screening of "First Love," to make way for RKO-Radio's production of "Allegheny Uprising," in which John Wayne and Claire Trevor are said to repeat the individual successes they scored in Walter Wanger's production of "Stage Coach." When she visited Washington recently for one rainy day, Miss Trevor spoke right well of her new vehicle. It must be good to dislodge the maturing Miss Durbin short of her usual three-week run.

That sixth annual banquet and ball of the Variety Club in the Willard Hotel Saturday night is taking on rapidly expanding proportions. The combined stage shows of the Earle, Capitol and Howard theaters will combine with the Lunceford and Lamplein bands to regale the guests, and George Beatty, the highly personable funster who will headline the Capitol's stage bill, beginning tomorrow, will supplant Johnny Perkins as master of ceremonies. That is an arduous job to which many have come to believe the rotund Master Perkins had grown fast. There are a hatful of added attractions that will not be made known until the merrymakers are assembled on the Willard's tenth floor and meet them face to face.

Believing the women who cause most of the trouble and do most toward solving the mysterious murders that punctuate the exciting story have been receiving too little recognition, Walter Wanger has changed the name of the Tay Garnett production heretofore known as "City for Sale." This is the one that boasts an extravagant cast, featuring, among others, Pat O'Brien, Edward Arnold, Broderick Crawford and Ruth Terry, supported by Claire Dodd, Phyllis Brooks, Eve Arden, Evelyn Keyes, Alan Dinehart, Bernard Nedell, Douglas Dumbrille, Douglas Fowley and so on, practically ad lib. It will be released under the title of "Ladies Know Too Much." Mr. Wanger no doubt knows best, but our own snap judgment would be that some of them only think they do.

By this time, Samuel Goldwyn ought to have received that "Special Citation of Merit," shipped out to the Coast to him by the Military Order of the Carabao after its members had relived experiences in the Philippines while watching "The Real Glory." This presumably is one time when Mr. Goldwyn will not request those honoring him to "include me out."

That crafty fellow-Hoosier, Oscar Doob, national director of publicity for Loew's, Inc., last night was the victim of a surprise party tossed for his discomfiture by friends at the Fifth Avenue Tavern, New York. The occasion was the completion of 10 years of continuous service in his present post. He probably has not yet dug his way out from under the avalanche of congratulatory wires from Washington. The boys and girls here are fond of Mr. Doob.

The note from Reynolds Denniston, the Examiner of "Outward Bound," at the National last week, had this, among other things, to say: "We had a wonderfully successful week and leave Washington with regret. It is such a beautiful city and always a joy to the visiting actor." Mr. Denniston, by the way, is one of the visiting actors who pay back by always being a joy to Washington.

Catholic University opens its speech and drama season on November 18 and 19 with the production of Lennox Robinson's sparkling Irish comedy of "The Far Off Hills," one of the prime successes of the Abbey Theater Players of Dublin. Many local players of note will be teamed with prominent performers from other cities to make up the cast. This will be the first of six plays to be acted during the season.

Cry-in-the-Wilderness Note

Now it would be nice if someone could shake up something called "The Far Off Deadlines," if you know what I mean.

In Hollywood

—With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Nov. 14.

You've all read about Bob Cobb, owner of the Brown Derby. But did you know he came from a Montana ranch? Two years ago when he was back there, roping and throwing at Livingstone Rodeo, he saw a young cowboy do his stuff — it was good. That night Bob met him and, after finding out that in winter time all he had to do was to round up Buffalo at Yellowstone Park, and do nothing the rest of the season, Bob said: "Maybe I could get you a job in the movies. How about it?" Wenn Wright—and, by the way, that's his real name—replied: "You know some more funny stories?" To make a long story longer, a couple of months later Bob sent him his car fare to Hollywood. And the cowboy arrived. He was as green as new alfalfa. One of the first persons he met was Anita Loos, who made a test of him for Metro and it was good. Then Harry Sherman, of "Hopalong Cassidy," saw him and for a year he's been getting experience. Now Wenn's just signed his first thrilling contract, with salary doubling every six months.

One thing Mae West doesn't worry about is being behind the eight ball. Because Mae's got it all figured out, 8 is her lucky number. Born on August 17, eighth month and on a date adding up to 8. Car license is 3W5—another 8. Her dressing room number is 116—you count it up; home address 611. When she reported for the hotel sequence in "Little Chicadee" she discovered the number on her door was 8. And to prove figures don't lie, she's counted up the letters in her costarring partner's name—W. C. Fields, and that's 8. So if you've got a little eight-ball in your home, just send it along to Mae—she'll love it . . . And, by the way, just in case you've wondered who owns the car with license plate "Egypt B-380 Cairo"—you can relax, it's Frank Morgan . . . I'm more than happy that Ben Juddell is producing a picture which he claims has the endorsement of many veteran organizations and Gold Star Mothers chapters—'cause it's an anti-war picture called "Gold Star Mothers." And was inspired by the campaign to keep our boys from marching over there.

When the carpenters built the "Grapes of Wrath" set they were simply disgusted, and knew the old shack they built would fall apart. Sure enough, it did, just from the vibration of the actors' feet . . . Phil Harris has been ribbed so much about his wavy hair that it finally got under his skin. So the other day on the "Buck Benny Rides Again" set he ducked his head in a bucket of cold water, got his hair dripping wet and said: "There—you smart guys. Will that prove to you that my hair is an act of God and not a marcel wave?" . . . "There's gold in this Rolls," said a Yuma miner when he paid $250 for Travis Banton's imported English car. Present owner will use it to take clients and sell stock in his gold mine near Yuma . . . Rodian Rathbone is not returning to Hollywood. He's waiting in Canada for the next drive, so he can enlist and go "over there" . . .

Louella O. Parsons

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

San Francisco, Calif., Nov. 14 (INS). Well, here I am in San Francisco, getting ready for the big event of my life—stage appearance at the Golden Gate Theater with my youthful pals, Jane Wyman, Ronald Reagan, Arleen Whelan, Susan Hayward and June Preisser. In the midst of hehearsals a telephone call came from Hollywood this morning saying that "Countess Maritza," the charming musical which ran for 321 consecutive performances, had been bought by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for Ilona Massey. I was under the impression it had been acquired previously, but according to the movie company such is not the case. I am reliably informed that $25,000 was the price paid.

LOUELLA PARSONS

While we are on the subject of "Countess Maritza," I just heard that "The Merry Widow" will probably be remade in a modern version. "The Merry Widow" waltz and all Franz Lehar's lovely music will never die. Wonder if you remember the fascinating silent movie with Mae Murray and John Gilbert and then, later, Jeannette MacDonald and Maurice Chevalier sang the unforgettable tunes in the talkie version.

Just heard that Rowland Brown, who can write screen hits like few others, has signed a deal with Harry Cohn whereby he becomes a producer-director-writer. I must say he has a hot idea lined up for his first production, "Back in France," which will reunite those two he-men, Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe. This new yarn of Brown's is described as a 1939 version of "What Price Glory?" with Eddie and Vic resuming their old feud on the Maginot Line in the present war. The picture, which gets under way January 20, will be made on the Selznick lot and released through Columbia.

Mary Pickford, whose career in motion pictures has never been equaled by any other woman in the world, has retired. She says she will let nothing interfere with her happiness with Buddy Rogers and she feels the most important thing in the world is not to remain away from him too long. She came out to Marson's farm for luncheon on Sunday and while we were rehearsing for the personal appearance tour, she picked radishes to send to Buddy who is still on tour. And good radishes they were, too, if I do say so as shouldn't. Bet I'll be thinking of them and all the other things growing in sunny California in November when I am in the cold region.

Can't say I envy Benny Bartlett his career of being a "second Mickey Rooney," for that young man is hard to live up to. But with the original copy breaking box-office records every time he appears, Charles Rogers may be smart trying to fit his 13-year-old player, who made a hit for himself in "Our Neighbors the Carters," into the Rooney shoes. Freckled-faced young Benny is just at the age Mickey was when he first attracted attention with his smart-aleck manner and in many other ways the boys are alike. Benny, like Mickey, composes songs, plays lots of musical instruments and "hoofs" with the best of them. Imitations aren't usually successful, but maybe Benny can make us like it.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Maxine Jones, Buck's pretty daughter, and Noah Beery, jr., have set the wedding date for January 10; three people wired to say that Hedy Lamarr looked too gorgeous at the Beverly Wilshire wearing a diamond as big as a rock in her hair—but why was Gene Markey turned out in a navy full-dress uniform? Zorina gets back to the coast to start rehearsals on "European Plan" which is now titled "I Was an Adventuress." Alexander Woollcott is due in Hollywood December 1—but not to talk any movie plans. He'll visit his old friend, Ruth Gordon; the "Virginia City" troupe can't stand much more. Errol Flynn has a broken finger, Miriam Hopkins has a sore throat and today Big Boy Williams was taken to the hospital with arthritis.

Charles Laughton, who still isn't over that ear trouble, left for New York with Elsa Lanchester to see some shows—and a doctor. They don't be back for two weeks; Johnny Weissmuller is leaving the bride long enough to go on a hunting jaunt before he starts "Tarzan in London;" sorry I couldn't accept Pat O'Brien's offer to be present at their Bel Air house-warming because Pat and Eloise give such good parties.

But that's all for today. See you tomorrow.

Sidney Howard's Final Comedy And New Films to Vie for Favor

'Madam, Will You Walk?' Starring George M. Cohan, Next at National; Many New Pictures Tomorrow

"MADAM, WILL YOU WALK?" The late Sidney Howard's final contribution to the American theater, a comedy, will be next week's attraction at the National Theater, with George M. Cohan in the starring role. The star has the part of the ageless and protean Dr. Brightlee and the setting is that of an old New York household. Peggy Conklin is a warm-hearted Irish girl and Sarah Allgood plays her opera-singer aunt from Dublin. Arthur Kennedy, Keenan Wynn, Florenz Ames, Lloyd Gough and Edward McNamara are other players of note in the company. Directed by Margaret Webster, the production was designed by Robert Edmond Jones and boasts incidental music composed especially for the comedy by Kurt Weill. It is presented under the auspices of The Playwright's Company. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

Palace

"BABES IN ARMS." Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland co-star for the first time in the screen adaptation of the Rogers and Hart musical comedy, marking Rooney's first assignment in a musical film. It is the story of the passing of vaudeville and the attempt of a group of former headliners to rescue their fading fortunes. When they fail, their talented youngsters come to their aid and attract Broadway attention. There are many new tunes and the supporting cast includes Charles Winninger, Guy Kibbe, June Preisser, Grace Hayes, Irene Franklin, Betty Jaynes, Douglas McPhail, Rand Brooks, Leni Lynn and Johnny Sheffield. Opens tomorrow morning.

RKO-Keith's

"ALLEGHENY UPRISING." Remembered from their success in the leading roles of "Stage Coach," Claire Trevor and John Wayne have the co-starring roles in this Pennsylvania story of the 1760's. The frontier settlers take up arms against the British Crown because army officials refuse to stop dishonest traders from supplying Indians with arms and ammunition. Wayne is the leader of the settlers and Miss Trevor plays a fiery frontierswoman. George Sanders, Brian Donlevy, Wilfred Lawson, Robert Barrat, John F. Hamilton, Moroni Olsen and Eddie Quillan have featured roles. The story was adapted from Neil Swanson's novel, "The First Rebel." Opens tomorrow morning.

Earle

"WE ARE NOT ALONE." Paul Muni abandons historical roles to appear as a simple country doctor in this picturization of the James Hilton novel. Jane Bryan, Flora Robson, Raymond Severn, Una O'Connor, Henry O'Neil and Montagu Love are others in the cast, for which Mr. Hilton himself prepared the screen play. The "La Conga Revue," featuring Eddie Le Baron and his orchestra, will be the stage attraction.

Capitol

"AT THE CIRCUS." The Marx Brothers pounce on the "biggest show on earth" as the setting for their newest lunacies. The action concerns two routabouts who engage a crackpot lawyer to keep the show from failing. Of course, Groucho is the lawyer. The others concerned include Kenny Baker, Florence Rice, Nat Pendleton, Eve Arden, Jerry Marenghi, Margaret Dumont, Fritz Feld, and Barnett Parker. On the stage, "Swell Hotel" will take the audience behind the scenes of a Washington hostelry. Comedian George Beatty, piano-humorist Don Zelaya, dancing Rita and Ed Oehman, Kathryn Mayfield, the Five Juggling Jewels and the Capitol Buckerettes are the performers. Opens tomorrow morning.

Metropolitan

"THE ROARING TWENTIES." After a week at the Earle, this Mark Hellinger story of the hectic prohibition era in New York returns, starring James Cagney, Priscilla Lane, Humphrey Bogart, Gladys George, Frank McHugh, Jeffrey Lynn and Paul Kelly are featured. Opens Friday morning.

Columbia

"HOLLYWOOD CAVALCADE." Alice Faye and Don Ameche have the leads in this panorama of cinema history, which already has had a two-week run at the Palace. Chester Conklin, Buster Keaton, Al Jolson, J. Edward Bromberg, Alan Curtis, Stuart Erwin and Donald Meek are in the cast. Opens tomorrow morning.

Little

"PYGMALION." Last season's most phenomenal success, Bernard Shaw tale of the phonetics professor and the Cockney flower girl, is revived with Leslie Howard, Wendy Hiller, Wilfred Lawson, Marie Lohr and Scott Sunderland in the leading parts. Opens this morning.

Trans-Lux

"FOOLS WHO MADE HISTORY." The principal short subject at the newsreel house will concern Charles Goodyear's accidental discovery of vulcanizing. "Future Admirals" takes one to Annapolis and "Officer Duck" reveals the Disney comedian in a new role. "Homes of Today," an added attraction, discusses housing. Opens Friday morning.

Gayety

"WINE, WOMAN AND SONG." "Society's Glamour Girl," Diane Rowland, is the special feature of the new burlesque production promised for Sunday afternoon. Maxie Furman, comedian, is starred. The other performers include Iloah, dancer; Harry Evanson, comedian; Dorothy Darling, dancing starlet; Herbie Barrish and a chorus of vivacious dancers.

Atlas

SMILEY BURNETTE will headline the new vaudeville revue opening a four-day engagement at the northeast house on Sunday afternoon. The comic "One Man Band," noted for his films with Gene Autrey, will bring a group of Hollywood cowboys with him. Another stage attraction will be Lou Handman, composer of the currently popular "Baby Me," which will be sung by Florrie Levere. "Thunder Afloat" is to be the screen feature.

Riverside Stadium

"THE ICE FOLLIES OF 1940." will continue through Saturday evening prior to its New York engagement at Madison Square Garden. A spectacular melange of comedy and beauty, the revue features Evelyn Chandler, Bess Ehrhardt, Roy Shipstad, Frick and Frack, Shipstad and Johnson and the 24 ice queens. There will be a special matinee Saturday.

Reunited in Thrilling Picture

JOHN WAYNE AND CLAIRE TREVOR, remembered for sterling work in "Stage Coach," who will be seen together again in the costellar roles of "Allegheny Uprising," new RKO-Radio production, opening on the screen at RKO-Keith's Theater tomorrow. Miss Trevor, it will be recalled, was a recent visitor to Washington for a day

Hope's Technique Rooted in Logic

Director Elliot Nugent took Bob Hope to task the other day on the set of "The Cat and the Canary."

"You have a tendency," Nugent cautioned, "to project your wisecracks too far out beyond the camera—like a stage comic playing to the back of the house. How come your radio experience hasn't taught you to play to the first few rows?"

"Well, it's like this," explained Hope. "At my broadcasts the first few rows are always filled with my relatives, who get in on passes, and they won't laugh anyway, so what's the use?"

Laughton Screen's Premier Seafarer

Charles Laughton has clinched the honor of being the films' most persistent seafarer. His latest film, "Jamaica Inn," concerns itself with shipwrecking pirates who preyed on traffic along the Cornish coast early in the nineteenth century.

Laughton plays the leader of as fragrant a band of cutthroats as ever leered from a screen. And they're all well sprinkled with sea salt.

Three times before this, Laughton performances have been involved with the briny. He was a naval officer in the first American film, "The Devil and the Deep." His Capt. Bligh in "Mutiny on the Bounty" remains a classic of deep sea and deep dyed villainy. And in "The Beachomber," now playing second runs, the sea casts up the rotund actor as a derelict on South Sea shores.

Probably Mr. Laughton sings chanties in his bath.

Other 'Name' Teams Being Approached

Place Among Football Powers of Nation Sought by Hoyas; 1941 Dates Likely

In line with Georgetown University's stated policy of improving its football schedule and taking its place with the gridiron powers of the country, H. Gabriel Murphy, graduate manager of athletics, declared last night that negotiations were under way for a home and home series with the University of Pittsburgh.

Murphy also admitted that Georgetown is in touch with other leading teams, in the Big Ten and Ivy League, as well as those independent of any league or association.

Although Athletic Director Jimmy Hagan, of Pittsburgh, denied last night that he and Murphy had discussed a football series between the two colleges, Murpay said he had been in communication with Hagan for more than a year. All negotiations have been carried on through written correspondence, Murphy said, and there is more than a slight chance that Pittsburgh will be booked for 1941 for a game to be played at Griffith Stadium.

Nothing Definite

"You may quote me as saying Georgetown and Pittsburgh are carrying on negotiations for a football series," Murphy declared, "but as yet nothing definite has been done.

"There are several obstacles to such a series. The biggest would be the large guarantee Pittsburgh might demand to play in Washington, and another is Pitt's future athletic policy. They might continue to grow weaker, whereas Georgetown is determined to grow stronger.

"We are on the lookout for games which will enable us to bring the outstanding teams of the country here."

Newcomer Unlikely

Georgetown's schedule for 1940 is known to be nearly complete and so there is little chance that a new major team will appear on the Hoyas' slate until 1941. This weekend in New York Murphy will have opportunity to talk with athletic directors and coaches of many of the best teams in the East and there is a strong possibility that something may be accomplished.

Among the teams Georgetown is known to be seeking are Virginia, Colgate and Michigan State.

Significance is attached to the presence of Colgate on the Hilltop's 1939-40 basketball schedule. Colgate and Georgetown have not met in athletics since 1932. J. H. M.

Playoff Set If Western Pro Teams Tie

Prospect of Three-Way Deadlock Brings Move By League President

By the Associated Press

Dayton, Ohio, Nov. 14.—Facing the prosepct of a three-way tie among the Green Bay Packers, Detroit Lions and Chicago Bears for the championship of the Western division of the National Profesional Football eLague, President Carl L. Storck today announced there would be a three-way playoff in such an eventuality.

"Should there be a tie," said Storck, "the deadlocked clubs will be requested to draw for the first time, with the odd team drawing a bye. The playoffs of the tie would start December 10 and continue on the following Sundays until the division championship is decided. The games will be played at times and places to be determined by the club owners and the league president, who also shall determine what procedure to follow in the event of tie games."

Detroit and Green Bay already are tied for the Western division. The National League started its playoff system, in which the Eastern winner meets the Western winner, in 1933 and so far the divisional titles have been decided without ties.

Jock Sutherland New Navy Coach? Report Is Denied

Pittsburgh, Nov. 14 (AP).—The Post-Gazette said tonight Dr. John Bain (Jock) Sutherland, former Pitt football coach, definitely has signed a contract to coach an Eastern team next season and that the announcement will be made within a fortnight or at the season's close.

The Eastern school to which Sutherland's name recently has been most closely linked is Navy. He declined to comment on the report.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 14 (AP).—Commender Ward P. Davis, Navy Athletic Association official, said tonight Naval Avademy officials denied last spring they had sought Dr. John Bain, (Jock) Sutherland as football coach for Navy and that the denial "still stands."

The Naval Academy in recent years has followed the policy of assigning graduates to the head coaching job.

Blackout Prevents Practice at Clemson

Clemson, S. C., Nov. 14 (AP).—Clemson's preparations for its game Saturday with Southwestern were cut short tonight as the floodlights blinked and plunged the playing field into darkness.

Prior to a scheduled scrimmage, the backs and linemen were rushed through limbering-up drills, spent some time blocking and worked briefly on pass offense and defense.

Youthful Canadians Expect FFine Season; Riverside Rink Busy

By Jack Munhall.

The staccato cracks of hard wooden sticks against glistening ice and thethumps of bodies crashing one against the other and into the restraining wall yesterday signaled the advent of a new major sport in Washington.

In the gaily decorated Riverside Stadium, where the Ice Follies are at present holding forth, the Washington Eagles ice hockey squad held its first practice here. The Eagles make their debut in the Eastern Ice Hockey League Friday night in Atlantic City and move over to New York for a Saturday afternoon contest with the Rovers before opening their season here Tuesday night at Riverside.

The Eagles, sporting flashy red, white and blue uniforms similar in design to those worn once by the George Washington University football team, are recently returned from their preseason training session in Canada. Under the direction of Coach Redvers Mackenzie the squad now is rapidly rounding into top playing condition.

Eagles Boast Youth

The Eagles, their quiet-spoken coach will tell you, are an unusually young team and comparatively inexperienced, for two of the veteran players whom Mackenzie had counted on to lend needed age and balance walked out on him. However, Coach Mackenzie is sold on the smoothfaced youngsters he has.

"These kids," he said, waving toward the trim figures sailing over the ice with amazing speed, "are the most spirited and the nicest bunch of boys I ever have handled."

"I believe we will have a fast and colorful club. How good? It's hard to say now. It takes time to build up a championship team in ice hockey, just as in baseball and football. However, whether we win the Eastern League title or not, I can promise the Washington fans that they'll see an alert and determined team in the Eagles. There is not a quitter on the squad and I know that win, lose or draw they'll be in there battling right down to the wire'."

No Player Shortage

The Eagles presently are carrying a surplus of players. League rules permit only 14 players in uniform for a game, but most of the Eastern Amateur clubs have a spare goalie who is held ready to dress should the starter be removed from the game for any reason.

Mackenzie, who said he lost a couple of championships while at Atlantic City because he didn't have sufficient alternates intends to be prepared for anything. If he doesn't win the title, he says, at least it won't be lost through scarcity of material.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—A persistent rumor that a compromise candidate may figure in the fight for the presidency of the Professional Golfers Asscoiation and the factual report that tournament pros will shoot at $200,000 in prize money next year emerged from today's opening session of the twenty-third annual convention.

Officers will be elected tomorrow and a new president is assured since George Jacobus, the incumbent, has announced he will not be a candidate for the post he has held seven years. Ed Dudley, of Philadelphia, chairman of the tournament committee, and Tom Walsh, of Chicago, national secretary, long have been mentioned as candidates but up to today were the only ones expected to be nominated.

Today, however, came a report that if Dudley and Walsh muster comparatively equal strength, the name of Vice President William Maguire, of Houston, Tex., will be

New York, Nov. 14.—"A team that won't be beaten can't be beaten," runs football's favorite fighting phrase. Today you can add to that, "and a team that can't be scored on won't be ousted from first place in the National football rankings."

Admittedly Tennessee's schedule isn't up to the caliber of those of Texas A. and M., Southern California or Notre Dame. Yet the Volunteers have come through seven games this fall, as well as their last five last season, without having thir goal line crossed. That convincing argument, plus the high esteem in which they're held by all who have seen them perform, keeps the Vols at the head of the parade in the fifth Associated Press ranking poll.

They are there for the fourth straight week, topping the list by 66 first-place votes and 1,014 points to 28 first-place votes and 877 points for Texas Aggies. Together, these two high-geared machines drew all but 19 of the 113 first-place ballots cast by the Nation's experts.

Dukes Gain Circle

While Tennessee held first place safe and unbeaten and untied, Duquesne moved in with the elect at last place in the top ten, Texas A. and M. improved its position considerably. Homer Norton's Southwest Conference leaders, aiming at the No. 1 spot won for the Southwest in 1938 by Texas Christian, showed an increase of 22 first-place votes over last week, and ran their second-place margin from 2 points to 31.

Duquesne, taking the place of twice-beaten Michigan, was the week's only newcomer to the first ten. The one-point victory of Iowa over Notre Dame brought about the other realignment, for not only did it give the Hawkeyes 37 points for fifteenth place, but it pushed Notre Dame down from third place to ninth and moved Southern California, Cornell, Oklahoma, Tulane, North Carolina and Ohio State up one notch in that order. The Trojans now are third, while only 30 points separate Cornell, Oklahoma and Tulane in fourth, fifth and sixth.

Four Perfect Records

Tennessee, Texas A. and M., Cornell and Duquesne have perfect records and stand a good chance of finishing their schedules that way. Southern California, Oklahoma, Tulane and North Carolina have been tied. Ohio State and Notre Dame have one defeat each.

Among the second ten and the also-rans, San Jose, (Calif.) State, with 3 points, is unbeaten and untied in 10 games, while U. C. L. A.,

Washington Deal For Toledo Club Is Called Off

Toledo, Ohio, Nov. 14 (AP).—Negotiations between the Washington Senators of the American League and the Toledo Mud Hens of the American Association have been called off and a working agreement between Toledo and the St. Louis Browns probably will be arranged within a week, President Waldo Shank of the Toledo club said today.

President Donald Barnes of the Browns and Secretary William Dewitt will be here next week to complete the deal, Shank said.

Pompoon, 1936 Two-Year-Old Champion, Dies

By the Associated Press

Hyde, Md., Nov. 14.—Death today ended the arcing career of Pompoon, big black thoroughbred who won the 2-year-old championsip of the turf in 1936 and was runne-up in the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness in 1937.

The 5-year-old son of Pompey—Oonagh died unexpectedly in his stall at the Three Cousins Stock Farm of his owner, J. H. Louchhein, in Long Green Valley, where he had been resting since he broke down last summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Louchheim, who had been staying at the farm during the Pimlico meeting, were so deeply affected by Pompoon's death that it was indicated they would cut short their stay and return to their Philadelphia home.

Emergency treatment failed to save Pompoon after he had been found down and in distress in his stall. His death came only 24 hours after a veterinarian had commented that he seemed to be reaching fine condition. Had he lived, Pompoon probably would have been booked for the stud next year.

In his championship 2-year-old season, Pompoon won six starts and $80,000, to become winter-book favorite for the Kentucky Derby. But the following year, War Admiral ruled the 3-year-olds and beat Pompoon in both the Derby and Preakness.

Making a comeback in 1938, Pompoon won the Dixie Handicap at Pimlico, setting a new track record of 156 4-5 for a mile and three-sixteenths from a stall-gate start. He also won the San Carlos Handicap at Santa Anita and earned $40,550 that year.

Heurich League Meeting Tonight

An important meeting of the Heurich Amateur Basketball League is scheduled for the Hurich business office tonight at 7 o'clock.

Ten teams are to comprise the 1939-40 circuit, and each club is asked to have a representative present tonight.

The teams are Dixie Tavern, Garvin's Grill, Petworth A. C., F. B. I., Regal, Jewish Community Center, Delaware & Hudson, United Typewriters, D. C. Fire Department and a team to be announced tonight.

Ernie Nevers Unawed by Redskins

Cardinal Coach Has Seen Team in Action And Is Not Worried

Ernie Nevers, of Stanford, owner of a name that used to terrorize the opposition a decade and a half ago when Pop Warner's Indians were the scourage of college football, displayed no awe yesterday at the prospect of sending his Chicago Cardinals against the Washington Redskins.

Coaching a team that has won only one league game this season, Nevers maintained that his Cardinals were no long-shots against the Redskins.

"The Giants were off-side all afternoon when they beat us, 17 to 7, last Sunday," said Nevers, "but they were getting away with it. We outgained them and as far as I am concerned we could lick 'em in a return game."

Nevers has seen the Redskins in action once this season. He took advantage of an open date three weeks ago to scout the Redskins at Milwaukee where they were playing the Packers.

"And if the Redskins show us no more than they showed me against the Packers, we're going to lick 'em on Sunday," said Nevers.

Nevers' chief difficulty in his first year as coach of the Cardinals has been his lack of a forward passer. Jack Robbins, the former Arkansas ace, has been laid low for five weeks by injuries, and Nevers has been unable to muster another dependable aerial bomber.

Says One Good Passer Would Put His Teah Up With the Best

"Give us a man who can throw a ball in the same backfield with Marshall Goldberg and we'd be a tough club to beat," said Nevers. "Goldberg is improving in every game, but he can't carry the load alone. He's beginning to get help, though, from Frank Patrick, and the Cardinals are playing better ball."

The Cardinals, despite their lowly position in the league standings, boast more genuine all-Americans than any other team in the league. In addition to Goldberg and Patrick, the graduated Pitt aces, the Cardinals can send into action the Texas Christian U. star of last season, Center Ki Aldrich; Bill Smith, University of Washington's famed back; backfield men Milton Popovich, of Montana, and George Faust, of Min-

Announce Seven-Game Schedule

$100,000 System Planned for Club Which 'Would Never Play Under Lights'

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 14.—The New York Giants breathlessly announced night baseball in the Polo Grounds today—after just about every baseball writer in town had been announcing it for them for weeks.

"We're going to have the finest lighting plant in the game for 1940," President Horace Stoneham said.

"We'll play our first game at home either the last week in May or the first in June, and will have seven games under the lights during the 1940 season. We'll invite each of the other clubs in the league to play one night game at the Polo Grounds."

Last Objector Falls

Thus one of the last major league strongholds against night ball passed out of the picture. Just about a year ago this time the Giants vowed they would never play under the lights, either at home or abroad. Every other team in both leagues saw some nighttime action during last season, although several teams refused to install lights on their home fields.

The reason for the about-face could not be learned. Giants' officials hemmed and hawed somewhat when the question was put to them. The rumor is Bill Terry was the chief arguer against the lights, but that when club officials realized the revenue from it, they overrode Sweet William.

Now the club is going the whole hog. Not only will there be seven night games in the Polo Grounds next season, but the Giants also will play under the lights in Cincinnati, Philadelphia and Brooklyn.

'We originally had planned to wait until 1941 to start," Stoneham explained, "but since we made the decision finally, and figured the revenue is so high, we though we might just as well start in 1940. However, we'll have no foot-racing or circus stunts before our games, although we may have a band."

Construction will start soon after January 1, he explained, and the entire plant will be ready April 1.

There will be eight towers, extending 150 feet above the playing field and 70 feet above the roof of the stands. The installation will cost more than $100,000 and operation of the 200,000,000-candlepower system will cost about $300 per game.

"Mr. Stoneman," one wag interrupted to ask, 'are you in favor of a blackout whenever Zeke Bonura comes to the plate?"

Mr. Stoneham refused to answer.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

It is none of our business, of course, but it is difficult to ignore the goings-on at the University of Maryland where they apparently are getting ready to fire a pretty good football coach. When it is announced that Frank Dobson has "resigned," that will merely be a polite way of putting it.

POVICH

The gates are swinging outward for Dobson at Maryland. That much is established. To reports that Dobson will not be rehired and that Dick Harlow, of Harvard, will get the Maryland coaching job, President H. C. Byrd won't say yes, but he won't say no. One may draw his own conclusions. Mr. Byrd could scotch the rumors with a word, but he hasn't chosen to do that.

One wonders if the Maryland student body, the students advisory council and the Maryland "M" Club are entirely gumptionless in the matter of merely resigned to a belief that they could raise only a thin voice of protest. Thus far there has been a tendency to throw up their hands in a gesture of helplessness and repeat that President Byrd runs the show at Maryland.

There has been no evidence that Maryland's football players or Maryland's students desire a coaching change at College Park. The Maryland Diamondback, the campus weekly, has never raised a single bleat against Dobson. In fact, there is some doubt that Maryland has ever had a football coach as popular as the tall, thin man with the gentlemanly mien.

'Dobbie' Is Highly Respected as a Coach

Maryland may, perhaps, replace Dobson with a better football coach, but the College Park school is scarcely likely to replace him with a figure who would command more respect for Maryland in the places where men gather to talk of football, of sportsmanship and of football coaches as gentlemen. There is doubt that important Maryland victories of yore have contributed as much to good will for Maryland as the pregame and postgame conduct of Frank Dobson.

The most gracious loser and at the same time the most modest winner in the history of football in Washington—that's the reputation earned by Dobbie in the five years he has been a part of the coaching scene. Coach Jack Hagerty, of Georgetown, sounded a responsive note this week when he said of the Georgetown-Maryland game: "There was only one phase of Georgetown's victory over Maryland in which I could take no pleasure. I was sorry that the team we beat was Dobbie's."

But lest the impression be given that Dobson is a perennial losing coach, it had better be observed that the man can look back on one of the proudest coaching records in the Nation. In more than 30 years of coaching, he has encountered only four losing seasons—when his team lost more games than they won. Dobson-coached teams have always been teams to be reckoned with. Back in 1935, the announcement that Dobson had been appointed head coach of Maryland was met with unanimous approval.

Achieved Coach Miracle in Hoya Game

Mr. Byrd, himself, on that occasion described Dobson "as one of the finest football coaches in the country." No longer ago than last season, Dobson achieved something of a coaching miracle when he brought his Maryland team up to the annual game with Georgetown. Maryland had lost six straight games, Georgetown at the time was undefeated. The Hoyas loomed as the winners by a margin of four or five touchdowns, but at half time they were trailing, 7 to 6, and ultimately licked Dobson's team, 14 to 7, by throwing two passes over the head of a substitute back.

Dobson has endeared himself to fellow coaches, players and fans by plumping ceaselessly for the proper recognition of the boys in the line who do the heavy-duty work while the backs reap the headlines. His heroes weren't the fleet lads who galloped over the goal lines, but the begrimed guards, centers and tackles who buried their noses in the turf and paved the way.

Many a game that Maryland lost on the football field it figuratively won in the dressing room after the finish, where Dobbie consoled his lads with fatherly philosophy. In the dressing room he scored a bigger victory in point of character building than the opposing coach had won on the field. He could take a football team to task, but never after the game. He seemed somehow always to regard football as a game, not an objective to be stormed at any cost.

It's Not Entirely Dobson's Fault

These last two seasons of Dobson's at Maryland have been dreary ones, competively. In 1938, his team lost seven straight games. This year Maryland has lost five straight since winning the two openers. Bluntly, it hasn't been Dobson's fault. The material at Maryland would be scoffed at by any ambitious coach.

But Dobson's coaching skill was apparent even in the 20-7 defeat by Georgetown last week. The plays he had given the Maryland team were beautiful to behold in point of football strategy. This his Maryland players could not execute them well was scarcely a reflection on Dobson. They simply had no great aptitude for football.

The material that Dobson hasn't been getting will begin to flow into Maryland with the coming of another coach. Big Maryland high schools which has never sponsored football last year began to take up the sport. Dobson had been dealing with rank novices, lads who scarcely knew the feel of a football when they came to Maryland. Just when a football coach at Maryland will begin to get a fair shake, Dobson apparently is getting bounced. We think it's a heluva note.

With CONSIDINE

New York, Nov. 14.—Notes and comment:

If Cincinnati gets a franchise in the National Football League it will be controlled by Young Jock McLean, the kind of fellow the pro league needs more of . . . Lou Schaefer, trainer of the great Challedon, is full of rheumatism—which may possibly be the result of his early life as a jockey . . . When he first came East from Idaho to ride he used to sleep in the barns at the old Benning track in Washington.

CONSIDINE

Some 4,000 sportswriters will assist in the sports program to raise funds for the infantile paralysis foundation . . . The best football game in the country this Saturday should be Iowa against Minnesota . . . Give me the Gophers . . . The linking of North and South America, through sports, reached another milestone today when an oil company bought the rights to the Louis-Godoy short wave broadcast . . . Speaking of oil companies, one in Staten Island refused to give one of its young employes a furlough to try out with the Yankees (he had been approached by Scout Paul Kritchell), yet gave another of its employes, who is treasurer of the Staten Island Division of the German-American Bund, a 5-month leave to visit relatives in Germany.

Dodgers Spurned Farkas

We liked Jack Singer's crack, after the officials had inflicted 19 penalties in the Fordham-Indiana game: "Folks around here haven't heard so much whistle blowing since Dixie Davis took the stand" . . . We've never seen a better football player than Andy Farkas, the Redskin back who simply demoralized the Dodgers last Sunday . . . Brooklyn turned him down for fear he couldn't learn the signals . . . The secret of his incredible ability to keep his feet, as he belts his way through those would-be tacklers, is that he is as flat-footed as Donald Duck.

Mike Jacobs, who usually doesn't care for anything connected with boxing except the state of his ticket office, has developed a fatherly interest in Billy Conn . . . He wants him to win all the time; roots for him . . . Mike got sore at Jersey Jones the other day because Jersey, occasionally a Jacobs' publicity man, let his fighter, Charley Ketchuk, box in a gymnasium against Gus Lesnevich—who is training to fight Conn . . . Mike once fired another press agent, Reds Cohen, for standing up at the ringside and yelling "atta boy, Nathan!" when Nathan Mann hit Joe Louis, Mike's gold mine, on the chin.

Conn Staked by Manager

Speaking of Conn, the present light-heavyweight champion had to scale a fence at Forbes Field only five years ago to see the Dundee-Yarosz fight . . . His manager, Johnny Ray, who used to hit the bottle harder than the bottle could hit him back, was en route one day to a place in Pittsburgh, where he could get two quarts of throat-burner for a buck . . . On the way he saw Conn, whom he had just picked up . . . Ray used the buck to buy him a quarter cap and a pair of second-hand shoes for 75 cents . . . Conn and Ray are in the chips today . . . Billy started a trust fund shortly after reading Ruby Goldstein's sob story in Athlete.

The Giants-Redskin game should be moved to the Yankee Stadium . . . The Polo Grounds, though a better field from a spectator's viewpoint, isn't big enough to hold the mob that will want to see that one . . . The reported resignation of Maryland's F. B. Coach, Frank Dobson, effective at the end of the season, deprives the game of one of its finest characters . . . There is a move on at Georgetown to bring back Babe Connaughton in some athletic capacity, to help attract a big 1941 and 1942 grid schedule to go with the great team Georgetown has in the oven . . . If the Redskins win the pro football pennant they ought to cut a couple of Washington sportswriters in on the pennant melon, because Ray Flaherty, the coach, has been hopping up his players this year by reading them adverse criticism.

Woodmont Club Heralds Hunting Season Opening

Gov. O'Conor, Babe Ruth AttendDinner

Rod, Gun Club Holds Annual Banuet as Prelude to Field Sport Starting Today

Hancock, Md., Nov. 14.—With Maryland's Governor, Herbert R. O'Conor, and baseball's George Herman (Babe) Ruth as guests of honor, the annual dinner of the Woodmont Rod & Gun Club, near here, was held tonight, heralding the opening of the hunting season tomorrow.

The Governor, Ruth and 60 other members and guests of the club will hunt for wild turkeys, ducks and other small wild game on the club's 5,000 acre preserve tomorrow.

This dinner, an annual event since Rear Admiral "Fighting Bob" Evans founded the club over half a century ago, is an important prelude to the Maryland hunting season, and has attracted many distinguished guests, including five Presidents of the United States. For 31 years the various Governors of Maryland have attended the dinner, one of the rules of which is that no dinner coats be worn.

Another rule observed by everyone is that what is said by speakers at the dinner is off the record.

Henry P. Bridges, secretary-treasurer of the Woodmont Club, presided as toastmaster and introduced Edward E. Jenkins, Warrenton, Va., the president of the club.

The guests, in addition to the Governor and Ruth, included United States Senators Robert Taft and M. N. Nelly; Dr. James A. Lyon, Robert Lyon and Dr. Earle Breeding, all of Washington; Robert F. Edge, Jack Matthews, Harry Egley and Arthur J. Morris, president of the Morris Plan Banks, of New York; H. Lee Homan, E. Lee LeComte, Col. H. C. Jones, Peter C. Chambliss, J. Douglas Freeman, J. Fred Graves, John E. Greiner, E. Russell Allen, John Faller, Herman Morris, Stuart Oliver, W. Carroll Head, J. Harlan Williams, Addison E. Mullikin, David B. Baker and J. Hammond Brown, all of Baltimore.

Walter A. Jones, Harrisburg, Pa.; A. B. Knight and Judge Harry Watkins, Fairmont, W. Va.; R. L. Cawood, East Liverpool, Ohio; Norbert S. Garvisch, Butler, Pa.; Jesse A. Bloch and John Sands, Wheeling, W. Va.; James T. Begg and David Ingalls, Cleveland, Ohio; Donald C. Watson, Boston, Mass.; John Poston and Representative Roy Woodruff, of Columbus, Ohio; T. E. V.; Robert McCandlish, I. G. Robinson, Max Richards, J. Andrew Cohill, Frank Beard, Dr. L. M. Shaffer, Dr. H. E. Tabler, Dr. H. R. Tobias, Dr. C. T. Pyles, Lewis Ripple, Omar Carryer, Robert Bridges and William Murray, all of Hancock.

Hundreds of Hunters Set for 45-Day Season

Baltimore, Nov. 14 (AP).—Hundreds of hunters primed their fowling-pieces tonight for the opening tomorrow of Maryland's 45-day season on upland game and waterfowl.

Officials of the Maryland State game an dinland fish commission said extensive surveys throughout the State indicated the season would be one of the best in years for hunters of waterfowl as well as game.

In the Susquehanna flat sector the greatest invasion of ducks in 10 years was reported, and similar reports came from all sections of the Eastern Shore, where some of the heaviest bombarding is expected.

Upland game supplies were boosted this year by a good breeding season—an absence of heavy rains and unusual weather disturbances during the summer.

The duck hunting season runs through December 29.

They'll Risk Perfect Slate Against Hagerstown on 'Turkey Day'

Fullback Gets 'Rest' After Tough Duke Battle on Saturday

Special Dispatch to The Post

Lexington, Nov. 14.—Paul Shu, V. M. I.'s captain and fullback, may get a "rest" in a halfback position Saturday against the University of Maryland in Norfolk.

Coach Pooley Hubert, well pleased with his squad's uphill fight under Shu's leadership against Duke last week, is trying to stretch out his limited man power enough to assure successes in the final two games, Maryland and then Virginia Tech at Roanoke.

Roy Replogle, a junior, will be in Shu's regular position against the Terrapins, but Shu will continue to direct the play and call signals.

The Keydets came through the Blue Devil game in fairly good shape. Three sophomore "standouts" of the season—Halfbacks Bosh Pritchard and Nelson Catlett, and Guard Billy Walker—suffered minor bruises and will not see ful-time service Saturday. George Atkison, senor center, may not see any service, in which case Barney Skladany, a sophomore, will replace him.

Sophomore Bill Nugent, who took Pritchard's 27-yard pass and carried it 53 yards to score V. M. I.'s only touchdown on Duke, will start at one end. Earle Mitchell, 5-foot-7 145-pounder, who cleared the last pursurer for Nugent, will be at the opposite end.

Fish Faces Sad Plight In Dyed Lines

Pick Your Own Shade! Newest Style Brings Out Varied Colors

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Nov. 14.—The "poor fish" faces a sadder plight today. Now his human cousins are even dyeing their fishlines for him to stumble over.

Newest of the developments in the tackle industry is the colored line to be introduced this winter at the annual international outdoor sportsmen's show, where hunters and anglers gather to look at the devices to help them get the ones that got away last summer.

The "sea blue" linen fishline was made to answer the complaints of Gulf Stream anglers who said the difference in color of the stream made ordinary salt water lines too visible to the fish.

Lines Will Harmonize

O. F. Cullerton, of the show's staff, predicted that future seasons would see lines colored to harmonize with their users' favorite waters—blue for a blue lake, green for a green lake, or something like that.

Another innovation is the thumbless fresh water reel. It works by means of a complex mechanism of balances. When the line has run the course of the cast the reel slows down to a stop automatically and holds the line taut.

Longer-lived luminous lures are the work of the plastics field. The luminous substance is molded into the lure, giving it greater light absorbing and reflecting power.

In listing this year's special bad news for fish Cullerton gave fishermen the good news that there would be no sharp increase in the price of American-made fishing equipment.

Injured Navy Backs Return To Line-up

No Game Saturday, Middies to Be at Full Strength for Princeton

Special Dispatch to The Post

Annapolis, Nov. 14.—A quartet of highly rated backs—Emmett Wood, Cliff Lenz, Everett Malcolm and Sherwood Werner and Tom McGrath, 215-pound left guard, one of the bulwarks of the forward line, returned to the field this afternoon after periods on the injured list.

Lenz, Malcolm and Werner appeared to be about ready to go and took a substantial part in the practice of the afternoon. Wood and McGrath need a little more time but should be ready by next Monday to get under full steam. As there is no game this week, it looks as if the medical department will fulfill its promise of having everybody ready for the Princeton game.

Monty Whitehead and Pat Gray, backs, and Hal Harwood, regular center, were the only players who were not in uniform today but all should be ready in a day or two.

For Whitehead, who played the best game of his career Saturday against Columbia, it is the first time that injuries have kept him off the field, and even now he could have played in a pinch.

Whitehead, the "Iron man" of the squad, hurt his knee in an early game and has been having some trouble with it, so that Major Larson, head coach, told him to rest it a day or two and then get back to work.

Ray Blades, Cardinals' Moses, Signed to One-Year Contract

Brief Conference Brings an Agreement; Terms Not Revealed

St. Louis, Nov. 14.—Ray Blades, who took over the St. Louis Cardinals and master-minded them into second place in a thrilling chase of the pennant-winning Cincinnati Reds in the National League, was signed to a 1940 contract today.

The 42-year-old manager and Sam Breadon, president of the Cardinals, got together at a brief conference on the terms of a one-year agreement. The salary was not disclosed.

Blades' handling of the Cardinals, who had been consigned to a second-division berth by some experts at the beginning of last season, ranked him as one of baseball's outstanding strategists.

He seemed to have an uncanny ability of knowing just when to yank a pitcher, when to insert a pinch hitter or runner. Some of his complicated maneuvering — pinch hitters for pinch hitters, for example —were puzzling even to those familiar with inside baseball, but in most cases Blades was right.

The record of the short, baldish manager was all the more remarkable because he was serving his first year as a major league pilot. He came to the Cardinals after managing their farm clubs at Columbus and Rochester.

An outfielder during his playing days Blades was with the Cardinals from 1922 to 1932, except for one year spent in the minors after a knee injury.

Broken Leg Fails to Stop Pitt Quarter

Star Played Last 20 Minutes Against Tech With Fractured Bone

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, Nov. 14.—Unknown to the approximately 55,000 fans viewing the Pitt-Carnegie Tech grid battle, Panther quarterback, Ben (Big Chief) Kish, of Tonawanda, N. Y., fought the enemy the last 20 minutes despite a broken right leg.

"Ben hurt his right leg in the second quarter," said Coach Charley Bowser. "He came out of his onw free will which should have been the tipoff to the coaches. He loves to play football about as much as anyone I have ever known.

"During the intermission his injured leg was baked in the dressing room and then taped. When I askedhow it felt he said it was O. K. But he couldn't get much drive. Mike Sekela, his reserve, was hurt in the third period so I asked Ben to warm up. He told me he was all right and I sent him back in.

"He stayed the rest of the ball game and fot off one of his best punts of the entire contest. Saturday night he attended a dance. However, on Sunday he turned up complaining his bruised leg was bothering him. X-ray pictures showed a fracture of the small bone in the leg plus a split up and down from the break. That meant a cast, crutches and the end of his college football career."

Pitt suffered three other serious casualties in the game which, with earlier loss of Center Dick Fullerton from injuries in the Fordham tussle, left only six of the season's original varsity intact.

Lamar and Hart To Fight Monday

Killer Lamar, Southwest Washington colored heavyweight who fanned Cyclone Bailey to sleep in 50 seconds of the first round Monday night at Turner's Arena, will meet Al Hart, Washington Barracks fighter, in the eight-round headline match Monday night at Turner's arena.

Lamar, who was missing from Washington when opponents were being sought for the statuesque Hart during his short-lived knockout career, showed up suddenly with a challenge for Al shortly after the latter was knocked out by Jim Howell, veteran New Yorker.

Two eight-rounders, a six and three fours will complete the card.

Governor Presents Trophy

Special Dispatch to The Post

Leonardtown, Md., Nov. 14.—Gov. Herbert O'Conor will formally present the trophy won by the Huntingtown, Calvert County, baseball team, who are champions of the Southern Maryland Baseball League, at a banquet December 12 at Huntingtown town hall. A dance will follow the banquet.

Roanoke Closes Season Friday With Catawba

Night Game in Salisbury, N. C., Ends Schedule; Razzle-Dazzle Is Plan

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Salem, Va., Nov. 14.—Roanoke College's Maroons, with three victories immediately behind them after a slow start this season, wind things up for the season Friday night against once-beaten Catawba College at Salisbury, N. C.

Driving into their final week of rehearsals, the Maroons are expected to again polish up a wide-open, razzle-dazzle attack that proved very effective in their 31-0 victory over Naval Apprentice last week.

Catawba suffered her first defeat of the season last week at the hands of the Edon Christians, and the Maroons will be out to close their eight-game campaign with a win that would mean a .500 average for the season, something that seemed next to impoisible as Roanoke dropped her first four starts.

Roanoke's great fullback, Bill (The Red) Hancock, bidding for all-State honors because of his brilliant tackling and running, will undoubtedly be the spearhead of the Maroons' offensive threats, although he might be slowed up somewhat by a recurrent leg injury.

Gettysburg Preps For Ursinus Game

Gettysburg, Pa., Nov. 14.—With undisputed possession of the eastern Pennsylvania collegiate football crown depending on the next contest, Coach Hen Bream began preparing his Gettysburg College grid machine here today for its clash with the Ursinus Bears on Saturday.

Although the Bullet offense clicked to perfection against Franklin and Marshall last week-end, the defensive play of the Battlefielders was certainly off form as the 21-21 deadlock in that encounter would certainly indicate. The Orange and Blue line, which had shown up surprisingly well in the Muhlenberg tilt a week before, seemed to wilt before the Diplomat attack.

Ridgley High Loses Its Football Coach

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 14 (AP).—Ridgeley High School's football team, undefeated in seven starts, will complete the season without a regular coach, Principal Melvin Heiskell announced today. He said a basketball coach would be signed within a few days.

Virginia Seeks to Keep Home Record Clean Against V. P. I.

Special Dispatch to The Post

Charlottesville, Nov. 14.—This week's special mission for the University of Virginia Football Team is to wind up the at-home phase of the 1939 scheduie with an undefeated record.

The Gobblers from Virginia Tech, with as much manpower as any team in the State, come to Scott Stadium Saturday for Virginia's final home game, which has been arranged as the season's Commonwealth Day event in honor of State officialdom.

The Cavaliers found the going easier against Hampden-Sydney, Maryland and Chicago, the visiting opponents, as compared with their own away from home calls, but look to the Tech team as probably the most powerful foe since Navy. Although victims of two defeats and one tie in Big Six competition, Coach Redd's Gobblers won a noticeable statistical advantage on every try.

In addition to this aim to make a clean sweep of the home schedule, Coach Frank Murray will also remind his squad that Virginia has never won a game from Tech teams in Scott Stadium. In fact, you have to go all the way back to 1927 to find a Cavalier victory at the Charlottesville end of the series.

On the other hand, Tech has won only once in the new plant. Of the four played since it was opened in 1931, three were ties, with Tech finally winning a 14-to-7 decision in 1937. Virginia's first victory since the historical 1927 event was delayed until last year, at Blacksburg, by a 14-to-6 score.

Special Dispatch to The Post

Blacksburg, Va., Nov. 14.—Virginia Tech has never been beaten in Scott Stadium, home field of the Virginia Cavaliers, and will make a mikhty effort to keep the record unsplotched in the Commonwealth's Day game there Saturday.

The last four games of the 25 that Tech and Virginia have played since 1895 were Scott Stadium encounters. Tech played the Cavaliers to a scoreless tie in '31, to a 6—6 tie in '33, to another scoreless deadlock in '35, and whipped Virginia by 14-7 in '37 when they last invaded the university gridiron.

Both elevens expect to be almost at top strength for the clash before the Old Dominion's official family and perhaps the larges turnout of the season in Scott Stadium. Three of Tech's regular backs—George Warriner, Sonny Ellison and Ward Boswell—were slowed by injuries in the Richmond game but should be in fine shape for the Cavalier setto. In addition, Halfback Jimmy Woolwine and Guard Preston Graves, two of the fastest boys on the squad, who did not play against the Spiders, are slated for action this week.

eBaten by Washington and Lee and Richmond and tied by William and Mary—the three teams that the Gobblers thought they had the best chance to whip—the Tech boys are more than eager to ease the sting of these defeats by brilliant performances against Virginia Saturday and against V. M. I. in the annual Thanksgiving Day headliner at Roanoke, November 23.

The Techs will present a hard-hitting line in which Goose oGsney, fast 200-pound guard, and big Jim Coleman, 200-pound tackle, are the outstanding stars.

Chicago Cubs Sign George Uhle to Coach

Chicago, Nov. 14 (AP).—George Uhle, former American League pitching star, was signed today as a coach by the Chicago Cubs.

Uhle succeeds Roy Johnson who was released last week to permit him to become manager of the Tulsa club of the Texas eLague.

Uhle, a right-hander, broke into major league baseball with Cleveland in 1919. He went to Detroit in 1929 and remained until 1933. He divided the 1933 season between the New oYrk Giants and Yankees, and was with the Yanks and Toledo in 1934. He served as coach at Cleveland in 1936 and 1937, and held the same job with Buffalo of the International eLague in 1938 and 1939.

Fisher Entry Runs One-Two in $7,500 Walden at Pimlico

Sirocco And Faymar Are Winners

Rough Pass, Favorite, Beaten; Daily Double Pays Players $204; 68 Cash Tickets

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent.

Pimlico Race Track, Baltimore, Md., Nov. 14.—Two "Bodies by Fisher," at least bred by Charles T. Fisher, of Detroit, Mich., dominated the 1939 running of the Walden, today's $7,500 added feature. Flying the solferino, buff and scarlet colors of the millionaire sportsman, Sirocco, a son of Sweep All, and Faymar, a son of Pharamond II, finished first and second in the test over the mile and a sixteenth course. This pair left third money for Tough Pass, the hope of Upper Marlboro and racing for J. Yancey Christmas.

Sirocco won by a length chiefly because Jockey Alfred Robertson, aboard Faymar, the stablemate, allowed Jockey Joe Renick to take the top end of the purse. When Robertson, who was in front in the early stretch, identified the horse coming to him as Sirocco, he obligingly took a grip on his mount.

The defeat of Rough Pass, winner of the Spalding Lowe Jenkins at Laurel, was a shocking blow to the favorite players. They bet the colt as if the race was already run and sent him to the post at odds of 9 to 20.

What They Paid

With the Dixiana Stable geldings first and second, the prices were $11.90 to win and $8.50 to place. Sirocco was clocked in 1:46, fair time, but well off the record both for the race and the track. The race was worth $8,140 on the first end and $1,500 on the second, making a sizeable day's work for the barn.

The first and second juveniles, trained by J. W. Smith, the former jockey, set out to hand the field the one, two punch and though it was not necessary, Faymar's mission evidently was to kill off any ambitious early speedsters. Faymar found only one horse thus inclined. This was Cockerel. With Jockey George Woolf in the saddle, Cockerel, winner of the Sagamore Handicap here, was hustled along and set the pace almost to the backstretch.

Faymar and Cockerel burned plenty of oil in front and the latter finally stopped. Faymar, however, continued to go well. In the meanwhile, Rough Pass, having dropped back in the early running, was placed to the whip. Sirocco was making his move on the inside.

Faymar in Lead

Faymar had a slight lead entering the stretch. Sirocco came up on the inside under the drive of Joe Renick. Sirocco took the lead and it was at this point that Robertson looked back and began easing up Faymar. Rough Pass rallied, but only mildly. He was two and a half lengths from second money at the wire.

There was a pay-off of $204 in the daily double for the 68 customers who held the "2 and 6" tickets. Good Taste, paying $20, won the first race and Manamaid, an $8.40 shot, completed the transaction by taking the second race.

GOOD TASTE, away last and lacking early speed, came to outside while improving position, responded gamely when shaken up and was drawing out at end. AIR COOLED lacked early speed, came with bold rush in stretch and closed full of run. SUMMER STOCK was forward factor on outside from start and came willingly at end. SET closest to pace of PAPER GIRL from start, took command inside eighth pole and was weakening at end. PAPER GIRL was rushed to front, saved ground and stopped suddenly in final sixteenth. DONA'S PAL moved up on outside and stopped. IRISH MIRTH had early speed. PONEMAH stopped after being keen forward factor to stretch. MISS MAKER was held safe.

SECOND RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post 1:53. Off 1:53⅕. Winner, Lily B. Deming's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MANAMAID, $8.40, $4.70, $3.40; LITTLE LADDIE, $6.70, $3.80; TANGANYIKA, $3.40.

MANAMAID, keen forward factor from start, forged to front when shaken up approaching stretch and had to be kept to pressure through stretch to stave off LITTLE LADDIE. The latter worked way to contention on outside and closed gamely, but bore out through stretch run. TANGANYIKA came around horses to improve position and hung in closing test. COL. SCOTT, taken up going into far turn, came with bold rush on inside at end. PRINCE GALE moved up menacingly nearing stretch and faltered. STAR LINA set and forced early pace and quit. SUN BREEZE was through early. LICKETYSPLIT set early pace and stopped badly. CHANCE WATCH quit.

Daily Double, GOOD TASTE and MANAMAID, Paid $204.00.

THIRD RACE—Two miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. Steeplechase. For maiden 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post 2:20½. Off 2:21. Winner, E. Q. McVitty's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PAT GANADO, $7.50, $3.40, $3.00; SCURRY ALONG, $2.80, $2.40; BIG SEVERN, $3.90.

PAT GANADO, steadied along while close up for mile, took command approaching thirteenth fence, drew out and was kept to drive to end. SCURRY ALONG took long lead early, was allowed to lag, lost lead and closed gamely after stumbling and recovering on flat approaching fourteenth fence. BIG SEVERN was hard ridden and finished gamely. DIXIE PARADISE was badly outrun from start. ADAGIO lost rider at ninth fence. LATERAL PASS got to front and lost rider at eighth fence.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200. The Bowling Brook Handicap. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post 2:50½. Off 2:53½. Winner, J. W. Y. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ABRASION (entry), $4.30, $2.30, out; SON OF WAR, $3.50, out; CHALLAMORE (entry), out.

ABRASION, lacking early speed, came to leaders with rush approaching stretch, wore down SON OF WAR and held on gamely. SON OF WAR ran RUMBA GUS into defeat to take command, drew out and closed willingly under intermittent punishment. CHALLAMORE went evenly. RADIOGRAM weakened after moving up. RUMBA GUS had keen early speed and stopped.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300. The Reckon Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward, fillies and mares. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:20½. Off at once. Winner, Tall Trees Stable's ch. f. (3), by Milkman—Timely. Trained by Leo O'Donnell. Value to winner, $950; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:12⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—EARLY MORN, $3.00, $2.60, $2.30; REHEARSAL, $5.20, $3.80; MOON POLLY, $6.30.

EARLY MORN, forwardly placed from start, was fortunate to find racing room on inside, came through to wear down REHEARSAL and was opening a gap at end while under drive. REHEARSAL set good pace, accompanied by DINNER DATE, but could not get clear and held on gamely. MOON POLLY, slow to begin, came with good courage in closing quarter. COURT DANCE, close up from break, was forced to lose ground entering stretch and closed willingly under intermittent punishment. TODDLE ON, off when blocked while attempting to get through in early stretch. DINNER DATE was hard rushed in early stages and stopped.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $7,500 added. The Walden. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place handily. Went to post 3:49. Off 3:49½. SIROCCO, within striking distance from start, came to inside to improve position, assumed command in early stretch and was kept to strong hand ride to end. FAYMAR was hard ridden while setting pace accompanied by COCKEREL, was steadied along on inside to obtain took command and was being taken up at end and probably was best. ROUGH PASS, off well, was allowed to race on own courage for half, rallied mildly when put to punishment, but hung in closing stages. SECOND HELPING, trailer for three-quarters, came with good energy through stretch. MERRY KNIGHT dwelt slightly at break and closed full of run. ARDEN LASS had speed in spots. COCKEREL was used up setting and pressing pace to stretch and stopped. RED CHIP had good early speed.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—TUTTICURIO, $20.50, $9.50, $6.50; GIMPEY, $50.50, $24.10; STAR MINT, $7.00.

TUTTICURIO, well placed from start and steadied along to stretch, came with bold rush when put to hard drive and was drawing out at close. GIMPEY, taken under restraint after a half, came willingly when placed to punishment and closed with good courage at close. ROCKY MEADOW was in front under hustling tactics approaching stretch and weakened. PRADIS worked way to contention on outside, took brief lead and faltered. SUN APOLLO closed gamely. NOBLE SCOT had speed in spots. HOWELLVILLE stopped. BELLTHORN set pace for half and stopped.

Dear Al:

Charles S. Howard's Kayak II, one of the fleetest thoroughbreds ever to be imported to this country, tops the smart field which will battle it out for the $10,000 added money in the Bowie Handicap today, closing mile and five-eighths feature. The Argentine speedster, to be ridden by George Woolf, will pack topweight of 126 pounds. Giving away as much as 25 pounds to some of his rivals, Kayak II will find it mighty difficult in annexing the Maryland Jockey Club's closing feature. In addition to Kayak II, the endurance feature attracted the following handicap performers for getaway day: W. L. Brann's Challephen, 113; Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Heelfly, 113; Mrs. John D. Hertz's Count D'Or, 112; Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Nedayr, 111; Wheatley Stable's Hostility, 110; Circle M Ranch's Shining One, 106; W. M. Sears' Xavier, 105, and Mrs. Emil Denemark's Upstream, 101. Although inaugurated in 1909, the Bowie has only been run over the mile and five-eighths route since 1937. In that year William Ziegler, jr.'s Esposa turned in the present time record of 2:45 1-5, which mark appears certain to be erased from the record books today. Wesley M. Sears' Xavier, who was vanned from Narragansett Park, R. I., will be brought here tomorrow for the Bowie. He will then return to the southern Maryland course to fulfill his stake engagements. Trainer Sammy Hicks has turned D. J. Sullivan's Cobe out at Becker's Farm. J. J. Watts claimed Capulet, winner of Monday's race for $3,000. The Woolford Farm purchased Grit and Grace, as well as Sandrelon at private terms from Rush McCoy. Jockey Johnny Longden will pack his tack and depart tomorrow for California. I received a letter from a friend who has been on his semiannual two-week binge. He is getting rid of the hangover gradually. He writes that he did not mind it when he began seeing pink elephants or even when he saw pink elephants going over the jump course at Pimlico. However, when he awoke one morning and saw Art Brown of WOL and myself in a photo finish on pink elephants he gave up and decided to get sober.

First race—War Head has been idle since his lone outing at Laurel last fall. In that race he was installed the hot favorite over such sprinters as Skagerrak and Fairydale. Meeting a cheaper field today, he should score. Ebonite is Bedwell-trained and dangerous. Gossip Time has early speed.

Second race—High Minded dropped a half-length decision to Mon Doit last start and appears equal to whipping this slightly cheaper competition. Bird Lea was a consistent sort in New York and may be the one to beat. Ellacaw has a good chance off her last race.

Third race—Tarbrush won and has been third, racing with better grade brush toppers in New York. The fast time of his winning race at that point gives him high figures. Golden Oak won at first asking at the United Hunts meet and may be a fair jumper. Snobby Scamp was good in New York and a good effort at Pimlico gives him a chance.

Fourth race—Busy Fingers raced with topnotch juveniles this summer and gave indications of class and speed in her one local race behind True Call. Grey Wolf lost rider last start but previous races have been good. Son Altesse has been highly rated by Owner-Trainer Bedwell and may be worth more consideration.

Fifth race—Dr. Whinny, winner of his last five heats at the expense of some of the fastest sprinters on the grounds, shapes up as the best bet pitted against the mediocre competition he meets here. Irish Setter has the speed to earn second honors but doesn't figure to cope with the top one. Black Bun was fair in New York races.

Sixth race—Kayak II is reported to be in better condition than the day he faced Challedon and Trainer Tom Smith feels certain he has his charge ready for the route. Challephen, victor in the Riggs Handicap, is a stayer of high quality and figures next best at the distance. Heelfly is in form and should garner third money.

Seventh race—Count Tetrarch just missed behind Versailles when competing against a better grade of platers last week. With his light impost we can see little to whip him in this field. Vitello also drops down, and if late races are ind

Battle for Line Berths on at G. U.; Cards Work for Loyola

5 New Men May Start Saturday

Hoyas Face N. Y. U. In Yankee Stadium; Hagerty Seeks More Power for Big Test

The battle for regular line positions is continuing at Georgetown, and indications yesterday were that five forwards who did not start last week's game with Maryland will be in the opening line-up for Saturday's engagement with New York University.

Coach Jack Hagerty announced that Earl Fullilove, Mark Ostinato, Auhie Lio, Joe Daniels and Jim Reichey are ticketed for starting service at Yankee Stadium and that Georgetown would line up for the kick-off as follows:

Ends, Mike Kopcik and John Lascari; tackles, Fullilove and Daniels; guards, Ostinato and Lio; center, Reichey; backfield, Joe McGadden, quarter; Jules Koshlap, left half; Lou Ghecas, right half, and Castiglia, fullback.

Therefore Lascari, a junior end, is the only lineman who has retained his position of last week. This veteran combination, Hagerty feels, will be able to get the jump on defense and also will be better abel to match the heavy Violets in weight.

Begin in Earnest

Georgetown's practice for the Violets began in earnest yesterday after Monday had been devoted merely to loosening-up exercises Acting on the scouting report of the N. Y. U.-Missouri game, as furnished by George Murtagh, his end coach, Hagerty introduced several new plays and gave special attention to polishing up his pass defense.

Georgetown, with a great line that averages close to 196 pounds, has little fears that N. Y. U. will do serious offensive damage along the ground. Through the air with Ed Boell passing, however, the Violets are a stiff proposition for any team.

The Georgetown squad leaves for Gotham at 9 o'clock Friday morning via the Pennsylvania Railroad and is scheduled to roll into New York about 1 o'clock. Hagerty plans to hold a workout in Yankee Stadium at 2 o'clock.

Friday night at the New York A. C. the strong and numerous Georgetown Alumni Association of New York will honor Coach Hagerty with a smoker.

N. Y. U. Potent

Reports from Gotham yesterday said that the N. Y. U. squad pulled through the Missouri game in good shape and is looking forward to spoiling Georgetown's undefeated streak of nearly two full seasons.

The Violet, according to all information, have the best backfield that Georgetown has met in two years. Headed by Boell, a triple threat halfback and an unusually fine passer, N. Y. U. possesses a versatile and heavy group of ball carriers. Boell to date is the Violets' big offensive star. He has carried the ball 26 times for 298 yards and has completed 37 of 71 passed for 370 yards.

Next to Boell, Stan Milkulka is the team's best ground gainer. Boell leads the N. Y. U. point scorers with four touchdowns and one conversion for 25 points; Bill Galu, another regular back, has two touchdowns and a half dozen extra points to his credit.

Yesterday the N. Y. U. players studied motion pictures of their last game with Georgetown, in 1937 at the Polo Grounds. The Violets won it, 7-0, in the mud.

Maguire Likely P. G. A. Nominee

placed in nomination.

The probability of a hot election is traceable to last summer's P. G. A. championship, which almost didn't come off after the executive committee, with Walsh its spokesman, ruled Denny Shute ineligible for tardy payment of dues. Jacobus overruled the committee and his action irritated numerous of the teaching professionals, many of whom are strnogly backing Walsh against Dudley.

Reports presented todya indicated no uncertainty about P. G. A.'s financial structure. Seventy-seven new members signed up during the year Walsh said, bringing the total to 1,813.

38 Tourneys Held

Fred Corcoran, tournament bureau manager, said 38 tournaments 500,000 spectators during 1938-39 with prize money of $174,000 being distributed. The addition of several tournaments this winter and next spring will raise the 1939-40 prize money total to $200,000. Jack Mackie, of New York, treasurer, reported the organization in a "flourishing condition."

For the first time the Western Open will be played on the winter tour—at Houston, Tex., February 16-18. Prize money has been increased from $3,000 to $5,000. Corcoran said competition on the West Coast and in the Southwest would be unusually strong fields this Open king, being one of several winter, Byron Nelson, the National stars certain to make the trip.

Bearing Down

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer.

Europe is still trying to figure out a peace treaty that won't make things worse. The Finns and the Russians aren't going to war because they decided their winters were tough enough.

Holland is getting ready to flood itself like a fountain in the park. Switzerland stopped all proposed invasions by putting its hotel rates up.

Poor old Belgium doesn't know what's going to happen. But it's going to happen to her. Neutrality in Europe is like a red nose on a reformer. It doesn't mean a thing.

Hot Fight Seen in A. A. U. Bouts in Arena

D. C. Championships Begin Friday Night; Entries Close Today

A hot fight for team honors and a right to enter United States Olympic team tryouts for this section—if they are held this winter—is expected when the eleventh annual District A. A. U. boxing championships open Friday night at Turner's Arena.

Entries close today at 6 p. m. at the offices of John Janowski in the Central Branch of the Washington Boys' Club.

The most heated rivalry i recent years is looked for in the race between St. Mary's Boys' Club of Alexandria—celebrating its first anniversary this month—and youthful simon-pures from Police Boys' Club No. 5, which looms as a dark horse as the first of three weeks of preliminaries comes up.

At least three rival teams will be battling for the trophy which St. Mary's has sworn to take across the Potomac. The District National Guard and Fort Myer tied for the laurels last year.

A well-balanced No. 5 team will be sent after the cup by Jack Whitely, whose amateur boxing interest dates back almost 25 years. Whitey France and Glenn Drake, veterans of seven years service, will be back—France to defend the lightweight title he won last year, and Drake to seek the welter crown he held two years ago until Bob Mathias took it from him.

Tony Galafaro, ambitious young Italian lightweight who hopes to follow the steps of Lou Ambers and Tony Canzoneri, will appear in the novice class and is another reason Whitely has high hopes of downing Jim Echols' Alexandria team.

Winners in the finals of the championships—to be staged on five successive Friday nights in the arena—will be eligible for Olympic trials both for this section and for the nation.

Jim Cruger Is Named Captain At Charlotte Hall

Special Dispatch to The Post

Charlotte Hall, Md., Nov. 14.—Jim Crueger, hard-running Charlotte Hall Military Academy halfback, will captain the Cadets on Thursday afternoon when they face their most important foe of the season, Baltimore Friends School, in Baltimore.

Crueger, a 180-pound husky from Baltimore, has borne the brunt of the heavy work for Shel Ehringer's squad this year, and, along with the other halfback, Elliot Dent, bids fair to win a post on the All-Maryland scholastic squad. He will be making his final Baltimore appearance in a Charlotte Hall uniform, for only the game with Woodward Prep here on November 27 will remain on the Cadet schedule after Thursday.

Two Baltimore Boys In Drexel's Line-up

Philadelphia, Nov. 14 (AP).—Two Baltimore linesmen, inured early in the season, are expected to be in the starting Drexel line-up when Walter Halas' team visits their native city Saturday for the game with Johns Hopkins University.

Cameron Snyder, a veteran of two years on the Drexel varsity, will start at right guard, and Co-Capt. Roy Brandt, who has been nursig a bad shoulder since mid-October, will be at the right-tackle post.

Benefit Ring Show Tonight at Floyd's

A benefit colored boxing show for the Old Folks' Home will be staged tonight at Floyd's Arena, 1211 U street northwest, with ten bouts beginning at 8:15, on the program.

Charles Manning meets John Perry in the opener, while other bouts bring together Lee Ingram and Battling Zuzu, John Gatling and Alton Williams, Jimmie Green and Big Boy Price.

Green Hornets Bow

Southeast Hawks' 125-pound eleven won a 13-0 decision over the Green Hornets yesterday at Eastern Stadium.

G. W.-Bucknell Tickets Await Winner in Post Grid Contest

Free tickets to the last college football game of the year in Washington furnish the inspiration for prognosticators as The Washington Post's grid selecting contest goes into its ninth week.

The game presents George Washington University again Bucknell in Griffith Stadium November 25—as thrilling a climax to a Thanksgiving week-end as you could expect to find in these parts. Five pair of tickets are offered for the most perfect set of predictions.

Just check your choice of the winners on the form below, or indicate tie games if you think a deadlock will be the result. Mail your entry to the Contest Editor of The Post before the deadline, Friday at 11:01 p. m. Remember that duplicate awards will be given in event of ties.

Football-Crazy Iowa Planning Another Victory Celebration

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Nov. 14.—Life is just one celebration after another these days out in football-crazy Iowa.

The football faithful who have just completed a hilarious week-end party as the aftermath of Iowa's amazing 7-6 victory over Notre Dame already are planning another wild one.

This one is to be on Minnesota—and there seems (to the whole State of Iowa) to be no more reason to doubt there'll be a victory to celebrate than there was last week as the battle with the Fighting Irish approached.

After the Hawks upset the Irish, Head Coach Eddie Anderson, who was 39 years old yesterday, said he thought "the boys could beat Notre Dame and they did—I think they can take Minnesota. Capt. Erwin Prasse, end, and one of the eight regulars who played the full 60 minutes Saturday, summed up the team's attitude toward the Gophers thusly:

"Bring 'em on. It's just another football game for Iowa."

That is the spirit that has carried Iowa to five victories in six games and their most successful season in more than a decade. If the Hawks win Saturday they still will have an outside chance to share the Big Ten title with Ohio State.

C. U. Settles Down for 2 Final Games

Shock of 1st Defeat Gone, Cards Expect Rough Time From Wolves in Stadium

With two more games left on its schedule, Catholic University is determined to take both in stride. Fully recovered from the shock of having its unbeaten season spoiled by St. Anselm, C. U. is working hard for Saturday's test at the Brookland stadium against Loyola of the South.

The Cardinals hope to come out of the game with a minimum of injuries because only five days later they will oppose the strong Long Island University team at Brooklyn's Ebbets Field.

Silver Lining

One bright note in the general gloom at Brookland yestreday was the announcement that Lous Shine, star C. U. end, is not through for the season as at first feared. Shine injured his right leg in the St. Anselm game and X-ray pictures showed no fracture. The leg is being treated daily and Coach Arthur J. "Dutch" Bergman announced Shine may see action against the Wolfpack this Saturday.

The other C. U. casualties, Hank Brostek and Johnny White, are rapidly rounding into condition. White sprained his right ankle last week while Brostek, who has been playing with a bad shoulder for two weeks, reports he is on the mend. White is working out daily with the squad and his addition will help C. U. considerably. Johnny, only 172 pounds, is small for a center but he has offset this lack of weight by his speed and generalship on the field.

Game a Thriller

The Loyola-C. U. game this Saturday promises to be a thriller. The Wolves play a wide-open type of game and have a number of speedy backs. The emphasis probably will be on passing, since both teams boast strong lines. C. U., despite its loss last Saturday, proved that it has a fine passing attack. The Cardinals had the misfortune to have four passes intercepted at crucial moments but they completed 15 out of 32 passes which is a pretty fair average.

C. U. plans to drill on Loyola plays all this week. This game will be the "rubber" contest since each team has won twice. Loyola hasn't beaten the Cardinals since 1936 and the Wolves feel this is their year.

SANDLOT GAMES WANTED

Holy Comforter's 150-pound eleven is seeking a Sunday date with a 150-pound or unlimited team through Al Kidwell. His phone number is Atlantic 2961. The club has its own gridiron.

Looking well ahead, the 115-pound sandlotters of East Gate are in search of a Thanksgiving Day game. Challengers should call Michigan 7226 between 7 and 10 p. m.

Murray Realtors still have an open date on their schedule for this Sunday and December 3. Unlimited foes may reach the manager at Columbia 2901.

Maryland Aces, unbeaten and unscored upon so far this season, want Sunday opponents. Bucky Nairn is taking calls from 135-pound teams at Capitol Heights 675.

The 120-pound District Eagles are seeking a game for Sunday with any good team in its class. Atlantic 4387 is the phone number.

Card A. C. Plays

Contract Mix-up Causes Pros To Slice Up 'Dutch' Clark

Under Present Conditions Half Belongs to Rams, Half to Lions; He Can't Battle Old Team

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, Nov. 14.—Earl (Dutch) Clark is divided into two parts.

One piece—the coaching half—belongs to the Cleveland Rams. The other piece—the inactive playing half—belongs to the Detroit Lions.

This dual personality must be retained, President Carl Storck, of the National Professional Football League, ruled tonight, until the Rams either buy or barter for his complete services. The decision followed a request by the one-time All-American that he be permitted to play Sunday against the Detroit eleven which he formerly coached.

"The Detroit Lions hold the contract for the playing rights of Dutch Clark," Storck said at his home in Dayton. He was transferred to Cleveland as a coach by mutual agreement of the Lions and the Cleveland organization, as well as Dutch Clark. The only way he can play Sunday is to buy his full release."

Storck's ruling was made after receipt of a letter from Thomas E. Lipscomb, Ram president, asking Storck to "use the broad powers granted to you in our constitution and by-laws" and declare Clark a free agent.

Harvard Lists 1st All-Major Grid Schedule

By the Associated Press

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 14.—The first all-major schedule arranged for Harvard in its long football history was announced today for 1941.

Two years hence the Crimson, which now boasts of impressive sophomore strength, will play Cornell, Dartmouth, Navy, Army, Brown and Yale at home and Pennsylvania and Princeton away.

It will be the second straight year that a Harvard team goes to Philadelphia. Under their four-game series agreement the Quakers, who won here this fall, were due to return to Cambridge. Harvard waived to permit Pennsylvania to celebrate its bicentennial with an all-home 1941 football schedule.

Next fall Harvard will play Amherst on October 5, Michigan October 12, Army October 19, Dartmouth October 26, Princeton November 2, Pennsylvania at Philadelphia November 9, Brown November 16 and Yale at New Haven November 23.

The 1941 schedule: October 4, Pennsylvania at Philadelphia; October 11, Cornell; October 18, Dartmouth; October 25, Navy; November 1, Princeton at Princeton; November 15, Brown; November 22, Yale.

Salt Lake City Elects Race Driver Mayor

Salt Lake City, oNv. 14 (AP).—Ab Jenkins, who hah raced to 153 automobile speed records, limped to victory in the mayoral contest a week after the nonpartisan election. An official canvass gave him 21,127 votes to 21,076 for the incumbent, Herbert Snow.

Field Trial Stake Won by Hawse Setter

By the Associated Press

Petersburg, Va., Nov. 14.—Shenvalee Sun Beau, a setter owned and handled by Virgil P. Hawse, of Staunton, won the all-age stake of the Virginia Amateur Field Trials Association as the fall trials were ended over the Camp Lee course today.

Tip's Manitoba Jake, a pointer dog owned and hendled by Edward Vare, of Philadelphia, was runner-up, and third place went to Hill City Bess, pointer bitch owned by Carlton Leftwich and Raymond Taylor, of Lynchburg, and handled by Kyle M. Walter, of Gate City.

The third place winner was decided after the judges, C. B. Stickley, of Vaucluse and J. Horace Lytle, of Dayton, Ohio, called for a second series between Hill City Bess and Discovery, a pointer dog owned by P. N. Davis, of Hampton.

Light Work Given For Maryland Squad

Maybe it's because they're trying to build up their "sea legs" for the boat trip to Norfolk, Va., to meet V. M. I.'s Fighting Squadron Saturday, and then it might be that they're a bit weary from four straight losses—at any rate, light work was the watchword yesterday as Maryland University settled down to work for their first Southern Conference game of the year.

Spirit still is high at College Park, however, and Maryland is given about an even chance to make a successful comeback in its encounter with the Keydets—despite the fact that they suffered a 47-14 setback last year.

Texas Aggies Won't Play in Cotton Bowl

School Refuses to Participate Under The Present Setup

By the Associated Press

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 14.—Texas A. and M. College announced today its football team, currently ranked the Nation's No. 2 powerhouse, would not play in the Cotton Bowl postseason classic at Dallas if invited.

Chairman Joe Utay, of the board of director's athletic committee, warned that Rice Institute and University of Texas are still to come on the schedule of an aggie team that has shackled eight straight foes.

"We are crossing no bridges before we come to them," Utay said. "However, our position with regard to the Dallas Cotton Bowl game is well known. We steadfastly have refused to pledge our support to this undertaking under its present setup and will continue to do so, regardless of future events."

F. M. Law, of Houston, former president of the National Bankers Association and chairman of the A. and M. board of directors, seconded Utay's motion before the board.

The Dallas post-season game, now three years old, was originated and sponsored by J. Curtis Sanford, oil man-promoter.

"We feel," said Utay, "we are perfectly capable to stage our own post-season games without the assistance or needless expense of outside- the-conference promotion."

Pro Gridmen To Be Guests At Mat Show

Redskins and Cards Invited to Groan and Grunt Fest Thursday

Members of the Washington Redskins and the Chicago Cardinals pro football teams will invade Joe Turner's W street wrestling emporium tomorrow night as special guests at the evening's entertainment—featured by a groan exhibition between Don Evans, of Houston, Tex., and Rudy Etrongberg, an old Pacific Coast villain.

It will be "football night" at the arena, with the gentlmen who make the faces on the gridiron picking up a few pointers from the wrestling gentlemen from the safe vantage of a special section.

Turner announced completion of arrangements with Coach Ray Flaherty of the Redskins, and Coach Ernie Nevers of the Cardinals, for the two squads to attend.

Leading players of the two teams will be presented from the ring—with emphasis being placed on the grid stars from Texas, out of respect for Evans, who once played football in the Lone Star State.

Slingin' Sammy Baugh, Dick Todd and Charlie Malone, of the 'Skins, and "Ki" Aldrich, Buddy Parker and Phil Handler, assistant Cardinal coach, are expected to make a bow, Turner said. He added also that Marshall Goldberg is to be present.

The Evans-Strongberg business is a return affair. Supporting roles for the night will be filled by Abie Coleman and Whitey Gorvo, Jim Casey and Stanley Pinto, Steve Bartes and John Katan, and Ernie Powers and Alan Eustace.

Roosevelt, Gonzaga Will Clash Today

Roosevelt High, fresh from its first football triumph in seven straight games, over Anacostia last week, entertains Gonzaga High today at the Upshur street stadium in the only schoolboy tiff of the day. Starting time will be 3:15, with Gonzaga favored to win despite its 20-0 loss to St. John's Sunday.

Cards Whip Ramblers

The Cardinal A. C., 135-pound football team defeated the Mount Rainier Ramblers, 19-0 at Magruder Park for their ninth consecutive win of the season. Excellent blocking by the Holland brothers, Babe and Dutch, enabled Coppage, Card passing ace, to toss the Cards to victory. Canter's line play was outstanding.

Northerners Drill

A long scrimmage session of the Takoma Northerners will be staged tomorrow night at Clifton Park at 8:30. The drill is in preparation for Northern's scrap with Virginia A. C. Sunday at Municipal Stadium in Alexandria. Last week the Takoma eleven was edged out by Ballston Skulls, 6-0, despite the brilliant efforts of big Murray Collins, star back.

in eleventh place with 85 points, and Georgetown, with 1 point, are unbeaten.

Saturday's games likely to have the greatest effect on the standings are those between Cornell and Dartmouth, last but one of the No. 1 Eastern team's vy League rivals; Oklahoma and Missouri, which has moved up to twelfth place with the sterling aid of Paul Christman; North Carolina and Duke, which is thirteenth in the rankings; Ohio State and Illinois, and Notre Dame and Northwestern. Tennessee, against Vanderbilt; Texas Aggies, against Rice, and Tulane, against Columbia, will be lop-sided favorites, while Southern California and Dusquene will take the day off.

The standings (points figured on 10, 9, 8, 7, 6, etc., basis, first-place votes in parenthesis):

a regular team in ice hockey, according to Mackenzie, he has one or two boys who are outstanding. At left defense Osborn (Ty) Andersen, is a star. He is, incidentally, the only American-born Eagles player. A product of Dartmouth Prep School and a star on the 1932 Olympics at Lake Placid when the United States ice hockey team nearly upset the Canadians, Andersen is especially famed for his savage blocking. He has been honored on the Eastern League all-star team for six of the seven seasons he played with the Atlantic City Sea Gills. He is 24 years old and weighs 180 pounds.

Another Eagles standout is right defense Ross (Nip) Knipfel, a native of Toronto, who made his mark with the Oshawa Juniors. He is described by Coach Mackenzie as a terrific body checker who revels in the heavy going. He is 22 years old, weighs 187 and played under Mackenzie with the Sea Gulls.

All of the Eagles players are not as big as Anderson and Knipfel. For instance, Goalie Gordon Lee, a Hamilton, Ontario, boy, and veteran of Eastern Amateur League competition, scales only 130 pounds. His exceptional speed and agility, however, enable him to offset his physical handicaps and he is rated one of the better goalies in amateur circles.

At present the Eagles squad is comprised of 15 players. It is expected to be brought to full strength early next week, when Len Burrage arrives in this country from London.

The last time a Cardinal team played the Redskins, it was no fun for the Redskins. Gaynell Tinsley, Cardinal end, twice scored on passes to beat the Washington club.

Gen. Opie Asks 'Non-Partisan' Game Board

Six-Point Program Listed to Gov. Price In Minority Report

Richmond, Va., Nov. 14.—Gen. Hierome L. Opie, of Staunton, one of Gov. Price's three appointees to the Bustard game study commission, recommended "a complete reorganization of the commission of game and inland fisheries" in an individual report submitted to the Governor today.

Gen. Opie said he was "unable to see eye-to-eye with my associates" on the commission and was submitting a series of recommendations "for the correction and improvement" of game, fish and wild life conditions in Virginia "as the presented facts and figures before the Bustard commission demand and warrant." The commission's majority report has not been made public.

Lists 6-Point Program

Asserting there "abounds Statewide dissatisfaction with the game and game fish administration in Virginia, and there is a general lack of confidence in the commission of its chairman," Gen. Opie recommended this six-point program:

1. Complete reorganization of the present seven-member game commission by establishment of a "non-partisan" body of nine members—one from each Congressional district—to serve without pay, except for per diem expense allowances.
2. Due to the rapidly and steadily diminishing game and fish supply in the State, shorter hunting and fishing seasons and limited game bags and creels are absolutely necessary.
2. A judicious selection and intelligent exchange of game wardens in frequent situations.
4. A law to "effectively prevent stream polution.
5. Enforcement of fish ladder installation or sluices to the fullest extent.
6. Finally, the Governor should appoint to the new game and fish commission men of the strictest nonpartisan activities; men who will serve for the love of the work and without compensation; men of known firmness of mind; men who after hearing the facts in any given situation can reach decisions without bias and for the good of the whole, rather than for the preference of the few.

Valued at 18 Millions

He said he had presented factual matter to the Bustard commission showing that wild life valuation in Virginia "conservatively is worth over $18,000,000 annually," and that the State's game, game fish and other wild life, its natural resources and kindred industries "have a capital value aside from its recreational value of at least $300,000,000," and in its entirety ranks next only to agriculture in money value.

"The General Assembly has long ignored the value and possibilities of its natural resources, and the commission of game and inland fisheries, over its life of 12 years, has steadfastly refused to take existing facts seriously," Gen. Opie said.

The "lack of confidence" in the commission, he said, was because of "the absence of any planning program; the lack of cooperation between the commission and hunters, fishermen, farmers and landowners, generally," and the lack of a "fixed conservation and educational program."

Wants New Dates

Gen. Opie expressed disagreement with the present two opening dates for the hunting season—November 15 west of the Blue Ridge and November 20 east of the mountains—which he said permitted nonresidents east of the Blue Ridge and outside of the west Blue Ridge area to enjoy two opening dates.

"This should be the other way around," he said, the earlier hunting season going to the earlier breeding season."

He also recommended that county hunting and fishing licenses be abolished and a general State hunting season be issued for $2 and a general fishing license for $1.50. Still another suggestion was that every licensed hunter be required to report his kill to the commission within 30 days after the close of the hunting season.

Lawyer Disbarred Over Manton Loan

New York, Nov. 14 (AP).—Louis S. Levy, attorney, was disbarred from Federal Court practice today as a result of charges made against him following the conviction of Martin T. Manton, former senior Judge of the United States Circuit Court.

Disbarment proceedings against Paul M. Hahn, vice president of the American Tobacco Co., were dismissed. United States Attorney Cahill charged Levy and Hahn had concealed a loan of $250,000, made largely for Manton's benefit, to the late James J. Sullivan, a business associate of Manton. A case against the American Tobacco Co. was pending in Manton's court.

Ethel Barrymore and Superb Cast Excel In a Gripping Drama by New Author

By Nelson B. Bell

"FARM OF THREE ECHOES." Vieto Payne-Jennings and Arthur Hopkins present Ethel Barrymore in the new play in three acts and five scenes by Noel Langley. Staged by Mr. Hopkins; settings by Cirker and Robbins. At the National Theater.

Miss Ethel Barrymore returned to the stage of the National Theater last night to achieve one of her major triumphs in a bleak and Spartan drama of bitter hatreds, pride of blood and the strength of simple people.

In "Farm of Three Echoes," the youthful Noel Langley has written a drama of a breed of men he knows well—those iron pioneers of the Orange Free State in South Africa who wrested their lands from the savages, clung to them through the rebellion and the Boer War and thenceforth defied the "outlanders" to pry them loose from the soil in which they were so deeply rooted. In a desolate and isolated farmhouse he poses nine characters who live life's eternal story of groping for those fundamental relationships that bring peace, happiness and love to the human soul. It is a grim and relentless recital of mental torture and heroic spirit, as ugly as it is beautiful and as absorbing as it is powerful and haunting.

The sturdy homestead on the Gerart 800 acres holds three generations of a family ruled by hate. The matriarch of the household is the nonogenarian grandmother, Ouma, who bore only sons—nine of them who lived and two who were born dead the night of the rebellion. Eight of them marched away to die for Oom Paul Kruger and pay a dear price for the land on which she lives. Her husband's tyranny led to his being found dead down in the sheds from a shotgun charge through the abdomen, "while cleaning his gun." Their son Isaac, died of a broken neck when thrown from a horse "when the saddle-girth broke," after a violent scene with his wife, Lisha. Lisha's son Jan has reached manhood with fearfulness of his womenfolks' power to hate, and his menfolks' power to make them, ingrained in his nature. But impelled by inner promptings he neither understands no resists, he takes Naomi de Meer, the 16-year-old orphaned daughter of a neighbor, to wife. Family history is about to be repeated when two "town people," by a clumsy ruse, appear on a stormy night as agents commissioned to buy the farm for "big business" and are thwarted by Ouma's clairvoyant divinations.

Ouma Is Drama's Mainspring

The whole movement of the drama is bound up in the character of Ouma, whose mind has reached that age when life is lived wholly in the past, but memory is able to link the years that are dead with the living present in eerie and unerring fashion. The character is a deft combination of imaginative "second sight" and acute comprehension of present actualities. It is as if the figure of "Gran," in "Whiteoaks," had been magnified tenfold and transplanted into a South African "Ethan Frome." Its sly utilization of the past as an effective weapon with which to combat the threats of a fearful future not only is the mainspring of the drama but the fountainhead of its humor. It affords Miss Barrymore an opportunity to display the tremendous scope of a talent that has made her one of the theater's great.

But "Farm of Three Echoes," despite the dominance of its central character, is not a play that sacrifices its secondary roles to the glorification of a single figure. Its bitter clashes, unrelenting conflict and angry recriminations are so nicely arranged that there is not a part in the play that does not share generously in the rewards of a taut and trying work that is powerfully and splendidly acted.

Miss Barrymore's "Gran" in "Whiteoaks" offered only a faint suggestion of the consummate artistry she brings to the portrayal of the doddering but indomitable Ouma. The assumption of age is vastly more successfully accomplished and only in the fact that both were old are the two characters in the least alike, with Miss Barrymore as their common image. Never has this brilliant actress more completely demonstrated the fullness of her art than in the differentiation of these two characters, the one following immediately upon the other.

Support of Highest Caliber

As the iron-willed father and son, Isaac and Jan, McKay Morris and Dean Jagger present studies that are deeply and truly etched. Each encompasses both the spirit and the substance of the play in the perfection of his portrayal. Second only to the star's is the work of Ann Dere, in the role of Lisha, the embodiment of hopeless frustration and a victim of a groundless hatred. Quite in contrast with the rest is the character of Naomi, played with sympathetic charm by Priscilla Newton, and unlike any of the others is the Marie Hesse, siren from the "outland," who is the means, eventually, of freeing Jan from his bondage, played completely in the spirit of what Ouma calls her by Nancy Sheridan, a former favorite of the National Theater Players. Lesser roles are interpreted with no less skill by William B. Mack, Victor Esker and John Griggs.

The one scene in which the three acts are set is in thorough keeping with the persons and events for which it forms the background. Last night's distinguished first-night audience found ample justification for the bestowal of nine curtain calls upon Miss Barrymore and her able associates at the fall of the final curtain. Thus did they participate in one of the season's most notable evenings in the theater.

Local Banks Find Call for Personal Loans

Amounts Run From $50 to $1,000 at 4¼ to 4½ Per Cent Interest

By Thomas M. Cahill.

A continued active demand for personal loans is reported by local banks. Heavy excess reserves and a decrease in requests for loans by commercial borrowers have resulted in an exploration by numerous institutions of new areas for credit extension. Many banks have discovered that consumer lending, or loans to individuals for various purposes, has proved very satisfactory.

Under the personal loan system money is available for taxes, medical aid, educational fees, insurance premiums, emergency repairs, acquisition of household equipment and other needs which may arise. Various loans are settled in monthly installments at an average rate of interest ranging from 4¼ to 4½ per cent, amounts borrowed running from $50 to $1,000

Property modernization and repair loans are widely represented in this kind of lending, with loans to refinance, for automobile buying and character loans figuring prominently. The National City Bank of New York was among the first of the large institutions to pioneer in this field and has commented on the favorable results of the plan. The practice, first considered an experiment, is now being regarded as an established one.

Life Underwriters

James Elton Bragg, chartered life underwriter, manager of the Guardian Life Insurance Co., New York City, and well known lecturer on life insurance, will address the District of Columbia Life Underwriters Association this noon at the Willard Hotel on the subject "Why George Splevin Bought Life Insurance." Joseph Marr, president of the association, will preside.

Mr. Bragg is a lecturer on life insurance at New York University; public relations vice president, New York City Association of Life Underwriters, and director at large, national chapter, Chartered Life Underwriters. He formerly was vice president of the Manhattan Life Insurance Co., a professor of life insurance, New York University; secretary and trustee, National Association of Life Underwriters, and president, New York chapter, Chartered Life Underwriters. He is also an honorary life member of the Life Underwriters Association of Canada, and was awarded a certificate of distinction by the Central High School Alumni Association of Washington, D. C., January 1, 1938. Mr. Bragg is the author of many monographs in the life insurance field.

Market basket taxes are again under consideration here, a processing tax method of raising revenue being studied by Department of Agriculture marketing officials. The Wheeler wheat-certificate allotment scheme, outlined in the bill introduced by the Senator from Montana, is the pattern. If adopted by Congress a tax on processing of wheat, amounting to as much as $2 on each barrel of flour manufactured, may be levied. On the basis of annual consumption the tax would mean an increased cost to flour users of more than $200,000,000 a year, according to the Millers' National Federation, which states:

"The wheat-certificate allotment plan would result in levying a tax on every loaf of bread on the workers' table; on every baked delicacy now available to us all; on every pound off wheat flour products now manufactured. The tax would fall most heavily upon the people least able to pay it. The plan would make every miller, every baker, every retail food store in the United States a tax collector. It is a consumer tax on a necessity of life that will be reflected in every family food budget."

Wheeler Bill Mechanism

The Wheeler bill works like this, according to the federation: The Secretary of Agriculture would determine the amount of wheat needed for domestic use, plus exports, in each crop year. He would then allot this crop to wheat farmers. For each bushel of wheat needed for home consumption a certificate would be issued and allocated to the producing farmers. The Secretary would place a value on each certificate in an amount representing the difference between the parity price or cost of production, whichever is higher, and the average farm price. He would pay the farmer the face value of the certificates.

The certificates would then be sold, still at the price he fixed to processors making sales of milled flour and other products manufactured from wheat. In short, the miller would be required to meet this special levy—which may be as high as 43 cents per bushel on the basis of market wheat quotations—on all wheat processed into a salable product. The additional cost would be passed on to the housewife in the sale price of the flour or baked goods purchased by the ultimate consumer. The scheme, therefore, becomes a heavy tax to be levied on the Nation's market basket, the federation declares.

Wheat Holds Steady During Quiet Session

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Nov. 14.—After a quiet session of erratic price meandering, the wheat market closed today without having made any definite progress in either direction—up or down.

With outside speculative interest at a minimum, most of the trade consisted of evening up operations by professional dealers. Some buying was credited to milling interests but commercial transactions were on a small scale. Persistenc of the Southwestern drought, increase in the subsidy on flour exports and occasional displays of strength in securities caused sporadic buying of grains. Absence of export business, and the slow flour trade, restrained buyers, however.

Prices advanced about ½ cent at the outset but soon reached and held near previous closing levels most of the session, except for an occasional dip of as much as ⅝ cent. The close was ¼ lower to ¼ higher, compared with yesterday's finish, December, 87¾@87⅝; May, 85⅞@86. Corn was ⅛-⅜ down, December, 50; May, 52¼@52⅛; oats, ⅛-½ lower; rye, unchanged; soy beans, ½ higher, and lard unchanged to 2 higher.

1,000 Bankers Will Meet At Richmond

New York, Nov. 14.—More than 1,000 bankers from 13 Eastern and Southern States and the District of Columbia are expected to attend a two-day regional conference of the American Bankers Assocaition in Richmond, Va., December 7-8, on broader, more efficient banking services for business and industry, announced by Robert M. Hanes, president of the association, announced today.

The theme of the conference—"Banking's Part in Business Development"—will feature the program for each of five general sessions to be held during the two days. A public meeting to which depositors of Richmond banks will be invited is to be held at the close of the final day of the sessions.

Most of the discussions during the general sessions are to be led by bankers who have specialized training in the various phases of bank operations, based on experience in handling banking problems in their own cities, in order to make the conference of ther greatest practical value to the bankers who attend.

The public meeting at the close of the conference will feature an address, "The American Way," by William A. Irwin, associate educational director of the American Institute of Banking, one of the educational sections of the A. B. A.

Girdler Holds Peace No Bar To Recovery

But Serious Domestic Problems Remain to Be Solved, Steelman Says

Cleveland, Nov. 14.—Business improvement in the United States is not based entirely upon the European war picture and recovery should continue even if peace were declared, Tom Girdler, chairman of Republic Steel Corporation, told members and guests of the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce at a "steelmakers' dinner.. held tonight in the Hotel Cleveland ballroom.

At the same time he warned that there are still many difficulties in this country which remain to be solved and that there is danger that war abroad may divert attention from the solution of these problems.

Girdler also touched briefly upon the recent United States Circuit Court of Appeals' decision in Republic's Labor Board case, pointing out that the amount of back pay which might have to be paid by the company, even if upon final appeal the Supreme Court upheld the Labor Board, would amount to only a fraction of the $7,500,000 which has been mentioned.

Capital More Confident

Commenting on the general outlook for business Girdler said, "I am not one of those who believe that the whole of our present increased industrial activities is due to the war in Europe and that peace in itself would bring complete collapse..

"Business improvement in this country has been under way since last spring. Chiefly it was based upon the accumulative requirements for many products and the growing confidence of private capital that the extreme left-wing schemes and designs of the New Deal were falling into popular disfavor. Such portion of the increase that is due purely to the war causes, of course would be wiped out by peace but the ending of the war should not destroy the forces of recovery which were at work before the war started.

Domestic Problems

"What really is to be feared is the loss of that growing confidence for the future of private enterprise which was a large factor in the business gains earlier in the year.

"There is danger that the dramatic events of the war will so absorb the attention of the American people that their thoughts will be diverted from domestic problems. The war in Europe has brought no permanent solution to any of our problems. It is time we gave some thought to them."

Among such outstanding problems, Girdler listed: Government spending of an excessive amount of income; large unemployment and the problem of relief; an excessive tax burden on enterprise; a one-sided labor relations act; and "a state of mind which encourages the view that the country can have more by producing less."

Mohawk Carpet Votes 25 Cents Extra Dividend

New York, Nov. 14 (AP).—Directors of Mohawk Carpet Mills, Inc., today declared an extra dividend of 25 cents a common share, in addition to a dividend of the same amount, both payable December 15 to holders of record December 1. Previous payments were 25 cents in September, 1939, and 25 cents in March last year. Company's mills are in Amsterdam, N. Y.

Midwest Refinery Increase

Directors of Midwest Refineries, Inc., today increased the quarterly dividend on the company's common stock from 5 cents to 10 cents a share. The dividend declared today is payable December 20 to stockholders of record December 5.

Newmont Year-end $2

Directors of Newmont Mining Corporation ordered a year-end dividend of $2 a share, payable December 15 to holders of record November 30. This will bring total payments for the year to $3.50, against the 1938 total of $3.

Columbian Carbon $1.50

Columbian Carbon Co. declared a final 1939 dividend of $1.50 on capital stock, payable December 11 to stock of record November 24. This brings total dividends for the year to $4.50, against $4 in 1938.

Rustless Iron's First on Common

Directors of Rustless Iron & Steel Corporation today declared a dividend of 25 cents on the common stock, marking the initial cash distribution on the issue. It is payable December 12 to stock of record November 24. In 1937 the common stockholders received a dividend in preferred stock.

Credit Executive Sees Upswing Continued

New York, Nov. 14 (AP).—Domestic business gains should hold for some time after the first of the year, said Henry H. Heimann, executive manager of the National Association of Credit Men, in his monthly business review released today.

The Credit executive said it was expected that "while there may be a slight pause in activity of recession in certain prices, the general trend will be upward." The outlook indicated a "satisfactory holiday trade," he added.

1-Family Homes Feature Building In October

New York, Nov. 14 (AP).—The dollar volume of private residential building contracts recorded in October was the highest since April, 1937, F. W. Dodge Corporation reported in a survey today.

For the 37 States east of the Rocky Mountains the total for the month, including both private and public, was $118,303,000, an increase of $5,630,000 over the corresponding month last year.

"The most impressive gain," said the statistical concern's survey, "was made in one-family residences which rose in total contract value from $70,021,000 in October, 1938, to $81,975,000 last month.

"As a consequence of this dollar increase, the total number of dwelling units provided showed a 13 per cent increase in October over the same month last year, while the ten months' cumulative total of dwelling units constructed represented a 75 per cent gain over the corresponding period of 1938."

There was an "appreciable" decline in nonresidential building in October as compared with October, 1938, but private nonresidential building "continued to have a firm tone and rose to $51,776,0000 last month," the survey asserted.

Upturn Real, Life Doubtful, Col. Ayres Says

Cities Pump-Priming, War Orders, Capital Issues as Factors

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, Nov. 14.—There is no room for doubt "about the genuineness of this industrial revival," Col. Leonard P. Ayers said tonight, "but there is real doubt about the possibilities of keeping it going."

"Apparently there are only three sources from which it could receive enough motive power to sustain its upward progress for any considerable number of months," the Cleveland statistician observed in his monthly business review for the Cleveland Trust Co.

He listed these sources as "genuinely big war orders, increased large-scale pump-priming" and "an important increase in the volume of new capital issues."

He said it "seems unlikely" that warring nations will order here in volumes comparable to those of 1915-1916. Pump-priming expenditures probably will decrease and new capital issues depend "on such improved relations between Government and business as will enhance the prospects for profits," Ayers asserted.

Financial Barometers

"Financial barometers are recording their skepticism about the future prospects of this business revival," Ayers said. "Stock prices advanced vigorously for nearly two weeks after the outbreak of the war, but in all the weeks since then they have been unable to surpass the levels they reached in those first few days.

"High grade bond prices have regained about half of the losses they experienced in the early days of the war, and recently the markets have been bidding up the prices of the short-term and nearly riskless issues. Investors are again seeking safety and avoiding risks."

Ayers recalled the sale of a New York Stock Exchange seat for $60,000, "not far above the low price of $51,000," and said the gain in commercial bank loans "appears to have stopped."

"These financial indications are too significant to be safely disregarded," he said, "and they all unite in telling the same story."

Treasury Borrows At 0.02 Per Cent

The Treasury's weekly sale of $100,000,000 of 91-day Treasury bills brought an average price of $99.995 per $100 unit, equivalent to borrowing at 0.02 per cent.

Last week's rate was equal to 0.017 per cent.

Cotton Prices Higher Except For October

By the Associated Press

New York, Nov. 14.—A late sprint carried cotton futures out of the lower price territory in which the market had dawdled most of the day. Closing prices were unchanged to 4 points higher for active deliveries except October, which lost 6.

Traders seemed more anxious to take stock of the developments which have pushed prices forward so quickly in recent sessions rather than lay out new speculative lines.

Futures Price Range

| | Open. | High. | Low. | Close. | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| December | 9.55 | 9.61 | 9.52 | 9.60 | +0.03 |

| July | 8.86 | 8.94 | 8.86 | 8.94 | +0.04 |

Spot, nominal; middling, 9.81.

Cottonseed Oil

Cottonseed oil futures ended 2 to 3 points lower today despite some early new outside speculative support attracted by steady lard and the rally in securities. Hedging appeared in later deliveries.

Sales totaled 74 lots; December, 6.58 bid; January, 6.84 bid; March, 6.81 bid; May, 6.92.

Crude oil was quoted 3⅝ cents in the Southeast and Valley and 5¼ in Texas, all bid.

Retail Advertising Dips During Week

Chicago, Nov. 14.—Volume of newspaper advertising placed by retailers in 80 major cities dipped slightly during the week ended November 4, 1939, when compared with the corresponding week of 1938, according to Advertising Age, today.

With a total of 21,573,532 lines placed during the week, volume was off about 389,000 lines from the 1938 week, or approximately 1.8 per cent.

Ohio Chamber to Meet

Columbus, Nov. 14.—The Ohio Chamber of Commerce will hold its forty-sixth annual meeting at Cleveland on Thursday and Friday. This organization is the oldest Statewide association, comprising all classes of business and agriculture in the United States and the second largest in the country.

Daily Oil Output Jumps 291,093 Barrels

Tulsa, Nov. 14 (AP).—The Nation's production if oil increased 291,093 barrels daily to 3,789,117 for the week ended November 11, the Oil and Gas Journal said today. Sharpest increase was in Texas. East Texas production rose 99,101 to 495,193, with the State's total up 261,949 to 1,547,372. Oklahoma increased 14,475 to 429,525; California 23,500 to 623,750; Illinois 2,379 to 328,959 and Michigan 1,881 to 64,132.

Louisiana declines 1,751 to 267,509; Kansas 8,350 to 154,900; Eastern fields 400 to 103,100 and the Rock Mountain area 1,180 to 79,960.

Westinghouse to Pay Workers 6% Bonus

Pittsburgh, Nov. 14 (AP).—The Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. today reported that it would pay its 45,000 employes in 57 plants and offices adjusted compensation of 6 per cent in November, 2 per cent more than the October bonus. The additional compensation is based on net earnings for the last three months of $3,321,022, of which $833,045 was earned in August; $1,104,137 in Semptember, and $1,363,840 in October.

D. C. Park System Survey Is Ended

A report on the Capital's park system lay on the desk of Secretary of Interior Ickes yesterday, the contents undisclosed. The department, parent agency of the National Capital Parks Office, last summer hired two outside experts to study all phases of the District's park system. The investigators were Charles G. Sauers, general superintendent of the Cook County (Chicago) forest preserve district, and Harold S. Wagner, director-secretary of the Summit County (Ohio) Metropolitan Park Board.

They came to Washington about seven weeks ago.

Restitution Writ Cost Is Reduced

The Municipal Court yesterday lopped another $2,500 off the fees paid each year by poor persons sued in the Landlord and Tenant Branch, by reducing the cost of writs of restitution from 50 cents to 25 cents.

The writ of restitution is issued against about 10,000 persons each year, to compel them to surrender premises to the owners whose rent has not been pand.

13 tricks can be taken by a squeeze.

J. S. C., of Scarsdale, contributes the hand, explaining:

"This deal, which occurred at a suburban duplicate game this week, may interest you.

"At five tables North-South bid five diamonds and made six. At six tables North-South bid three no trump, six odd being made at five of them, the sixth table making seven odd when a low spade was opened from K. Q. and J. solus held.

"However, seven diamonds or seven no trump can be made against any defense on a squeeze. The play at, or for, seven no trump is interesting in that if the spade ace is forced out at trick one, declarer must run his diamonds first, while if heart ace is forced out at trick one, declarer must run his clubs first.

"Ain't it awful, Mabel?"

Our personal view of the players in this particular Scarsdale game is that they were a bunch of scared bunnies. You can't score six unless you bid it, and even then you may not. Suggested bidding is shown in the box.

Today's Radio Highlights

For its annual broadcast debate, the National University Extension Association discusses "Public Ownership of Railroads," with Prof. Willard Hayes Yeager, of George Washington University, presiding. ## Autoists Warned Of Bus Stop Law In Maryland

Maryland motorists were reminded by the Keystone Automobile Club Monday of a new State highway regulation which requires cars to come to a complete stop within 10 feet of a school bus loading or unloading passengers.

The reminder, said George Keneipp, manager of the club, was issued at request of the Prince Georges County Federation of Parent-Teacher Associations. Many violations of the law have been observed, Keneipp added.

The statute provides that cars traveling in either direction must halt while school buses are loading or unloading.

Final Rites Set For J. E. Jewel

Final services for James E. Jewel, past commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, will be held at 11 a. m. today in Arlington Cemetery. He died at the age of 92 at his home in Fort Morgan, Colo., Wednesday after several years of illness.

Mr. Jewel was elected commander in chief of the G. A. R. at the Cincinnati encampment in 1930. He enlisted in 1864, at the age of 17, in his native State of Iowa.

For many years before his death he practiced law in Colorado. Services were held in Fort Morgan Sunday.

Russia Blames Finns for Flood

Moscow, Nov. 14 (AP).—The latest Russian radio thrust at Finland blames her for floods rising in northern Russia.

The Soviet midnight broadcast said the Neva River, which runs through Leningrad, was flooding "because of winds from Finland."

The Finns, the broadcast charged, neglected to inform Russia of meteorological conditions, and therefore were responsible.

Chapter 53

"WHAT SUBJECTS do you need to make up? I know you have told me but it has slipped my mind."

"Second year French and plane geometry and one unit of history. It could be medieval or ancient."

"Did you bring the books?"

She hung her head. "No," she said humbly. "Aunt Ella was going to give me some money for a graduation present and I was going to buy the books with that. I had them all picked out. But she didn't."

He seemed to take thought, looking down at his feet. Then he said, "Wait a minute. I think I have plenty that will do in my study. I'll bring them down. Was the French reading to be 'Monsieur Perrichon'?"

"No, it's the abridged 'Les Miserables.'"

He went slowly back up the stairs, setting one numb foot mechanically before the other. Mechanically he went to his study, stooped his tall frame before the low bookshelves, running h's forefinger along the titles. Mechanically he took out three volumes, and looking further found a grammar and a small dictionary.

As he straightened up he caught sight of his face in the little mirror. It was perfectly exoressionless, with a sort of stunned, idiotic blankness spread upon it that was really ludicrous.

It was so ludicrous that as he looked he could not help laughing. Not the one short clap with which he usually recognized the ironic and absurd—this was a long shaken burst of laughter, so wild that once it began he could not stop it, but he went on and on, laughing till he was weak, laughing till he could not stand up, till he sank down in his chair—till he laid his head on his desk, shaking from head to foot. It was so funny, so very, very funny—the difference between what he had thought to find and what he had found—it was so comic that—as people say of a fit of inordinate mirth—he could not but laugh over it till he cried. Yes, till he cried.

"Here you are, Delia. I have a better edition of 'Les Miserables' somewhere. I'll look it up later."

"Prof. Hulme, are you having trouble with your eyes? They look to me as though you'd been straining them. Aunt Ella has had a terrible time with her eyes lately. She found she had to have much stronger glasses."

"My eyes are all right," said Prof. Hulme, in the cold voice which always silenced intrusiveness in his own students. But Delia was not—not quite yet—one of his students. She went on, staring at his eyes, "They look as though you'd been overworking them awfully. You really ought not to neglect them. The oculist told Aunt Ella . . ."

"That'll do! That'll do!" trumpeted Prof. Hulme churlishly.

He was shocked by the casual way Delia took his rudeness. "Oh, all right," she said, unsurprised, indulgent, indifferent, and held out her hand for the books. Had somebody warned her that he was a cranky old schoolmaster, with the old schoolmaster's short temper? And who would have told her? Good God! What a disagreeable girl she was! Everything in her, even her good points, rubbed him the wrong way.

He thought. He thought rather a long time, looking very cross. Then, "Yes. In the evening. About 8 o'clock. Here. I'll be downstairs in that little corner under the stairs."

She was gone.

HE CLIMBED slowly back up the two flights of stairs, in the most extreme discomfort. His imagination, poor bare stick fallen from the skies to the mud, lay prone in the ditch, kicked and savaged by self-respect and good taste. Was it possible, they cried, was it to be believed—and yet of course it needs must be believed, since it had happened—that a grown man could make such an undignified fool of himself, could cut such a vain cheap figure, could concoct such a theatrical, far-fetched explanation of an ordinary fact, could—like a green boy—depart in one leap from any notion of reality and wallow in deluded sense fantasies? What it showed of the stuff he was really made of——

From behind this emotional scolding and clubbing and stabbing, his mind, aloof from what concerned it not, and active about its own business—gave a start of joy at a sudden inspiration and through the very thick of his self-torture, handed him the phrase he had been vainly looking for when Andrew had knocked on the door—better than he had hoped to find, a phrase like an arrow, feathered for speed, steel-tipped to penetrate the thickest shield of wonted, passive acceptance of inequity.

He hurried into his study. He slammed the door behind him. He snatched off his necktie and flung it on the floor. He sat down at his desk eagerly, took up his pen with zest, and squared his elbows for work.

It was a crowded afternoon. By 1 o'clock the first draft of the letters to those of the out-of-town alumni whose addresses were known, had been read to Mr. Dewey and revised with his suggestions. By 3:30 500 copies had been mimeographed, with eager and excited talk from student volunteers. By 5 they had been folded and put into the envelopes, the envelopes had been addressed and stamped (stamps, paper and envelopes paid for by Timothy). By half-past they were safely mailed. Two short meetings had been held, one with the faculty, and, directly after it, a meeting for the students. Called to the long-distance telephone five or six times, Timothy had made to far-away voices about the same statement of the situation and his stand on it. Reporters from some of the larger newspapers had reached Clifford, and he and Mr. Dewey had talked with them. This interview had lasted far over the hour for supper, so that Timothy and Mr. Dewey committed the crime of being late at Miss Peck's supper table. The others were eating their fluffy gingerbread topped with whipped cream when the two men came in apologetically.

But they were not punished for their tardiness. Miss Peck and Susan both rose to greet and serve them. Miss Peck, with a grand gesture of magnanimity, told them, "From now on to 'lection, you come to supper whenever you've a mind to. Don't you go clawing something together off your own pantry shelves. Prof. Hulme. If it's 9 o'clock at night, I'll have something waiting for you in the warming oven!"

SUSAN, HURRYING to set heaped plates before them, cried out in pride and admiration, "I'm simply thrilled by the way you're standing up against this. You're swell! That's what it means for a town to have real leaders!" She was carried away by her enthusiasm to the point of pressing a hand warmly for an instant on Timothy's shoulder. Noting that the other was laid on Mr. Dewey's, Timothy felt a tightening of his throat. So it was swell of them, was it, and she was thrilled, was she, he thought, recognizing bitterly two of the words Canby had sown broadcast in Clifford.

"I'll say it's swell" said Canby, from the other end of the table. "And I'll say it's having leaders! Just you set us at work, Uncle Tim, and watch us go to it."

"Oh, yes," breathed Susan," anything we can do!"

Timothy pushed his plate away. "I'm very sorry. I find I'm really too tired to eat," he told Miss Peck, and leaned his head on his hand, closing his eyes.

Miss Peck's unprecedented indulgence knew no bounds. "Let me heat you up some soup," she said understandingly. "A person can always get soup down."

So Mr. Dewey stowed away an enormous helping of baked beans, Indian-meal, steamed bread and roast veal and gingerbread, and drank cup after cup of coffee, as he recounted zestfully the stirring events of the day while Timothy, pale and silent, took a little soup and lived over with intensity each milestone of the way they had come, as Mr. Dewey described it.

The faculty meeting first, with its revelation not only of the road which young Bowen was moving, but of the distance he had gone. Timothy had been surprised and had instantly known it was stupid of him to be surprised, not to have recognized and put together long ago the Hilaire Belloc essays Bowen was always reading, his dictum of "nobody can teach anything with girls around," his repeated suggestion—which Timothy had thought no more than a boy's wish to astonish—of military drill for the boys of the Academy, the riding club, his impatience of what he called "feeble progressive nonesense" in the discipline of the school. But when you have for 20 years seen recent young graduates throw so many other quickly-passing fits, the D. H. Lawrence fit, the Freudian fit, the Lenin-Marxian one, the Hemingway one . . . ! His face bent down toward the soup he found it so hard to swallow, he passed that short meeting in review.

Mr. Dewey had spoken first, a brief statement of his feeling about the bequest. Timothy had then said that he wanted to make it clear that no pressure was to be put on any member of the teaching staff. The faculty were quite free, he told them, not only to take any stand they thought right, but to take no stand at all if they preferred. As he said this, he looked compassionately at stricken old Miss Benson, who naturally could see in the news nothing but a threat to her poor earning capacity.

Peter Dryden had spoken at once, matter-of-fact, unimaginative, honest—"I know I wouldn't stand a chance of being kept on if there was money enough to hire a sure-enough athletic coach—let alone the dropping of the only subjects I know how to teach. But that's not the reason I'm with you, Mr. Hulme. For I am, a hundred per cent. I wouldn't want to have my children shut out of a school that's really, no matter what its status is legally, a public school, because I belong to the Presbyterian Church, or because one of my grandfathers was a Welchman. So count on me, Mr. Hulme, as far as I go."

Miss Lane rose and stood quietly, her capable hands folded and resting on the comfortable bulge below her waistline. "I never did like Jews," she said flatly. "But I don't like the Irish, either. Nor the French-Canadians. And I've always been glad that I don't live in the South, where I'd have to have colored people around." She stopped, took a look at what she had said, smiled and added dryly, "I guess the fact is, what I'd like would be to have nobody but New England folks around. And mostly Vermonters at that. But my goodness, I can't abide magenta. I think Mr. Wheaton's conditions are simply horrid. If it depended on me I wouldn't touch his money with a ten-foot pole."

From his seat old Henry Dale said palely, "I'll have to think it over before I come to a decision." They all knew he meant "talk it over with my wife and find out what her decision is."

"Oh, yes, yes," said Timothy quickly. "We've two months before us. No need for any body to make a decision without thinking it over."

THE TWO OTHER older teachers had no chance to say anything at all, for at this point young Bowen took the floor, "I don't need any two months. The question is perfectly plain to me at a glance." He paused, looked hard at Timothy and with the derisive small laugh with which he often prefaced his remarks went on, "It's all very well to say we are left 'free to take any stand we like,' Mr. Hulme, with you and Mr. Dewey breathing out fire and brimstone. But I'll take advantage of your kind permission to have an opinion of my own and say that I feel the intelligent thing to do is to take advantage of this remarkable opportunity to make an enormus improvement in the brand of education being offered at the Academy—I suppose even you and Mr. Dewey would admit that it could stand improving?—rather than to use the occasion for a rhetorical protest against a tendency of modern Europe that is none of Clifford's concern. Why—" he put the question ironically—"why all this sudden fury against Jew-baiting? I've never noticed that you or Mr. Dewey made the welkin ring in protest against what's done to share-croppers in this country—or coal miners—or Tom Mooney. I pick out instances that I should think would be along your line."

Timothy thought, "He has another position somewhere else with better pay, assured for next year," but he and Mr. Dewey, the night before, had agreed that they would patiently answer in detail, one by one, all objections raised to their position. "Well, Bowen," he said in an easy tone, "I'm glad you give me an opportunity to repeat again that the only hesitation Mr. Dewey and I have in taking the stand we do, is that it may seem to hamper the freedom of the Academy faculty to follow their own convictions. Let me assure you again, with my past record as pledge, that you are, of course, free to act on your own opinion. As to share-croppers and coal miners, Mr. Bowen, if you had ever been in my class on current events, you would have heard some protests from me about them—and about Tom Mooney too. I've joined with other Americans in protesting against these wrongs," he made an effort to continue speaking mildly, "as the occasion has offered, whenever I knew enough of the facts to judge. I feel that the present occasion is entirely different. Don't you see, Mr. Bowen, the point of the strange situation in which we and ourselves is that we here have singled out and publicly asked not only to give collectively a public endorsement of a great and shameful wrong being carried on in our period of history, but to pledge ourselves to help perpetuate it for all time. I assure you that if a large endowment were offered to the Academy on condition that we formally pledge ourselves to endorse and help perpetuate whatever the features of our economic system are that keep share-croppers and coal miners in hopeless poverty—well, you'd see Mr. Dewey and me quite as vocal against accepting it, as at present."
